Roosevelt: G. O. P. Cracks Whip of Fear Over Voters' Backs

BREAK APPEARS IN TAX STRIKE; 75 AGREE TO PAY

Pledge $140,000 in Jarecki's Court.

The first dent was made yesterday in the County court in the mountain of $200,000,000 in unpaid taxes which are the basis of Cook county governments' financial woes. Seventy-five taxpayers agreed to dismissal of their objections against payment of 1928 and 1929 taxes and promised County Judge Jarecki to make tax payments totaling $140,000.

The action was the first tangible result of the United States Supreme court's refusal two weeks ago to review the Bistor tax case, which precipitated a concentrated drive upon tax strikers. The objections dismissed yesterday were essentially the same as those held invalid by high courts in the Bistor case. They were based on the alleged injustice done real estate taxpayers by failure to make a full assessment of personal property.

Special Jury Begins Inquiry.

An estimate of how much Judge Jarecki may do to clear up the tax situation by overruling tax objections, as he did yesterday, was given the special grand jury during the day by Hayden N. Bell, county tax attorney. Mr. Bell was the first witness in the special jury's investigation of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, the principal organization backing the tax strike.

He estimated that 75 per cent of the $200,000,000 in unpaid taxes is owed by taxpayers who are able to pay but who so far have evaded payment by filing objections similar to those dismissed yesterday. He added that 99½ per cent of all the objections on file in the County court are upon grounds already held invalid in the Bistor and Cisar cases.

$43,000 Payment Promised.

The largest tax case disposed of yesterday before Judge Jarecki was that of the Emmerman building, Lawrence avenue and Sheridan road. This building, which is in a federal receivership, owes $154,215 in taxes for 1928, 1929, and 1930.

Attorney A. L. Schwartz told Judge Jarecki that the receiver has collected $43,000 in rents which he wished to apply on the back taxes. The attorney's request that this be prorated over the three years was denied, Judge Jarecki advising him to apply all the money on the 1928 bill.

This bill was $49,403. Judge Jarecki remitted 50 per cent of the penalty which has been accumulating upon the property at the rate of 1 per cent a month, a total reduction of $5,250. Payment of the $43,000 which Attorney Schwartz promised to make today will leave only $1,153 due on the 1928 taxes.

Half of Penalties Remitted.

In all of the cases in which the owners made or promised payments they were granted a remission of half of the penalties accumulated on their taxes. This is the procedure which has been followed in all tax cases in which taxpayers have shown a disposition to pay as soon as they have the money.

All of the payments yesterday were for 1928 or 1929 taxes.

Mr. Bell will ask Judge Jarecki today to dismiss the objections to tax payments and enter judgments against a dozen large properties on which some $3,500,000 in taxes is unpaid. The attorneys in a number of these cases are the same who carried the Bistor and Cisar cases to the high courts—Morris Schaeffer, who was engaged with Roy D. Keehn in the Cisar case, and Watkins, Ten Hoor and Gilbert, who appeared for the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers in the Bistor case.

Probe Association's Fees.

The special grand jury, in its investigation of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, indicated that its principal interest is in the enormous fees collected by the organization, and their disposition. Attorney Bell, who gave a general outline of the tax strike situation, was followed before the jury by William Waller Jr., a director and member of the executive committee of the association, and James D. Stover, its treasurer.

Stover was instructed to return today with all of the association's books and financial statements.

The jurors are understood to have received information that the association, during the present year alone, has collected some $400,000 from taxpayer members.

GangKidnaper Shot to Death from Gun Nest

Roland McKenna, 28 years old, alleged kidnaper of gamblers, was shot and killed in front of his home at 205 West 60th street last night. He was struck by 23 submachine gun bullets and shotgun slugs fired from a gun nest on the second floor of 5958 Wentworth avenue, across the street from his home.

McKenna's wife, Rose, saw him killed and also saw the flashes of gunfire from the window opposite her home. She directed the police to the apartment from which the shots were fired. Investigation revealed that the slayers had rented the apartment on Sept. 7 and since then had maintained an almost nightly death watch on McKenna.

Kidnapings Called Motive.

The police were satisfied that McKenna was slain because of his abduction campaign against bookmakers and other gamblers. McKenna knew he was marked for death, it was said. The police early in October were warned by an anonymous caller that if the department did not suppress him, his victims would take action. That action was taken shortly before 7 o'clock last night.

McKenna alighted from a south bound Wentworth avenue car at 60th street and walked toward his home a few feet west of Wentworth avenue. As he neared the entrance, two second floor windows on the 60th street side of the building at 5958 Wentworth avenue were opened. Shotguns and a submachine gun volleyed. Bullets riddled McKenna and spattered against the wall of his home.

Four Slayers Flee in Auto.

As he fell four men ran out of the building whence the gunfire had come, jumped into an automobile, and sped north in Wentworth avenue.

Mrs. McKenna, who had seen her husband leave the street car and then had seen the gun flashes across the street, ran hysterically to her husband's body, followed by McKenna's parents, Patrick and Ann.

Sergt. Patrick McShane and his detective bureau squad, first to reach the scene, went to the gun nest and found a dozen submachine gun shells and several shotgun shells on the floor. The only furniture in the flat was a cot.

From Vito Riccardo, owner of a grocery on the first floor, the policemen learned the flat had been rented nearly two months ago by a man about 50 years old. Almost nightly since then, neighbors said, three or four men, including the renter, visited the flat. They appeared usually at 5 o'clock. They were seen to enter the place at 5 o'clock last evening, their coat collars pulled up to hide their faces.

McKenna had a record as a minor hoodlum.

One of his probable kidnaping victims was John Lynch, the police said. Lynch, part owner of a racing news service, was abducted in August last year and released after the reported payment of a $50,000 ransom.

A HOTEL CLERK KEEPS BUSY ON HIS NIGHT OFF

John Rogers, 34 years old, a clerk at the Berkshire hotel, 15 East Ohio street, took advantage of his night off last evening by calling with Charles Johnson, 30 years old, 2048 West 22d street, on a clerk in the Cass hotel, just around the corner at 640 North Wabash avenue. The call, however, was not social. Rogers and Johnson both carried guns and forced the Cass hotel clerk, Charles Mansell, 6105 South Wells street, to hand over $50.

As Rogers and Johnson fled, Lester Mudge, 839 Sheridan road, a bellboy, seized Johnson, and George Trapp, 8437 Rhodes avenue, another bellboy who is an amateur boxer, followed Rogers to the Berkshire hotel. The police arrested Johnson and later arrested Rogers in his room at the Berkshire. They recovered the $50.

Turfman's Son Gets Store Gun to Kill Himself

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Joseph M. Madden, son of the late turfman, John E. Madden, posed as a customer in Abercrombie & Fitch's gunroom this noon until he had a loaded revolver in his hand; then he shot himself in the right temple. He died four hours later in Bellevue hospital.

Madden, who is 40 years old, entered the sporting goods shop in Madison avenue at noon. John P. Schaeffer waited on him. Madden asked for .38 caliber revolver bullets and Schaeffer produced a box.

Asks to See Revolver.

Madden hesitated.

"I wonder if these will fit my gun," he said. "Let me see that one." Schaeffer gave him the weapon he pointed at, and Madden loaded it, pressed the muzzle against his right temple, and pulled the trigger.

There were two notes in Madden's pocket, one to a lawyer and the other to his wife, with whom and their two children he was stopping at the Hotel Plaza. She was notified and hurried to the hospital. She remained at his bedside until the end.

In New York for Visit.

The Maddens had been at the hotel for about a week on one of their frequent trips to New York from Lexington, Ky., where they live. Joseph Madden and his brother, John E. Jr., shared equally in their father's considerable estate after his death on Nov. 9, 1929, in this city. The senior Madden was a breeder of great horses, including six Derby winners—Plaudit, Old Rosebud, Sir Barton, Paul Jones, Zev, and Flying Ebony.

4,000 NUDISTS WIN RIGHT TO HOLD MEETING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Four thousand members of the Berlin nudist school, which was recently prohibited by the Prussian dictator, today threatened to gather for their usual weekly meeting and to refuse to don clothes if police dragged them to headquarters. The authorities decided to allow the nudist group to continue its physical culture courses as a "private club instead of a school." Consequently the nudists held their regular meeting and Berlin was deprived of the shock of 4,000 undressed men and women being hauled to the station.

PRESIDENT ASKS U. S. TO HOLD ON TO OLD IDEALS

Tells of Menace in the 'New Deal.'

BY JOHN HERRICK.
(Picture on Back Page.)

New York, Oct. 31. — [Special.] — Speaking in Madison Square Garden, in the home city of Tammany, in the home state of his political rival, and before a crowd of 21,000 persons who cheered as no crowd in the campaign cheered, President Hoover tonight pinned the label of radicalism on Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and his campaign associates. More than 40,000 persons, for whom there was no room, remained outside.

The campaign was not, the President declared, a contest between two men, or two parties, but a crucial battle between two conflicting theories of government.

The "new deal" that Gov. Roosevelt wished to give the American people, he asserted, was a proposal of revolutionary changes which would undermine and destroy the fundamentals of the American system of government.

"Grass Will Grow in Streets."

He charged that if the Democrats were victorious and their tariff policy was adopted "the grass will grow in the streets of a hundred cities, a thousand towns; the weeds will overrun the fields of millions of farms."

This emphasis of the danger of change was the message that the President and Republican candidate brought across four states in today's trip from Washington. This was the message with which he chose to climax the campaign in the east. This was the appeal for the votes—the conservative votes—of the east, of New York, center of banking and business—the votes that are essential to counterbalance the defections in the west.

Nor did the President confine himself to generalities. He named the names of the Roosevelt supporters whose theories he said gave him the right to charge that a Democratic victory would mean the end of America. He named Norris, La Follette, Cutting. From the crowd came a hissing. He named Huey Long. The hissing broke into a great boo. He named Senator Wheeler. More hissing. Lastly, W. R. Hearst. The boo that followed was thunderous.

Receives Thunderous Greeting.

But not half so thunderous as was the applause that followed the President out of the Pennsylvania station on his arrival in New York, that followed him into the city streets through a lane of old fashioned red fire, that came to a superlative climax at the Garden.

That reception was one that will not be forgotten by any who was in those rocking, shouting, yelling, stamping rows of 21 thousand frenzied, waving cheering people.

Upstretched hands madly waved American flags. The cheering was literally deafening. "Wild Bill" Donovan, candidate for governor, tried to stop them. He only made it worse.

The band struck into the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." The great bowl of humanity caught up the tune and as one blared out the chorus—not once, but again and again. Then they sang "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight," and all but took the roof off.

Introduced by Widow of "T. R."

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of "T. R.," introduced the President. They gave her an ovation, sang "Auld Lang Syne." They sang the "Star Spangled Banner," and any one who has never sat in a great amphitheater and heard 21,000 men and women sing their national anthem should have been sitting in flag-draped Madison Square Garden tonight.

Then came a discordant note. As the President started his speech a man in the gallery shouted, "You're a liar, Mr. Hoover." He repeated it several times before he was seized. The President stood with head bowed until the disturbance was over.

The attack of the President on the radical intentions of Gov. Roosevelt and his supporters might almost have been a summary of the warning words that have been uttered in the press and from the platform by those who have feared and fought the reaching tentacles of centralization and paternalism.

The President listed eight indices to show which way the Democratic can-

CANDIDATES GIVE THEIR OPINIONS OF DAY'S ISSUES

By PRESIDENT HOOVER.

"The grass will grow in streets of a hundred cities, a thousand towns; the weeds will overrun the fields of millions of farms if that protection (the tariff) be taken away. Their churches and schoolhouses will decay."

"Men who are going about this country announcing that they are liberals because of their promises to extend the government in business are not liberals; they are reactionaries of the United States."

". . . I contend that this American system of ours has demonstrated its validity and superiority over any other system yet invented by human mind."

By GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT.

"I decline to accept present conditions as inevitable or beyond control. I decline to stop at saying 'It might have been worse.'

"I shall do all I can to prevent it from being worse—but—and here is the clear difference between the President and myself—I go on to pledge action to make things better."

"The tragedy of the past year has been the failure of those who were responsible to translate high sounding plans into action."

"The administration attempts to undermine reason through fear—to tell us that the world will come to an end on Nov. 8 if they are not returned to power for four years more.

"It sadly misconceives the good sense and self-reliance of the people."

EASY PICKINGS TURN TO ASHES IN DAVE'S LIFE

Dave [Yiddles] Miller's future in the pickpocket profession is dark and bitter. He told Lieut. Ed Kelly at the detective bureau about it last night.

"The old days were the good days," said "Yiddles," who is 55 years old and a veteran of the pickpocket brigade. "Take, for instance, the old World's Fair of 1893. The pickings were easy. But today everything's tough."

"Don't take it so hard," consoled the lieutenant. "There's another World's Fair coming next year—in case you're still alive."

"In case I'm still alive!" repeated "Yiddles" bitterly. "That's just it. My doctors give me only six months to live."

N. Y. GOVERNOR ASSAILS FOES' "INTIMIDATION"

Pledges Action to Better Conditions.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt struck again tonight at President Hoover, calling him a man who hurled the nation into despair by failing to follow economic policies which Mr. Hoover himself had originated.

Quoting from a report issued by a commission in 1923, a commission operating under the sponsorship of Mr. Hoover, then secretary of commerce, Mr. Roosevelt cited five points of economic policy which if followed, might, he said, have saved the country from much of the recent and present troubles. President Hoover, Gov. Roosevelt declared, either ignored the recommendations during the subsequent years, or he traveled a road directly opposite to them.

The Democratic presidential nominee also assailed the industrial leaders of the nation who have issued letters and posted bulletins stating to their employés that continued employment depended on the reëlection of Mr. Hoover.

Cites "Bread Line Patience."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke of the "bread line patience" of American citizens, enduring their hardships peacefully, enduring them only, the candidate declared, because they are hopeful of a change.

These people will never listen, he asserted, to "the outpouring of misstatements, of threats and intimidation," made by Republican and industrial leaders.

"They," he said, "threaten American business and American workers with dire destruction from November to March.

"They crack the whip of fear over the backs of American voters."

While charging a list of failures to Mr. Hoover, Mr. Roosevelt made pledges on his own behalf. He proposed to accept the federal responsibility for giving relief to the jobless when local and state agencies failed. He also declared the federal government "should provide temporary work whenever possible," in the national forests, on flood prevention, and in water way developments.

Favors Public Works.

"The federal government should also expedite the active construction of public works already authorized," Mr. Roosevelt said. He charged the country would be "horrified" to know how little construction work, authorized by congress, has been undertaken.

For permanent measures of economic relief, Mr. Roosevelt pledged his administration first, to federal action in establishing a coördinated system of employment exchanges; second, to adopt the principle of advance planning of public works.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke again in favor of the creation of unemployment reserves, but he said under the existing form of government, the responsibility for this rests with the several states.

Greeted with Cheers.

Thousands of wildly cheering Bostonians greeted the Roosevelt attack on Hooverism. It was the climax of a day spent by the Democratic candidate in once more indulging his favorite practice of shattering precedents.

Mr. Roosevelt said Mr. Hoover had descended to personalities in the campaign and then he became personal. Some of his quotations were:

"They crack the 'whip of fear' over the backs of American voters. Ambassador Mellon 3,000 miles away invokes the same sinister threat and seeks to spread it to the rest of the civilized world. They are willing to throw their country into a chasm to save themselves."

"The party that claims as its guiding tradition the patient and generous spirit of the immortal Lincoln, has descended to an outpouring of misstatements, of threats, and intimidation."

More Raps at Opponent.

"The present leadership in Washington stands convicted, not because it did not have the means to plan, but fundamentally because it did not have the will to do."

"What we need in Washington is less fact finding and more thinking."

"President Hoover has closed the door of hope to American agriculture."

"President Hoover cannot get action from the congress. He seems unable to coöperate. He quarreled with a Republican congress and he quarreled with a half-Republican congress. He will quarrel with any kind of a congress. He cannot get things done."

ROOSEVELT SAYS G. O. P. INVOKES FEAR

Recalls Smith's Appeal.

In his speech tonight, delivered at the Boston arena, where a few nights ago Al Smith made his campaign plea to "forget me and support Frank Roosevelt," Mr. Roosevelt said in greeting the crowd that had cheered him 12 minutes:

"My only regret is that I couldn't have been here last Thursday night when Gov. Smith was here.

"At any rate, on the very next day I had a very long talk with him and told him that he received the very deserved welcome that he got here.

"And another thing, up in New Hampshire today, I was assured that Hawkshaw, the detective, is not going back to the senate."

Mr. Smith had referred to Senator Moses of New Hampshire as Hawkshaw, the detective.

Says Hoover Failed to Act.

The Democratic candidate outlined five points made in the industrial report under Mr. Hoover's guidance in 1928.

"He did not do what in his 1928 report he said ought to be done," Roosevelt declared. "And on top of that he did what he said ought not to be done."

Then, one by one, Mr. Roosevelt cited the points and told how he saw Mr. Hoover had failed to accomplish them.

The first was that the government should reduce expenditures for public works in prosperous times and set up reserves for rainy days.

The second point urged a constructive program in coöperation with the railroads, and instead of this the Hoover administration waited, the governor asserted, until the "depression had laid them low."

The third point proposed safeguards against too rapid inflation.

"As I have shown," Mr. Roosevelt said, "the President and his secretary of the treasury encouraged speculation."

The fourth recommendation of 1928, Mr. Roosevelt said, was for a system of unemployment insurance, and there had been no federal proposals along that line.

Favors Public Job Offices.

The last recommendation cited by Mr. Roosevelt was for the establishment of a system of public employment offices, and far from following this proposal, the candidate charged, Mr. Hoover vetoed the Wagner bill seeking to carry it out.

Gov. Roosevelt condemned the President for being "unable to coöperate with congress."

"He will quarrel with any kind of a congress," the New York governor said. "He cannot get things done. This is something you must consider. The next congress will certainly be Democratic. I look forward to coöperation with it."

Mr. Roosevelt today journeyed far up into the Republican wilds of Maine, traversing as he went parts of the equally ultra Republican New Hampshire. Every where he was greeted by enthusiastic crowds.

Cites Coolidge's Words.

In Portland, Me., he delivered a speech quoting Calvin Coolidge in a speech made 12 years ago, when Mr. Coolidge was campaigning against Gov. Roosevelt for the Vice Presidency. Coolidge then voiced a demand for a change in control from a party which had ceased "to be an effective instrument of government."

"I stand for that today," Mr Roosevelt said as the crowd which filled the city hall auditorium howled its pleasure at the citation.

Several veteran newspaper political writers from this New England country, who ought to know their politics, had declared before taking the journey with Mr. Roosevelt, he could not carry any of the New England states. But tonight, after being caught in the press of crowds in every city along the way, especially in the manufacturing centers of Massachusetts, they were doubtful or they swung toward a Roosevelt prediction.

GOV. ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS

Boston, Mass., Oct. 31.—[A. P.]—Governor Roosevelt in his address at the Boston arena tonight said:

"I hope I have learned the lesson that reason and tolerance have their place in all things, and I want to say frankly that they are never so appropriate as when they prevail in a political campaign.

"I say this with some feeling because I express widespread opinion when I note that the dignity of the office of President has suffered during the past week. The President began this campaign with the same attitude with which he has approached so many of the serious problems of the past three years. He sought to create the impression that there was no campaign just as he had sought to create the impression that all was well with the United States.

"People Spoiled the Plan."

"But the people of the country spoiled these plans. They demanded that the administration which they placed in power four years ago, and which has cost them so much, give an accounting. They demanded this accounting in no uncertain terms.

"This demand of the people has continued until it has become an overwhelming, irresistible drift of public opinion.

"As this storm of approval for the Democratic policies has grown several moods have come over the utterances of the President and his supporters.

"First, they were plaintively apologetic; then they were indignant at congress. Finally they have in desperation resorted to the breeding of fear.

"At first the President refused to recognize that he was in a contest. But as the people have responded to our program with enthusiasm he recognized that we were both candidates. And then dignity died.

"He Misquoted Me."

"At Indianapolis he spoke of my arguments—misquoting them. He went further. He abandoned argument for personalities.

"In the presence of a situation like this I am tempted to reply in kind. I shall not yield to the temptation to which the President yielded. On the contrary I reiterate my respect for his person and his office. But I shall not be deterred even by the President of the United States from the discussion of grave national issues and submitting to the people the truth about their national affairs—however unpleasant that truth may be.

"The ballot is the indispensable instrument of a free people. It should be the true expression of their will. It is intolerable when that is coerced—whatever the form of coercion—political or economic.

"The autocratic will of no man—be he President, or general, or captain of industry—shall ever destroy the sacred right of the people themselves to determine for themselves who shall govern them.

"Secure in their undying belief in this great tradition the people of this country, the employed, the partially employed, and the unemployed—those who are fortunate enough to retain some of the means of economic well being, and those from whom these cruel conditions have taken everything—have stood with patience and fortitude in the face of adversity.

"There they stand. And they stand peacefully, even when they stand in the breadline. Their complaints are not mingled with threats. They are willing to listen to reason at all times. Throughout this great crisis the stricken army of the unemployed has been patient, law abiding, orderly—because they are hopeful.

Descend to Threats.

"But the party that claims as its guiding tradition the patient and generous spirit of the immortal Lincoln, when confronted by an opposition which has given to the nation an orderly and constructive campaign, has descended to an outpouring of misstatements, of threats, and intimidation.

"The administration attempts to undermine reason through fear—to tell us that the world will come to an end on Nov. 8 if they are not returned to power for four years more. It sadly misconceives the good sense and the self-reliance of our people.

"They tell us further that the present administration will be unable to hold in check the economic forces that threaten us in the period between election and inauguration. They threaten American business and American workers with dire destruction from November to March.

Crack Whip of Fear.

"They crack the 'whip of fear' over the backs of American voters.

"Ambassador Mellon the representative of the United States at the Court of St. James, who should represent the whole American people there, appeals to an English audience on English soil for the support of a party candidate 3,000 miles away, and invokes the same sinister threat and seeks to spread it to the rest of the civilized world.

"We are told that there was a Roman senator who threw himself into a chasm to save his country. These gentlemen are of a new breed. They are willing to throw their country into a chasm to save themselves.

"Another means of spreading fear is through certain Republican industrial leaders. I have said, and without being controverted, that 5,000 men in effect control American industry. These men, possessed of such great power, carry likewise a great responsibility.

Political Rights Invaded.

"It is their duty to use every precaution to see that this power is never used to destroy or limit the sound public policy of the free and untrammeled exercise of the power of the ballot.

"In violation of this duty some of these 5,000 men who control industry are invading the sacred political rights of those over whom they have economic power. They are joining in the chorus of fear initiated by the President, secretary of the treasury, and the Republican national committee.

"They are telling their employes that if they fail to support the administration of President Hoover such jobs as they have will be in danger.

"Such conduct is un-American and worthy of censure at the ballot box.

"It would be equally reprehensible if any political leader were to seek reprisal against any coercing employer who used such means. Let us fight our political battles with political arguments, and not prey upon men's economic necessities.

Threats Empty Gestures.

"No, my friends, their threats are empty gestures. You know and I know that their industries have been sliding down hill. You know and I know that the whole program of the present administration has been directed only to prevent a further slipping.

"You know and I know that the Democratic party is not satisfied merely with arresting the present decline, but that we seek to build up and improve—to put these industries into a position where their wheels will turn and where opportunity will be given to them to reemploy the millions of workers they have laid off.

"It is not enough merely to stabilize—to lend money! It is essential to increase purchasing power in order that goods may be sold. There must be people capable of buying goods in order that goods may be manufactured and sold. When that time comes, under a new leadership, these same gentlemen will be there doing business as usual.

"The American voter, the American workingman, the mill worker of New England, the miner of the west, the railroad worker, the farmer, and the white collar man will answer this silly, spiteful threat with his ballot on Nov. 8.

Fruits of Depression.

"As I have pointed out before in this campaign, the fruits of this depression, like the fruits of war, will be gathered in future generations. It is not, my friends, the pinch of suffering and the agony of uncertainty that the grownup people are now feeling that count the most; it is the heritage that our children must anticipate that touches an even more vital spot. But it is not today alone that counts. Undernourishment and poor standards of living and inadequate medical care of today will make themselves felt for 50 years to come.

"I stood in Topeka, Kas., and said to the farmers that the tragic effect of 40 cent wheat and 9 cent corn and 6 cent cotton is not so much what the farmer himself must feel when he sees the labor of his hands wasted on a product that does not yield him a living.

"The bitterness of it all is what it means for his children.

Hopes for Children.

"It is the same for you—you workers in industry. There are none of us who do not hope that our children get a better break than we have had—that the chance for an education, for a reasonable start in life, may be passed on to our children, an opportunity for them that is built out of the hard work of our own hands.

"We want them to have opportunity for profitable character building—decent, wholesome living—good work and good play. We want to know somehow that while perfection does not come in this world we do try to make things better from one generation to another.

"This depression, with its vast unemployment, has swept away much of the material gains that we had hoped to use. Grim poverty stalks through the land. It embitters the present and darkens the future.

"Against this enemy every ounce of effort and every necessary penny of wealth must be raised as a defense. And, my friends, it is not that we lack the knowledge of what to do. The tragedy of the past years has been the failure of those who were responsible to translate high sounding plans into action.

Calls People Heartsick.

"The present leadership in Washington stands convicted, not because it did not have the means to plan, but fundamentally because it did not have the will to do. That is the reason that the American people on Nov. 8 will register their firm conviction that this administration has utterly and entirely failed—failed to meet the great emergency.

"The American people are a heartsick people—'hope deferred maketh the heart sick.'

"Let me offer you an example: In 1921 and 1922 there was a depression—very mild, compared with the present one—but nevertheless a depression. There developed a large amount of unemployment. The President of the United States in September, 1921, called the 'President's conference on unemployment.' This conference employed a number of experts who prepared a highly competent report.

Offers Many Safeguards.

"It happens that this report did not appear until after the depression was ended. It was published in 1923—6 years before the present depression began. It said many sound things. It proposed the control of credit expansion by the banks, the prevention of overexpansion of industry, the control of public and private construction in boom periods, and security against the suffering that might come from unemployment. It was a good report, my friends. Sound and intelligent people worked on it and contributed to it.

"The chairman of that unemployment conference in 1921 was the then secretary of commerce of the United States—Secretary Hoover.

"The President complains, because I have charged that he did nothing for a long time after the depression began. That is true. I add to that charge, that from the time this report was published in 1923, for the six years that preceded the crash in 1929, he did nothing to put into effect the provisions advocated in 1923 against the possibility of a future depression.

Says "Boom" Was Fostered.

"Instead of that, he participated in encouraging speculation, when not only the sound business brains of the country were saying that it should be discouraged, but in spite of the fact that his own report in 1923 said that depressions are certainly in part due to overspeculation. He failed to prepare by positive action against the recurrence of a depression. On the contrary—the exact contrary—he intensified the forces that made for depressions by encouraging speculation.

"He did not do what in his 1923 report he said ought to be done. And on top of that he did what he said ought not to be done.

"We have heard much about fact finding. With all its pretentious belief in facts and figures this administration has largely used the process of fact finding merely to gain time. Usually they get even the facts too late and when they get the facts they misinterpret them.

"What we need in Washington is less fact finding and more thinking.

Relief Called Immediate Need.

"Immediate relief of the unemployed is the immediate need of the hour. But no mere emergency measures of relief are adequate. Our goal, our unremitting objective, must be to secure permanence of employment. Without stability of employment for our workers and without a balanced economy between agriculture and industry there can be no healthy national life.

"We have two problems. First, to meet the immediate distress; and, second, to build upon a permanent basis.

"As to 'immediate relief': The first principle is that this nation owes a positive duty that no one shall be permitted to starve. This means that while the immediate responsibility for relief rests with local, public, and private charity, in so far as these are inadequate the states must carry the burden, and whenever the states are unable adequately to do so the federal government owes the positive duty of stepping into the breach.

Charges Lack of Fairness.

"The present Republican administration early took a position against the frank recognition of this principle. It was only because of the insistence of congress and the unmistakable voice of the people that the President yielded and approved the relief bill this summer.

"Second, in addition to providing emergency relief, the federal government should provide temporary work wherever possible. In the national forests, on flood prevention, and on the development of water-way projects already authorized and planned, thousands can be given at least temporary employment.

"Third, the federal government should expedite the actual construction of public works already authorized. The country would be horrified to know how little construction work authorized by the last congress and approved by the President has already been undertaken. Much of it will not be under way until next summer.

Looking Further Ahead.

"In the field that looks further ahead we call for a coördinated system of employment exchanges, the advance planning of public works, and unemployment reserves. Who, then, is to carry these measures? The first is clearly and inescapably a task of the federal government, although it will require the loyal and intelligent coöperation of state and local agencies throughout the land. To this federal action, therefore, I pledge my administration.

"The second—that of the advance planning of public works—again calls for a strong lead from the government at Washington. I pledge my administration to the adoption of this principle both in the enterprises of the federal government and for the construction within the several states, which is made possible by federal aid, and I shall urge upon state and local authorities throughout the nation to follow this example.

"The third—that of unemployment reserves—must under our system of government be primarily the responsibility of the several states. This, the Democratic platform, on which I stand, makes entirely clear.

"In addition there has been long overdue a reduction of the hours of work and the number of working days per week. The great justifications of modern industry are the cheapening of production and the lessening of the toil of man. These fruits will be dead fruits unless men earn enough so that they can buy things that are produced and have the leisure for the cultivation of body, mind and spirit which the greater inventions are supposed to make possible.

"This means that government must set an example in the case of its own employés. It means also that government must exert its persuasive leadership to induce industry to do likewise.

"Here, then, is a program of long range planning which requires prompt and definite action and the coöperation of federal, state and local governments as well as of forward looking citizens throughout the land. The proposals are specific and far reaching. To advocate a less drastic program would be to misread the lessons of the depression and be indifferent to the country's welfare.

"But there is one final objective of my policy which is more vital, more basic than all else. I seek to restore the purchasing power of the nation. That and only that will put people back to work.

Need Trade with World.

"We need to restore our trade with the world. Under Republican leadership we have lost it and the President of the United States seems to be indifferent about regaining it.

"Moreover, we need to give to fifty million people who live directly or indirectly upon agriculture a price for their products in excess of the cost of production. That will give them the buying power to start your mills and mines to work to supply their needs. They cannot buy your goods because they cannot get a fair price for their products. You are poor because they are poor.

"I favor—and do not let the false statements of my opponents deceive you—continued protection for American agriculture. I favor more than that. I advocate measures to give the farmer an added benefit, called a tariff benefit, to make the tariff effective on his products. The most enlightened of modern American business men likewise favor such a benefit. An excellent example is your own fellow citizen—Mr. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who has recently proclaimed a plan for the restoration of agriculture not unlike my own.

Says Hoover Blocks Hopes.

"President Hoover does not favor a program of that kind. He has closed the door of hope to American agriculture, and when he did that he closed the door of hope to you also.

"He says proudly that he has effectively restricted immigration in order to protect American labor. I favor that; but I might add that in the enforcement of the immigration laws serious abuses have been revealed.

"But he does not tell you that by permitting agriculture to fall into ruin millions of workers from the farms have crowded into big cities. These men have added to unemployment. They are here because agriculture is prostrated. A restored agriculture will check this migration. It will keep these farmers happily at home. It will leave more jobs for you. It will provide a market for your products. That is the key to national economic restoration.

"One word more. I have spoken of getting things done. Now the way we get things done under our form of government is through joint action by the President and the congress. The two branches of government must coöperate. That is necessary under our constitution and I believe in our constitutional government.

"President Hoover cannot get action from the congress. He seems unable to coöperate. He quarreled with a Republican congress and he quarreled with a half Republican congress. He will quarrel with any kind of a congress. He cannot get things done.

"This is something you must consider. The next congress will certainly be Democratic. I look forward to coöperation with it. I am confident that I can get things done through it because for four years I have had to work with a Republican legislature.

Would Work With G. O. P.

"I have been able to get things done in Albany by treating the Republican legislators like human beings and as my associates in government. I have said that I look forward to the most pleasant relations with the next Democratic congress, but in addition to that let me make it clear that on the great majority of national problems, which ought not to be handled in a partisan way, I expect to have pleasant relations with Republicans in the senate and the house of representatives as well as with Democrats.

"We—meaning thereby—the President and the members of both parties in the national legislature will, I am confident, work effectively for the restoration of American economic life.

"I decline to accept present conditions as inevitable or beyond control. I decline to stop at saying, 'It might have been worse.'

"I shall do all I can to prevent it from being worse—but—and here is the clear difference between the President and myself—I go on to pledge action to make things better.

"The nation has the capacity to make things better. The nation wants to make things better. The nation prays for the leadership of action to make things better. That will be shown in every state one week from tomorrow. We are through with delay—through with despair—ready, and waiting for better things."

LAW DECLARES CHECKERS IS A GAMBLING GAME

In spite of the manuals which outline every conceivable series of plays for winning or losing a game of checkers, the law still regards it as a gambling game if prizes are involved, Assistant Corporation Counsel Earle R. Downes yesterday advised Louis B. Scully, 10 West Huron street.

Scully wrote, asking if there would be any legal objection to his opening a checker parlor, where he would take on all comers. His opponents would pay 10 cents a game and receive valuable prizes if they beat him, Scully proposed.

Quoting from a law dictionary which defined a gambling device as "any contrivance or apparatus to determine who is the winner of a chance or contest on which money or any article of value depends," Mr. Downes replied that in his opinion such a checker parlor might be classified as a gambling establishment.

DEMOCRAT FUND PASSES MILLION, REPORT REVEALS

G. O. P. Spends 50 Per Cent More.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Publication today of the Democratic national committee's report on its financial activities in behalf of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket disclosed that up to Oct. 22 it had collected just over a million dollars and expended $926,208. The campaign contributions totaled $769,329, while total receipts, including loans and the Democratic victory fund, amounted to $1,068,854.

As the Republican party had expended close to a million and a half up to Oct. 26, indications today were that the total campaign expenditures for both major parties will run well above 3 million dollars by Nov. 8, when the nation goes to the polls. The Republican collections, as made public Saturday, disclosed receipts of $1,478,791. This figure, representing a considerable increase over Democratic collections, covered four more days of the campaign. The Republican expenditures up to Oct. 26 were $1,454,179.

Later Report This Week.

The Democratic report was filed by Frank C. Walker of New York, Democratic treasurer, with South Trimble, clerk of the house. Another report will be filed the latter part of this week by both national committees.

The bulk of the Democratic money was received after Sept. 1, the report showed, since contributions during the period from June 1 to Sept. 1 amounted to $107,493. During September and October contributions totaled $681,836.

Gov. Roosevelt's campaign tours through the south and west cost approximately $30,000, the report indicated, although exact costs of the speaking trips were not shown and could not be calculated by the figures set forth in the report.

The Chicago citizens' committee, headed by Edward N. Hurley, the report said, turned in $18,000 in full settlement of the $200,000 pledge which was given to bring the Democratic convention to Chicago. Previously, the report showed, the citizens' committee had paid $138,250 of its pledge, leaving a total of $61,750 unpaid on Aug. 1. This was canceled by the $18,000 contibution, leaving $43,750 of the Chicago pledge unpaid.

Baruch Heads Contributors.

The largest individual contribution listed in the report was one of $45,000 from Bernard M. Baruch of New York. Of his total donation, however, $5,000 was to be applied to the committee's $115,250 debt to John J. Raskob. Among other larger contributors were Mr. Raskob, who donated $25,000; W. R. Hearst, $25,000; W. H. Woodin, New York, $20,000; former Senator Peter Gerry, Providence, R. I., $20,000; Percy S. Straus, New York, $15,000; Joseph P. Kennedy, New York, $15,000, and Morton L. Schwartz, New York, $15,000.

Those contributing $10,000 each were as follows: M. Leo Benedum, Pittsburgh; Vincent Astor, New York; R. W. Morison, San Antonio, Tex.; Jesse I. Straus, New York, Democratic committee of New York county; John Nicholas Brown, Providence, R. I.; Thomas Howell, Chicago; Samuel Untermyer, New York; Thomas J. Brimer, New York, and T. E. Bragg, New York.

Among other contributors were Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, $1,000; Chicago City Controller M. S. Szymczak, $100, and Fred Pabst, Milwaukee, $4,000.

CEMETERY UNDER GUARD IN VIENNA; FEAR RIOT TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Oct. 31.—A cemetery is under arms as a result of the constant fighting between Nazis [National Socialists] and Socialists in Vienna. When tens of thousands of Viennese visit the graves of their relatives tomorrow, All Souls day, at Rentral cemetery they will find almost the entire police force of the city on guard.

Despite orders from Emil Fey, minister of public security, Nazis as well as Socialists declared they will visit the graves of their "martyrs," as they call them, in uniform.

Political differences have not recognized even eternity. A fanatic, either a communist or Socialist, today set fire to the grave of Franz Staller, a Nazi, who was shot and killed in a clash a week ago with communists.

THIEVES INVADE PALACE; HUNT FOR HIDDEN TREASURE

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The historic Richmond palace was heavily guarded today following an attempt by thieves to raid the traditional treasure of Henry VII. The treasure includes bullion and jewelry valued at about $10,000,000, which, according to legend, is secreted in a hidden tunnel beneath the palace. The thieves forced an entrance into the palace, which has been empty for some time, and discovered the secret door to Queen Elizabeth's room. They descended into a well, at the bottom of which they removed a ton of earth, revealing a bricked up tunnel wall three feet thick.

SWANSON SCANS MARITAL HISTORY OF SHIRLEY KUB

Suit Reveals Her Married to Two Men at Once.

State's Attorney Swanson began yesterday to delve into the divorce court records to determine the marital status of Mrs. Shirley Kub, who, with Alexander Jamie, is in active charge of the operations of the Secret Six, headed by Robert Isham Randolph. Mrs. Kub formerly was a stool pigeon for the police department. Jamie is a former prohibition agent.

Prosecutor Swanson announced last week that he had taken the offensive against Mrs. Kub, Jamie, and Randolph, "with a view to taking civil and criminal action." His announcement follows charges made against the prosecutor's office.

The records of the Circuit court revealed that Mrs. Kub, according to her own annulment bill, was married to two men—one of them a Negro—at the same time.

Name of Shirley Kub Omitted.

The suit was filed under the name of S. Elizabeth Mueller, against George Mueller. The name of Shirley Kub, by which she has been known in police and underworld circles, was omitted from the bill. It was revealed that Mrs. Kub contracted her second marriage while dodging the special police grand jury. For this she was later sentenced to jail for contempt by Judge John P. McGoorty, whose home was bombed several weeks ago.

In the suit Mrs. Kub said she was married to Mueller in Indianapolis on Feb. 27, 1931. She said that at the time she was married to Ned Ragland, a Negro, but believed her marriage to him was void. On learning, subsequently, that it was still in force, she started action to obtain annulment of her marriage to Mueller. She was married to Ragland on July 19, 1924, her bill says.

Ragland at present is holding a building in Austin, in which he and Mrs. Kub lived. It is reported at the state's attorney's office that Mrs. Kub tried to deprive Ragland of his property rights by getting an annulment of their marriage in Kane county. Ragland told the state's attorney's office that in a few days he would make important disclosures regarding this proceeding.

He Charges Intimidation.

Mrs. Kub, Ragland charges, has tried to intimidate him into leaving the building by sending out city detectives from the Secret Six, working under Mrs. Kub's direction.

Mrs. Kub, testifying before the grand jury last week, denied that she was ever married to Mueller, who is now in a federal penitentiary for transporting stolen automobiles from one state to another. Jamie admitted before the grand jury that he had interceded, without success, to get a parole for Mueller, after which he and Mrs. Kub tried to get affidavits showing that the parole agent, William McGrath, was unfit to hold his job. This effort failed.

Jamie Before Grand Jury.

Jamie was before the jury yesterday to be questioned as to whether he had found any trace of Lester McKeen, who, he said, paid a $100 bribe for secret files from the state's attorney's office. Jamie it was said, failed to report any progress in his quest. It was reported that the jurors ordered Jamie to produce McKeon before Friday, when the term of the present grand jury will end.

After questioning Jamie, Thomas Kinsella, foreman of the jury, made public a resolution by the jury in which it protested against implications of Randolph and Jamie that the jury was being used for political purposes because it called for proof of the charges made by the Secret Six. The resolution follows:

"The regular grand jury serving during the October term hereby declares that all action had in the regular procedure of the business of this jury has been absolutely impartial and without any other influence than the law governing such cases as have been presented.

"We, the members of the grand jury, collectively and individually, deny any influence other than that specifically provided under the law governing grand juries."

Protests Swanson Statement

George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, yesterday issued a statement protesting against Prosecutor Swanson's reference to the Gore audit of the sanitary district as a "whitewash." Edward Gore, head of the auditing concern which made the audit, is a former president of the association. No explanation was forthcoming, however, from either Randolph or the association, regarding Mr. Swanson's charges that Randolph and his business concerns and associates collected more than $100,000 from the sanitary district during the régime of Timothy Crowe.

Zuyder Zee Dike Breaking; Fight to Hold Back Sea

Threaten Disaster

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Oct. 31.—Holland is threatened by a disaster. The giant locks of the new twenty mile dike, which was built at a cost of $60,000,000 in order to reclaim the Zuyder Zee, are breaking. As a result the drainage of the Yssel lake, created by the building of the dike, has been found impossible.

Floods are sweeping the surrounding provinces and causing enormous damage to agriculture. It is feared that the great pressure of the North sea against the dike will cause it to collapse. Dutch engineers are fighting to keep back the seas with vast quantities of material.

Drainage of the Zuyder Zee, an inland sea, was started in 1920. Once completed the project will increase Holland's land area by 552,504 acres. It was estimated that the work would take at least 25 years and that the final cost will be $360,000,000. The dike extends across the neck of Zuyder Zee from the province of North Holland to that of Friesland. It has been decided to stop work on the reclamation at the close of the year because of the lack of funds.

The Zuyder Zee is formed by the southern waters of the North sea. Here are located the lowlands of the Netherlands, which are below sea level. They are protected against inundations by dunes and dikes. The Zuyder Zee is a popular resort for American tourists.

ARRESTS WIFE OF JACK M'GURN IN AUTO CHASE

Mrs. Louise Gebardi, 1114 North Kenilworth avenue, wife of the gangster known as Machine Gun Jack McGurn, was arrested last night by Policeman Russell Gill of Oak Park on a charge of speeding. She was pursued by the policeman into River Forest. He said she was driving at 50 miles an hour. After being booked, Mrs. Gebardi was released on bail. She was formerly Louise Rolfe and was called "McGurn's blonde alibi," because, when murders occurred, the gangster was always able to prove he had been with her. The couple were convicted of violating the Mann act, having made a trip together to Florida before their marriage.

NORTHUP INVITES HIS OPPONENT TO A PHYSICAL TEST

Replies to Hints That He Is "Too Old."

John E. Northup, Republican candidate for Illinois attorney general, yesterday challenged his Democratic opponent, Appellate Judge Otto Kerner, to a corn husking match at the state trials at Monticello next Thursday.

Mr. Northup, speaking before the Chicago Bar association, said he had been "amused" by literature which said he had been sent out by the Kerner forces to indicate that Northup was too old for the position he seeks.

"I am sure that Judge Kerner himself had nothing to do with such intimations," said the speaker. "He has been my good friend for many years and I am sure he has the same regard for me that I have for him. No doubt some of his overzealous followers put out the statement which made my age some five or six years more than it actually is and hinted that the disparity in our ages made him the fitter candidate.

"However, in order to determine whether both of us are in the excellent health which we should be in order to fill the office, I will husk two or three rows of corn at Monticello with Judge Kerner next Thursday and let observers decide who is the better fitted to undergo the strenuous duties of the office of attorney general."

Mr. Northup devoted most of his speech to telling the lawyers about his successful prosecution of T. J. Crowe and others for graft in the sanitary district in the years 1927-'28.

"That trial disclosed waste, extravagance and graft without parallel," he said. "It was shown that almost 1,000 deadheads, many of whom did not even show up at the office for their pay but had it mailed to them, were on the pay rolls.

"Something over two and one-quarter millions of dollars was proved to have been criminally converted."

Mr. Northup said he was confident of victory in the election.

"It would take a Democratic landslide in Illinois to defeat me," he said, "and I know there will not be such a landslide."

CHURCH EDITOR IS GLOOMY ON OUTLOOK IN POLITICAL RACE

A pessimistic view of the alternatives confronting the voters in the coming election was voiced yesterday by Dr. Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century, in an address at the union ministers' meeting at the Central Y. M. C. A. About 300 ministers attended.

"Issues," he said, "are obscure or nonexistent. Politics is steadily on the down grade. Roosevelt was nominated by a deal with Hearst, McAdoo, and Garner as raw as any ever consummated in a political campaign. Among the Republicans the situation is no less noisome to decent minded citizens. President Hoover was renominated in a convention largely composed of postmasters and office holders from the rotten boroughs of the south.

"A sordid dilemma confronts the voters in the governorship campaign. Len Small's election would mark an unconscionable slump in the political life of the state. I do not know a man in public life whose personal honor has been higher than Judge Horner's. If elected, however, he will be but part and parcel of the most stupendous political machine this side of Tammany, Cermak's."

STONE COMPANY SALESMAN IS FRAUD WITNESS

R. R. Mather, a former salesman for H. O. Stone & Co., defunct real estate investment concern, testified yesterday in the federal court of Judge Charles E. Woodward, that Stone officials had assured him several months before the crash that the company was financially sound. Mather, who lives in Richmond, Ind., was called as a government witness against Henry F. Norcott, president of the Stone company, and eight associates on trial on charges of using the mails to defraud.

He testified he sold $75,000 worth of stock, $100,000 in debentures, and $5,000 in bonds of the Lawsonia subdivision, a Stone development. He began to hear rumors early in 1931, Mather said, about the Stone company's financial condition. On April 13, 1930, Mather said he called the financial editor of THE TRIBUNE and inquired about the rumors.

"I was told," he said, "that THE TRIBUNE had heard the rumors and had many inquiries concerning them. The editor said nothing was published because the rumors could not be confirmed at that time."

Mather then sought out Marshall W. George, secretary of H. O. Stone & Co., and Harold D. Bennett, vice president of the company. They told him, Mather said, that the company was sound. To reassure him, the witness said, they showed him an audit which previous testimony showed had been prepared by officials of the company.

18,000 ATTEND STADIUM RALLY OF DEMOCRATS

Speakers Predict Sweeping Victory for Party.

Nearly 18,000 men and women attended a rally in the Chicago Stadium last night to hear Democratic leaders speak for the national, state and local Democratic tickets. It was the largest local Democratic gathering of the campaign.

Mayor Cermak presided. Among those on the speakers' platform were Judge Henry Horner, candidate for governor; Congressman William H. Dieterich of Beardstown, candidate for United States senator; Thomas Courtney, candidate for state's attorney; State Representative Michael L. Igoe, United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Edward J. Hughes, candidate for secretary of state; Edward J. Barrett, candidate for state auditor; Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, and a group of candidates.

Tunney Attacks G. O. P.

Tunney, here from the east especially for this meeting, spoke for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Tunney predicted that beer would be made legal by next June. All speakers predicted the party's overwhelming success.

Tunney attacked the Republican national administration. He asserted that people everywhere are finding fault with it. At the outset he forestalled any friendly attempts to recall the "fourteen count" in his fight here with Dempsey in 1927.

"Let us shoot the administration with the ballot, and they won't get up at the end of fourteen seconds," he said. "It will take them fourteen years to get up."

Mayor Introduces Speakers.

Mayor Cermak introduced several of the speakers. In presenting Igoe, the mayor remarked that "there is no bitterness between Igoe and the party, or between the party and Igoe." Congressman Dieterich predicted his own election and that of Judge Horner. The people downstate are for Horner, he said. Senator Lewis took issue with recent utterances of President Hoover on economy, prohibition and other measures.

Judge Horner made no speech, having delivered addresses earlier in the day and evening. Before going to the Stadium he appeared at a forum at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago with Silas Strawn, Mr. Courtney, State's Attorney Swanson, and others. Nearly 800 university students and neighborhood residents were present. The forum was sponsored principally by the Hyde Park League of Women Voters.

Promises Prompt Action.

In his principal speech of the day, at a noon rally in the Grand Opera house, Judge Horner said that if elected he would not wait for his inauguration to begin work on unemployment relief.

"As soon as it is certain that I am elected governor I shall deal immediately with the situation," Judge Horner asserted. "I canont act officially, but I can act unofficially so that immediate official action can be taken in January.

"What I propose to do is to name immediately a commission which will consider unemployment and unemployment relief, decide on remedial measures, and draft bills which can be discussed publicly between now and January.

Proposes Nonpartisan Board.

"I shall name on that commission men in whom the people of the state have confidence, the leaders of both parties in the legislature, prominent business men, prominent representatives of labor, prominent economists. It is needless to say that the commission will be nonpartisan and the services of its members will be voluntary.

"Such a body can prepare a program which will be submitted to the legislature when it meets in January, and this program, backed as it will be with the weight of crystallized public opinion, the support of the governor, and the support of leaders in both parties of the legislature, can be adopted at once without any of the interminable delays which confront most legislation.

To Use Illinois Coal.

"Not only will all public works that can be engaged in without adding to the burdens of the taxpayers be pushed, but I can guarantee you that while I am governor not a pound of coal will be burned in our institutions that is not Illinois coal, produced by Illinois miners."

ARTHUR ANDERSEN SAYS HORNER IS THE MAN FOR GOVERNOR

BY ARTHUR ANDERSEN.

[Head of Arthur Andersen & Co., accountants]

Governments should not differ from private enterprises in the administration of their affairs by capable leadership.

Judge Henry Horner, Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, is recognized as a jurist of renown, an authority on constitutional law and the science of government, and an executive and administrator of exceptional ability. As judge of the Probate court of Cook county he has set a standard of public efficiency which has attracted nation-wide recognition. His continued reelection to this post by overwhelming majorities since 1914 is an enviable public indorsement of his integrity and ability.

The state of Illinois has its share of responsibility in these times and the people should elect as governor a capable leader with character, strength, training and proved ability to cope with the existing economic and financial problems confronting one of the most important states in the Union. Judge Henry Horner possesses all of the necessary qualifications.

JUDGES INDORSE J. L. JOHNSON FOR CLERK OF COURT

Kewanee Man Is Rival for Appellate Post.

Justus L. Johnson is a candidate for reelection as clerk of the Appellate court of the second district on the Republican ticket. His Democratic opponent is Cletus McGuire of Kewanee.

J. L. JOHNSON.

The district includes thirty-two counties in the northern third of the state with the exception of Cook county, which is the first district in itself. The term of office is six years.

Mr. Johnson lives in Aurora. He is a college and law school graduate and a former newspaper editor. He began his political career as clerk of the Circuit court of Kane county. He is president of the Illinois Mortgage company and a member of the Republican state central committee.

Seven judges who have served in the court during Mr. Johnson's clerkship have commented favorably on his record in the court. Four of the judges are Democrats and three are Republicans. The court in the district consists of three justices appointed by the Supreme court for three year terms.

Judges Sign Testimonial.

The Republicans who signed the testimonial for Clerk Johnson are Chief Justice Oscar E. Heard of the Supreme court, Justice James S. Baldwin of the Appellate court of the Second district, and Augustus A. Partlow of Danville. The Democrats are Justice Norman L. Jones of the Supreme court, Justice John M. Niehaus of the Appellate court of the Third district, and Chief Justice Thomas M. Jett and Justice Fred G. Wolfe of the Appellate court of the Second district.

Mr. McGuire has never before run for office and has held no political position. He is a high school graduate and an undertaker in Kewanee.

BANDS TURN OUT IN G.O.P. RALLY FOR STATE AND COUNTY TICKETS

More than 10,000 Republicans attended a rally for the state and county ticket at the Coliseum last night. Delegations from city wards and country towns, many headed by bands, paraded through the aisles.

The marching, music, and entertainment delayed completion of the speaking program. Presentation of pledge cards to Len Small, candidate for governor, continued until late in the evening so that candidates did not have an opportunity to deliver talks.

In a noon meeting at the Erlanger theater, Harry G. Wright, Republican candidate for state auditor, promised that, if elected, he would seek revision of the state banking laws in order to reduce bank failures. He also spoke for the proposition ballot, drafted by him, to permit receivers of closed banks to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance corporation in order to make payments to depositors immediately.

State's Attorney Swanson, A. W. Komarek, candidate for sanitary district trustee, and Small also spoke at the noon meeting.

RELEASE THREE TAKEN IN HOME LOAN BANK QUIZ

Three men, arrested and questioned on charges that they collected fees from persons desiring to get loans from the Federal Home Loan bank in Evanston, were released yesterday when they agreed to return the fees and abrogate contracts with the prospective borrowers. They are Paul J. Hardt, 11 South La Salle street, and Bert Bristol and Fred H. Van Scyoc, who operate a loan agency at 123 West Madison street. Henry G. Sander, state director of the federal bank, said that Hardt had charged twenty persons $10 each and obtained notes in which they agreed to give him 1 per cent of the loans they succeeded in getting. The home loan bank does not permit any one to solicit fees for getting loans.

Karchmer's Conviction as Charity Racketeer Upset

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday reversed the conviction of Jacob Karchmer, alleged charity racketeer, who was under sentence to two years for using the mails to defraud. Karchmer was convicted by a jury and sentenced by Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle after the Chicago Infants' Free Milk depot, 20 East Jackson boulevard, was raided by federal authorities as a racketeering enterprise. Judge Evan A. Evans, who wrote the opinion of the Appellate court, said the case should not have gone to the jury on the evidence presented.

COUPLE REPORTED NAMED IN BOGAN BOMB TRUE BILLS

True bills were reported voted yesterday by the Cook county grand jury against Herman Kallis and his wife, Gussie, charging conspiracy to bomb the home of Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan, 741 Gordon terrace, on Oct. 22.

Although Prosecutor Harry Ditchburne refused to discuss the grand jury action, it was learned that the true bills were obtained on testimony of Supt. Bogan, four high school principals, and Mrs. Katherine Keeler, handwriting expert of the Northwestern university crime detective laboratory.

The high school principals are Roland Witcraft of the Parker Junior High school, John W. Bell of the Amundsen Junior High school, James T. Gaffney of the Roosevelt High school, and Charles E. Lang of the Kelvyn Park Junior High school. With Supt. Bogan they are said to have testified to receiving threats warning them against continued operation of school lunchrooms. Mrs. Keeler is reported to have told the jurors that the handwriting on a threatening letter received by Supt. Bogan was that of Mrs. Kallis.

Pepsodent Antiseptic makes $1 equal $3 in fighting colds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

FEWER colds this year—quicker relief from those you catch—and money saved besides. That's the promise Pepsodent Antiseptic makes you. Millions by experience can tell you that it's true. Pepsodent is different—widely different—from other leading mouth antiseptics.

$1 does the work of $3

Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs—it goes 3 times as far—gives you 3 times as much for your money and gives you extra protection against sore throat colds. In fighting stubborn colds, remember there really are only two leading kinds of mouth washes on the market. In the one group is the mouth wash that must be used full strength to be effective. In the other group is Pepsodent Antiseptic, utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with 2 parts of water and still kill germs within 10 seconds! That's the difference between Pepsodent and others.

Don't fool yourself

It is bad enough to pay the extra cost of using antiseptics that must be used full strength . . . it's worse to dilute them and fail to kill the germs . . . so choose the antiseptic that kills the germs even when it is diluted. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be sure! Be safe—and save money! Now is a good time to start.

IMPURE BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

HALLOWEEN FUN MAKERS GIVE COPS BUSY NIGHT

Hoodlums Active; Boy Is Killed, Many Hurt.

Carefree children, youths with surplus energy and just plain hoodlums combined their efforts last night to make the Halloween of 1932 one of the busiest for the police of Chicago and the suburbs.

One fatality occurred. Robert Rittenberg, 18 years old, 4435 Manor avenue, a student at the Lake View High school, fell from a street lamp pole at Wilson and Fairfield avenues while trying to unscrew the light bulb. He died of his injuries at the Welles Park hospital.

Several persons were injured during the celebration. Policeman Harry G. Martin, of the west park force, was wounded in a battle with five men in an automobile who refused to obey a command to halt after passing a red light at Kedzie avenue and Palmer street. Martin said that he fired four shots at the men and that five were fired at him. A bullet struck him in the right leg.

Stones Smash Car Windows.

Alex Hadley, 14833 South Campbell avenue, was cut by glass when celebrants tossed stones through the windows of a surface car at 114th street and Vincennes avenue.

Serious interruptions to traffic were caused in various parts of the city. At Fullerton and Avers avenues, on the northwest side, nine surface cars were blocked at one time by a crowd of 2,500 who greased the tracks and then cut the trolley ropes. All the tires of a car line repair truck, sent to aid the crews, were punctured.

There were similar occurrences at Harlem and Grand avenues, and at North and Kedzie avenues. All over the city automobiles and surface cars were bombarded with overripe eggs and tomatoes. Police squads on the northwest side, attempting to break up the disorderly crowds, also were pelted.

Seize Four Throwing Switches.

Four youths were taken into custody after they were discovered throwing switches on the tracks of the Milwaukee railroad at Bloomingdale road and Nebraska avenue. Railroad men said that a wreck might have been caused by their actions.

At 70th place and Hamilton avenue seven box cars on a siding, the property of the B. and O. railroad, were set on fire by vandals. The flames were extinguished by firemen.

False reports of fires and disorders kept the police and fire departments scurrying all night.

Arrest 3 in Evanston.

All policemen in the north shore towns were called to duty. Evanston patrolmen arrested three youths who were found to have broken into an unoccupied house at 2516 Ridgeway avenue and destroyed fixtures after smearing paint on the floor. All are Evanstonians. They are James McKay, 17 years old, 1726 Central street; Joseph Drew, 18 years old, 3206 Harrison street, and Drake Swanson, 18 years old, 2726 Lawndale avenue.

The police were called to the Woman's Christian Temperance union headquarters, 1730 Chicago avenue, Evanston, to remove a dozen empty whisky bottles which had been deposited on the front steps by celebrants.

About a hundred small boys were taken to the police station in Evanston but were released after a lecture. Boy Scouts were active in guarding the street lights.

Mrs. G. E. Kelly Egged.

The usual number of fence breakings, window smashings, and other minor acts of vandalism were reported in Oak Park, Berwyn, Cicero and the other western suburbs. In Lake Forest, Mrs. G. Edward Kelly was called to the door of her home at 800 North Sheridan road and then struck with eggs tossed by small boys.

In the village of Brookfield, to the southwest, 75 per cent of the street lights were broken by hoodlums.

Fifty members of the Young People's Christian union of the Sixth Presbyterian church, 1210 East 62d street, constituted themselves a volunteer force to stop window smashings and other damage and reported they had saved a number of buildings before abandoning their self-appointed task and enjoying themselves with a party in the church.

3 LARGE ELGIN MILK COMPANIES CUT PRICE 2 CTS.

Farmers, Dealers, Drivers to Share in Slash.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Effective this morning, retail milk and cream prices will be lowered 2 cents by the three largest dealers in Elgin. It was announced last night that the reduction was made necessary by "a general lowering of the retail scale" throughout the metropolitan area.

The new retail price of milk delivered in Elgin will be 8 cents a quart instead of 10 cents; pints will sell for 5 cents instead of 6 cents; coffee cream will be 12 cents a half pint instead of 14 cents; and whipping cream 18 cents a half pint instead of 20 cents.

Price Cut by Three Dealers.

The three dealers joining in the reduction—the Modern Dairy company, Inc., Sanitary Dairy Products company, and George E. Anderson—buy their milk entirely from farmers in the Pure Milk association, bargaining agency for nearly all farmers supplying Chicago and sixteen nearby cities. The dealers announced that the farmers, dealers, and drivers would all bear part of the reduction, the exact proportion to be determined later this week.

At the same time, it was said, more farmers are peddling milk to consumers in Elgin than there are drivers for the three large dairies. Another competitive factor, it was said, has been the maintaining of a milk depot in the large plant of the B. S. Pearsall Butter company. Operating on a cash and carry basis, with consumers supplying their own receptacles for dairy products, this company sells milk for 7 cents a quart and coffee cream for 8 cents a half pint.

Drivers Firm Against Pay Cut.

The drop in prices in Elgin was one of the factor in the general milk marketing structure of the Chicago area being studied in a closed meeting of Chicago milk company officials yesterday. They met with representatives of the Milk Drivers' union at the Hotel La Salle and were informed of the drivers' refusal to accept a reduction of pay from $45 a wek to $35. The reduction had been asked by the dealers as part of a plan to lower retail prices in Chicago and suburbs from 11 to 9 cents a quart.

Following the meeting with the union leaders, the dealers held another conference to consider the next step in their efforts to prevent a breakdown in orderly milk marketing in the Chicago area. None of the officials would discuss their plans.

INFORMER NAMES PALS IN SERIES OF BANK HOLDUPS

Michael Sperno, an ex-convict, was arrested yesterday in Chicago by Sheriff E. J. Welter of La Salle county on the charge of participating in the robbery of the First National bank at Ransom a week ago. Sperno is reported to have confessed, naming other members of the Ransom bank gang as participants in 27 other bank robberies in central Illinois and Indiana.

Following his arrest, it was learned that Sperno had informed a Chicago detective agency of the plan to rob the Ransom bank. He refused to tell in what town the robbery was to take place, but told the agency operatives that a big robbery was planned near Streator.

He was sentenced to six years in Leavenworth penitentiary in 1925 for robbing freight cars containing interstate shipments, and after his release from prison became an informer, police said. Five of his alleged confederates in the Ransom robbery, captured a few hours after the holdup, pleaded guilty and are already in prison.

SHOW CHICAGO IS PUSHING RELIEF BOND CAMPAIGN

Its Activities Give Lie to Whispering Campaign.

One of the eleventh hour maneuvers to aid Republican state candidates in downstate territory is a revival of early whisperings that Cook county intends to vote "No" on the $20,000,000 unemployment relief bonds.

The propagandists allege that in this way Cook county, which already has received more than 90 per cent of the relief disbursed under the bond issue plan, hopes to saddle the $20,000,000 on the entire state, thereby imposing on downstate a large part of the burden that should be borne by the county.

The whisperers do not mention that citizens of Chicago and its suburbs have been told that if the bond issue passes the costs of it will be taken from the gas tax receipts and that if it is defeated the resultant increase in taxes in Cook county alone will amount to more than $13,000,000 and the bill of each taxpayer in the county will go up at least one-twelfth next year.

Launch Campaign Here.

They also ignore the fact that the present big campaign for approval of the bond issue proposition was launched in Chicago by Chicago men. Local leaders started into motion the machinery that not only brought state-wide organizations into the campaign but also produced indorsements and active support from scores of organizations in Chicago and Cook county, ranging from the largest business unit, the Chicago Association of Commerce, to neighborhood business organizations and local improvement associations.

Mayor Cermak was one of the first public officials to campaign in behalf of the bonds. He was followed by President Whealan of the county board, County Clerk Sweitzer, County Treasurer McDonough, and a long list of other local officials. Both Republican and Democratic county committees approved the issue and all precinct workers for both parties including those who will man the polls on Nov. 8 have been directed to aid in bringing about approval of the bonds.

Anti-Chicago Propaganda Begins.

The anti-Chicago propaganda, as nearly as can be learned, started immediately after Sept. 23, the day on which Len Small opened his campaign with a speech at Mackinaw Dells, near Peoria. Since that time he has not referred directly to the subject—particularly during his campaigning in Cook county—but his forces, by both the spoken and the printed word, have spread the general message he delivered that day, and, becoming more specific, have centered on the bond issue.

At Mackinaw Dells Small sought to impress his hearers with the belief that if the Democratic nominee, Henry Horner, is elected governor the Chicagoan will proceed to collect more than 300 million dollars from downstate property owners in order to pay off the debts of the Cook county local governments.

He read a long list of those governments and the amounts of their indebtedness, the grand total of which, he said, was $534,014,761. Then, warning his audience of "the greatest danger ever faced by the people of Illinois," Small said that if "Tony Cermak's personally selected ticket" is elected the victors will seize the power of the state and "saddle" on the downstate people the "crushing burdens" of Cook county.

Story Spreads Rapidly.

From that point his campaign workers took up the story and spread it rapidly throughout the state. But, it is said, they found the voters reluctant to swallow the 300 million yarn and before long they switched to the relief bonds. They peddled this assiduously.

This fact was reflected in a special article from Springfield to the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

"Word is being spread," read this message from the central section of the state, "that Chicago will vote 'No' on the bond issue plan or will not vote at all, which is considered just as adverse, and downstate Illinois is redoubling its efforts to gather up its full strength behind the proposition.

"Feeling is intensified because the downstate section has smarted long under the additional tax burden laid on it because of Cook county's tax delinquency."

Incidentally, in reference to the last sentence, it has been pointed out that downstate taxes have not been increased one penny because Cook county is in arrears, due, largely, to a reassessment ordered by a chairman of the state tax commission appointed by Small during his last term.

Small Pay Rollers Helping.

Pointing more directly to the activity of the Small cohorts with this sort of propaganda are recent utterances of downstate newspapers whose owners or editors were on the Small pay roll during his two previous terms as governor. There were scores of them from 1920 to 1928, benefited in salaries for jobs that required no services, or in state printing or advertising.

Allen T. Spivey, owner-editor of the East St. Louis Journal, is one of these. For about eight years he drew $5,000 a year—a total of approximately $40,000—by appointment as an assistant commerce commissioner. During that period he was seldom seen at Chicago or at Springfield when board meetings were in progress, but it was said that in 1921 during the criminal trial of Small at Waukegan he was a frequent Lake county visitor.

In a recent issue of his paper Spivey attacked Chicago as not living up to its agreement with the legislature to support the bonds, and implied that the bond legislation had been "put over" on the assembly.

Assails Distribution.

"The bill went through the legislature hastily," read an article in the Journal, "and many of those downstate members who voted for it now freely acknowledge their mistake. Instead of distributing the funds equitably, 92 per cent of the amount went to Cook county while over half the counties downstate did not receive any of the funds.

[Note—Over half of the counties downstate did not apply for any part of the relief fund. Those that did apply were given allotments and have not complained of mistreatment.]

"The bond issue proposition was worded in such a way as to 'hook' the farmers and business men who keenly feel the effects of the depression and who, if uninformed, will vote against their own interest when they go to the polls. The ballot has been so arranged that persons who are opposed to higher taxes and more obligations will, when voting against the bond issue, vote to nearly double next year's taxes."

And Mr. Spivey ended his article with this sentence:

"Up to this time Chicago has failed to give the measure the support it promised the members of the legislature."

Quotation from Carlstrom.

As a rule, only minor speakers in the Small campaign have charged Chicago with defaulting in its obligation to the legislature, but one exception has been Attorney General Carlstrom, who has been a Small speaker during the campaign. He is quoted as indorsing Small at De Pue, a village in Bureau county, and continuing as follows in reference to the bond issue:

"Their [Chicago's] leaders promised to support a bond issue for 20 million dollars to repay the state treasury by the gasoline tax money from the counties using that money, but those promises up to this time are unfulfilled.

"Those leaders who promised to explain the situation to the electorate and obtain their support for the bond issue are now silent with the result that the money will be collected next year through taxes."

It was the Civic federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, through its executive secretary, Douglas Sutherland, that initiated the campaign for the approval of the bonds last June—not only the Chicago campaign but the state campaign. Sutherland, Victor A. Orlander of the State Federation of Labor, and Earl C. Smith of the Illinois Agricultural association conferred with Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the state Emergency Relief commission. The appointment of a state committee to push the bond issue resulted immediately and the creation of a Cook county committee, headed by Fred W. Sargent, president of the North Western railroad, followed.

Since the initiation of the movement 1,875,000 leaflets explaining that taxes will go up unless the bond issue is approved have been distributed from the offices of the Civic federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, and before election day close to 2,000,000 will have been sent out.

Organizations Supporting It.

These are a few of the local organizations now working for the bond issue:

Chicago Woman's club.
Union League club.
Cook County League of Women Voters.
Cook County Council of Lions.
Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations.
Industrial club.
Commercial club.
Citizens' association.
Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs.
Jackson Park Hotel association.
North Shore Hotel association.
Austin Federation of Clubs.
Ridge Civic council.
Cook County Farm bureau.
Chicago Dental society.
Chicago Real Estate board.
Cook County Real Estate board.
Oak Park Real Estate board.
Chicago Motor club.

And political workers will have 150 leaflets for every precinct in Chicago on election day. Every taxpayer will know that if there is not a "Yea" majority of all the votes cast his taxes will go up.

Miss Morrow and Mr. Morgan met while her father, the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, was attending the London naval conference in 1930. She and her mother had accompanied Senator Morrow to London. Since that time Miss Morrow has visited in England, having passed three months in the summer of 1931 in Europe.

Miss Morrow is the elder daughter of the Morrow family. Her sisters are Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Constance Morrow. Her brother, Dwight Whitney Morrow Jr., is a student at Amherst college.

She is a graduate of Milton academy, Milton, Mass., and of Smith college in the class of '25. She made her debut in 1923. Following her graduation from Smith, Miss Morrow went to Europe and studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and also at the University of Grenoble. BOMB BLINDED BOY STILL HOPES TO PLAY BALL

Wilbur Lee Koeppen, who was permanently blinded on Sept. 20 in a bomb explosion in front of the home of Judge John P. McGoorty, 929 East 45th street, celebrated his 17th birthday yesterday in the Chicago hospital. Apparently unaware that he will never see again, young Koeppen displayed a catcher's mitt given him by his mother and urged his friends to share a birthday cake she had baked.

"I'm getting old," he told physicians and nurses. "I thought I would be able to leave the hospital today but I don't mind. Just so I can leave before the baseball season next spring."

Dr. Lester Frankenstein, attending physician, expressed astonishment at the optimism of the boy and said that he was unable to understand how Koeppen can live in total darkness and not realize that he is blinded. Dr. Frankenstein said Koeppen might be able to go to his home at 4305 Oakenwald avenue at the end of the week. A skin grafting operation to heal a wound in Koeppen's right foot is to be performed Wednesday or Thursday.

FORFEITS $3,500 FRAUD BOND.

PRESIDENT HOOVER WARNS OF PERIL TO AMERICAN SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT

HITS PROPOSALS OF DEMOCRATS AS U. S. MENACE

Urges Nation to Stick to Traditional Rule.

didate and his radical sponsors intended to direct the government.

First—They would expand the expenditures of government by yielding to sectional and group raids. This at a time when the average citizen works 61 days a year for the support of all forms of government, as contrasted with 25 days before the war and 46 days in 1924. He told how passage of the Democratic house program at the last session would have meant 16 more days of work on the part of every citizen to pay for it.

Second—The Democrats, as shown by the house action, would have no qualms about inflating the currency. No candidate in the Democratic party had yet disavowed the 2 billion 300 million dollar greenback bill passed under Speaker Garner's leadership, the President said.

Loan Plan Assailed.

Third—Still under Mr. Garner's leadership, the house had sought to authorize federal loans to any person. In other words, put the government into the personal banking business. That, too, the President said, was included in the "new deal."

Fourth—The Democrats would lower the protective tariff.

Fifth—The government would be put into the power business, starting with Muscle Shoals.

Sixth—On the strength of a recent letter signed by Gov. Roosevelt and promising public works expansion to "provide employment for all surplus labor at all times," the Democrats would engage in a huge and wasteful construction program which would cost nine billions a year to care for 10 million unemployed. It would mean pork barrel legislation and a new and indestructible bureaucracy.

That point went home, as did every other charge that the Democrats were taking political advantage of the depression to delude the unemployed. There was a difference in the applause at those times, though. The cheers were short. The clapping was long.

Stand on Court Attacked.

Seventh—Gov. Roosevelt's Baltimore speech and his reference there to the Supreme court presaged a new concept of political control over the court.

Boos—for Roosevelt—went up and there were shouts of "No," "No."

Eighth — President Hoover quoted from Gov. Roosevelt's San Francisco speech in early October, in which he said, "Our industrial plant is built." He challenged the idea, Mr. Hoover said, that this country had reached the ultimate of its advance and had nothing to do now but consolidate its position.

Following the Madison Square Garden meeting the President drove to Carnegie hall to appear before another 6,000 who had been listening in over amplifiers. Then he went back to his special train and at midnight left for Washington.

Speaks in 4 Other States.

President Hoover campaigned in four other states today on the trail of the eastern electoral vote on his way to New York. He pinned his faith on the tariff in speeches in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. These states with New York have 110 electoral votes.

In Philadelphia more than 35,000 jammed the City Hall square to hear the President. In Newark he rode in a parade and was cheered by thousands. Crowds of 5,000 or more heard him in Baltimore and Wilmington.

TEXT OF HOOVER SPEECH

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—President Hoover's address in Madison Square Garden here tonight follows:

"This campaign is more than a contest between two men. It is more than a contest between two parties. It is a contest between two philosophies of government.

"We are told by the opposition that we must have a change, that we must have a new deal. It is not the change that comes from normal development of national life to which I object, but the proposal to alter the whole foundations of our national life which have been builded through generations of testing and struggle, and of the principles upon which we have builded the nation.

"The expressions our opponents use must refer to important changes in our economic and social system and our system of government, otherwise they are nothing but vacuous words.

"And I realize that in this time of distress many of our people are asking whether our social and economic system is incapable of that great primary function of providing security and comfort of life to all of the firesides of our 25,000,000 homes in America, whether our social system provides for the fundamental development and progress of our people, whether our form of government is capable of originating and sustaining that security and progress.

Nature of Changes.

"This question is the basis upon which our opponents are appealing to the people in their fears and distress. They are proposing changes and so-called new deals which would destroy the very foundations of our American system.

"Our economic system has received abnormal shocks during the last three years, which temporarily dislocated its normal functioning. These shocks have in a large sense come from without our borders, but I say to you that our system of government has enabled us to take such strong action as to prevent the disaster which would otherwise have come to our nation. It has enabled us further to develop measures and programs which are now demonstrating their ability to bring about restoration and progress.

Must Examine Deeply.

"We must go deeper than platitudes and emotional appeals of the public platform in the campaign if we will penetrate to the full significance of the changes which our opponents are attempting to float upon the wave of distress and discontent from the difficulties we are passing through. We can find what our opponents would do after searching the record of their appeals to discontent, group and sectional interest.

"We must search for them in the legislative acts which they sponsored and passed in the Democratic controlled house of representatives in the last session of congress. We must look into measures for which they voted and which were defeated. We must inquire whether or not the presidential and vice presidential candidates have disavowed these acts. If they have not, we must conclude that they form a portion and are a substantial indication of the profound changes proposed.

Examine Proposals of Leaders.

"And we must look still further than this as to what revolutionary changes have been proposed by the candidates themselves.

"We must look into the type of leaders who are campaigning for the Democratic ticket, whose philosophies have been well known all their lives, whose demands for a change in the American system are frank and forceful.

"I can respect the sincerity of these men in their desire to change our form of government and our social and economic system, though I shall do my best tonight to prove they are wrong. I refer particularly to Senator Norris, Senator La Follette, Senator Cutting, Senator Huey Long, Senator Wheeler, William R. Hearst and other exponents of a social philosophy different from the traditional American one.

"Unless these men feel assurance of support to their ideas they certainly would not be supporting these candidates and the Democratic party. If the zeal of these men indicates that, they have sure confidence that they will have voice in the administration of our government.

"I may say at once that the changes proposed from all these democratic principles and ideals are of the most profound and penetrating character. If they are brought about this will not be the America which we have known in the past.

System Being Imperiled.

"Let us pause for a moment and examine the American system of government, of social and economic life, which it is now proposed that we should alter. Our system is the product of our race and of our experience in building a nation of heights unparalleled in the whole history of the world. It is a system peculiar to the American people. It differs essentially from all others in the world. It is an American system.

"It is founded on the conception that only through ordered liberty, through freedom to the individual, and equal opportunity to the individual will his initiative and enterprise be summoned to spur the march of progress.

"It is by the maintenance of equality of opportunity and therefore of a society absolutely fluid in the freedom of movement of its human particles that our individualism departs from the individualism of Europe. We resent class distinction because there can be no rise for the individual through the frozen strata of classes, and no stratification of classes can take place in mass livened by the free rise of its particles. Thus in our ideals the able and ambitious are able to rise constantly from the bottom to leadership in the community.

Willing Coöperation.

"This freedom of the individual creates of itself the necessity and the cheerful willingness of men to act cooperatively in a thousand ways and for every purpose, as occasion arises; and it permits such voluntary cooperations to be dissolved as soon as they have served their purpose, to be replaced by new voluntary associations for new purposes.

"There has thus grown within us, to gigantic importance, a new conception. That is, this voluntary cooperation within the community. Cooperation to perfect the social organization; coöperation for the care of those in distress; coöperation for the advancement of knowledge, of scientific research, of education; for cooperative action in the advancement of many phases of economic life.

"This is self-government by the people outside of government; it is the most powerful development of individual freedom and equal opportunity that has taken place in the century and a half since our fundamental institutions were founded.

Hope Lies in Coöperation.

"It is in the further development of this coöperation and a sense of its responsibility that we should find solution for many of our complex problems, and not by the extension of government into our economic and social life. The greatest function of government is to build up that cooperation, and its most resolute action should be to deny the extension of bureaucracy.

"We have developed great agencies of coöperation by the assistance of the government which promote and protect the interests of individuals and the smaller units of business.

"The federal reserve system, in its strengthening and support of the smaller banks; the farm board, in its strengthening and support of the farm coöperatives; the home loan banks, in the mobilizing of building and loan associations and savings banks; the federal land banks, in giving independence and strength to land mortgage associations; the great mobilization of relief to distress, the mobilization of business and industry in measures of recovery, and a score of other activities, are not socialism—they are the essence of protection to the development of free men.

Conception of Responsibility.

"The primary conception of this whole American system is not the regimentation of men but the coöperation of free men. It is founded upon the conception of responsibility of the individual to the community, of the responsibility of local government to the state, of the state to the national government.

"It is founded on a peculiar conception of self-government designed to maintain this equal opportunity to the individual, and through decentralization it brings about and maintains these responsibilities. The centralization of government will undermine responsibilities and will destroy the system.

"Our government differs from all previous conceptions, not only in this decentralization but also in the separation of functions between the legislative, executive and judicial arms of government, in which the independence of the judicial arm is the keystone of the whole structure.

Protection by Government.

"It is founded on a conception that in times of emergency, when forces are running beyond control of individuals or other coöperative action, beyond the control of local communities and of states, then the great reserve powers of the federal government shall be brought into action to protect the community, but when these forces have ceased there must be a return of state, local, and individual responsibility.

"The implacable march of scientific discovery with its train of new inventions presents every year new problems to government and new problems to the social order. Questions often arise whether, in the face of the growth of these new and gigantic tools, democracy can remain master in its own house, can preserve the fundamentals of our American system.

"I contend that it can; and I contend that this American system of ours has demonstrated its validity and superiority over any other system yet invented by human mind.

Proves Worth in Test.

"It has demonstrated it in the face of the greatest test of our history—that is, the emergency which we have faced in the last three years.

"When the political and economic weakness of many nations of Europe, the result of the world war and its aftermath, finally culminated in collapse of their institutions, the delicate adjustment of our economic and social life received a shock unparalleled in our history.

"No one knows that better than you of New York. No one knows its causes better than you: That the crisis was so great that many of the leading banks sought directly or indirectly to convert their assets into gold or its equivalent, with the result that they practically ceased to function as credit institutions; that many of our citizens sought flight for their capital to other countries; that many of them attempted to hoard gold in large amounts. These were but indications of the flight of confidence and of the belief that our government could not overcome these forces.

"Yet these forces were overcome—perhaps by narrow margins—and this action demonstrates what the courage of a nation can accomplish under the resolute leadership in the Republican party.

Says G. O. P. Bore Burden.

"And I say the Republican party, because our opponents, before and during the crisis, proposed no constructive program, though some of their members patriotically supported ours. Later on the Democratic house of representatives did develop the real thought and ideas of the Democratic party, but it was so destructive that it had to be defeated, for it would have destroyed, not healed.

"In spite of all these obstructions we did succeed. Our form of government did prove itself equal to the task. We saved this nation from a quarter of a century of chaos and degeneration, and we preserved the savings, the insurance policies, gave a fighting chance to men to hold their homes. We saved the integrity of our government and the honesty of the American dollar.

"And we installed measures which today are bringing back recovery. Employment, agriculture, business—all of these show the steady, if slow, healing of our enormous wound.

"I therefore contend that the problem of today is to continue these measures and policies to restore this American system to its normal functioning, to repair the wounds it has received, to correct the weaknesses and evils which would defeat that system.

To enter upon a series of deep changes, to embark upon this inchoate new deal which has been propounded in this campaign, would be to undermine and destroy our American system.

Before we enter upon such courses I would like for you to consider what the results of this American system have been during the last 30 years—that is, one single generation. For if it can be demonstrated that by means of this, our unequaled political, social, and economic system, we have secured a lift in the standards of living and a diffusion of comfort and hope to men and women, the growth of equal opportunity, the widening of all opportunity, such as had never been seen in the history of the world, then we should not tamper with it or destroy it; but, on the contrary, we should restore it, and, by its gradual improvement and perfection, foster it into new performance for our country and for our children.

Number of Homes Increased.

"Now, if we look back over the last generation, we find that the number of our families, and therefore our homes, have increased from sixteen to twenty-five million, or 62 per cent. In that time we have builded for them 15,000,000 new and better homes. We have equipped 20,000,000 homes with electricity; thereby we have lifted infinite drudgery from women and men.

"The barriers of time and space have been swept away. Life has been made freer, the intellectual vision of every individual has been expanded by the installation of 20,000,000 telephones, 12,000,000 radios, and the service of 20,000,000 automobiles. Our cities have been made magnificent with beautiful buildings, parks and playgrounds. Our countryside has been knit together with splendid roads.

"We have increased by twelve times the use of electrical power and thereby taken sweat from the backs of men. In this broad sweep real wages and purchasing power of men and women have steadily increased. New comforts have steadily come to them.

Hours of Labor Decrease.

"The hours of labor have decreased; the twelve hour day has disappeared, even the nine hour day has almost gone. We are now advancing the five day week.

"The portals of opportunity to our children have ever widened. While our population grew by but 62 per cent, we have increased the number of children in high schools by 700 per cent, those in institutions of higher learning by 300 per cent.

"With all our spending we multiplied by six times the savings in our banks and in our building and loan associations. We multiplied by 1,200 per cent the amount of our life insurance.

"With the enlargement of our leisure we have come to a fuller life; we gained new visions of hope, we more nearly realize our national aspirations and give increasing scope to the creative power of every individual and expansion of every man's mind.

Social Responsibility Advances.

"Our people in these 30 years grew in the sense of social responsibility. There is profound progress in the relation of the employer and employed. We have more nearly met with a full hand the most sacred obligations of man—that is, the responsibility of a man to his neighbor.

"Support to our schools, hospitals, and institutions for the care of the afflicted surpassed in totals of billions the proportionate service in any period of history in any nation in the world.

"Three years ago there came a break in this progress. A break of the same type we have met fifteen times in a century and yet we have overcome them. But 18 months later came a further blow by shocks transmitted to us by the earthquakes of the collapse in nations throughout the world as the aftermath of the world war.

"The workings of our system were dislocated. Millions of men and women are out of jobs. Business men and farmers suffer. Their distress is bitter. I do not seek to minimize the depth of it. We may thank God that in view of this storm 30,000,000 still have their jobs; yet this must not distract our thoughts from the suffering of the other 10,000,000.

Distress Endangers Progress.

"But I ask you what has happened. This 30 years of incomparable improvement in the scale of living, the advance of comfort and intellectual life, inspiration, and ideals did not arise without right principles animating the American system which produced them.

"Shall that system be discarded because vote seeking men appeal to distress and say that the machinery is all wrong and that it must be abandoned or tampered with?

"Is it not more sensible to realize the simple fact that some extraordinary force has been thrown into the mechanism, temporarily deranging its operation? Is it not wiser to believe that the difficulty is not with the principles upon which our American system is founded and designed through all these generations of inheritance? Should not our purpose be to restore the normal working of that system which has brought to us such immeasurable benefits, and not destroy it?

Proposals of Opponents.

"And in order to indicate to you that the proposals of our opponents will endanger or destroy our system, I propose to analyze a few of the proposals of our opponents in their relation to these fundamentals.

"First. A proposal of our opponents which would break down the American system is the expansion of government expenditure by yielding to sectional and group raids on the public treasury.

"The extension of government expenditures beyond the minimum limit necessary to conduct the proper functions of the government enslaves men to work for the government. If we combine the whole governmental expenditures—national, state, and municipal—we will find that before the world war each citizen worked, theoretically, 25 days out of each year for the government. In 1924 he worked 46 days a year for the government. Today he works for the support of all forms of government 61 days out of the year.

Destruction of Liberty.

"No nation can conscript its citizens for this proportion of men's time without national impoverishment and destruction of their liberties. Our nation cannot do it without destruction to our whole conception of the American system.

"The federal government has been forced in this emergency to unusual expenditures, but in partial alleviation of these extraordinary and unusual expenditures the Republican administration has made a successful effort to reduce the ordinary running expenses of the government. Our opponents have persistently interfered with such policies.

"I only need recall to you that the Democratic house of representatives passed bills in the last session that would have increased our expenditures by $3,500,000,000, or 37 per cent. Expressed in day's labor, this would have meant the conscription of 16 days' additional work from every citizen for the government. This I stopped.

"Furthermore, they refused to accept recommendations from the administration in respect to $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 of reductions in ordinary expenditures, and finally they forced upon us increasing expenditure of $322,000,000.

Government Expense Reduced.

"In spite of this the ordinary expenses of the government have been reduced upwards of $200,000,000 during this present administration. They will be decidedly further reduced.

"But the major point I wish to make—the disheartening part of these proposals of our opponents—is that they represent successful pressures of minorities. They would appeal to sectional and group political support, and thereby impose terrific burdens upon every home in the country.

"These things can and must be resisted. But they can only be resisted if there shall be live and virile public support to the administration, in opposition to political log-rolling and the sectional and group raids on the treasury for distribution of public money, which is cardinal in the congeries of elements which make up the Democratic party.

"These expenditures proposed by the Democratic house of representatives for the benefit of special groups and special sections of our country directly undermine the American system. Those who pay are, in the last analysis, the man who works at the bench, the desk, or on the farm. They take away his comfort, stifle his leisure, and destroy his equal opportunity.

Issuance of Fiat Money.

"Second. Another proposal of our opponents which would destroy the American system is that of inflation of the currency. The bill which passed the last session of the Democratic house called upon the treasury of the United States to issue $2,300,000,000 in paper currency that would be unconvertible into solid values. Call it what you will, greenbacks or fiat money. It was that nightmare which overhung our own country for years after the civil war.

"In our special situation today the issuance of greenbacks means the immediate departure of this country from the gold standard, as there could be no provision for the redemption of such currency in gold. The new currency must obviously go to immediate and constantly fluctuating discount when associated with currency convertible into gold.

"The oldest law of currency is that bad money drives out the good, for the population—every individual—will hoard good currency and endeavor to get rid of the bad. The invariable effect is the withdrawal of a vast sum of good currency from circulation, and at once the government is forced to print more and more bad paper currency.

Not Disavowed by Candidates.

"No candidate and no speaker in this campaign has disavowed this action of the Democratic house. In spite of this visible experience within recollection of this generation, with all its pitiable results, fiat money is proposed by the Democratic party as a potent measure for relief from this depression.

"The use of this expedient by nations in difficulty since the war in Europe has been one of the most tragic disasters to equality of opportunity, the independence of man.

Personal Banking Business.

"Third. In the last session the congress, under the personal leadership of the Democratic vice presidential candidate and their allies in the senate, enacted a law to extend the government into personal banking business. This I was compelled to veto out of fidelity to the whole American system of life and government. May I repeat a part of that veto message—and it remains unchallenged by any Democratic leader. I said:

"'It would mean loans against security for any conceivable purpose on any conceivable security to anybody who wants money. It would place the government in private business in such fashion as to violate the very principle of public relations upon which we have builded our nation and render insecure its very foundations.

"'Such action would make the Reconstruction corporation the greatest banking and money-lending institution of all history. It would constitute a gigantic centralization of banking and finance, to which the American people have been properly opposed over a hundred years. The purpose of the expansion is no longer in the spirit of solving a great major emergency but to establish a privilege whether it serves a great national end or not.'

"They failed to pass this bill over my veto. But you must not be deceived. This is still in their purposes as a part of the new deal.

Reduction of Tariff.

"Fourth. Another proposal of our opponents which would wholly alter our American system of life is to reduce the protective tariff to a competitive tariff for revenue.

"The protective tariff and its results upon our economic structure has become gradually embedded into our economic life since the first protective tariff act passed by the American congress under the administration of George Washington.

"There have been gaps at times of Democratic control when this protection has been taken away. But it has been so embedded that its removal has never failed to bring disaster. Whole towns, communities, and forms of agriculture with their homes, schools, and churches have been built up under this system of protection.

"The grass will grow in streets of a hundred cities, a thousand towns; the weeds will overrun the fields of millions of farms if that protection be taken away. Their churches and school houses will decay.

"Incidentally, another one of the proposals of our opponents which is to destroy equal opportunity both between individuals and communities is their promise to repeal the independent action of the bipartisan tariff commission and thereby return the determination of import duties to the old logrolling greed of group or sectional interest of congressional action in review of the tariff.

Government in Power Business.

"Fifth. Another proposal is that the government go into the power business. Three years ago, in view of the extension of the use of transmission of power over state borders and the difficulties of state regulatory bodies in the fact of this interstate action, I recommended to the congress that such interstate power should be placed under regulation by the federal government in coöperation with the state authorities.

"That recommendation was in accord with the principles of the Republican party over the past 50 years, to provide regulation where public interest had developed in tools of industry which was beyond control and regulation of the states.

"I succeeded in creating an independent power commission to handle such matters, but the Democratic house declined to approve the further powers to this commission necessary for such regulation.

"I have stated unceasingly that I am opposed to the federal government going into the power business. I have insisted upon rigid regulation. The Democratic candidate has declared that under the same conditions which may make local action of this character desirable, he is prepared to put the federal govenrment into the power business.

Supporters for It.

"He is being actively supported by a score of senators in this campaign, many of whose expenses are being paid by the Democratic national committee who are pledged to federal government development and operation of electrical power.

"I find in the instructions to campaign speakers issued by the Democratic national committee that they are instructed to criticize my action in the veto of the bill which would have put the government permanently into the operation of power at Muscle Shoals with a capital from the federal treasury of over $100,000,000. In fact, 31 Democratic senators, being all except 3, voted to override that veto.

"In that bill was the flat issue of the federal government permanently in competitive business. I vetoed it because of principle and not because it was especially the power business.

"From their utterances in this campaign and elsewhere we are justified in the conclusion that our opponents propose to put the federal government in the power business with all its additions to federal bureaucracy, its tyranny over state and local governments, its undermining of state and local responsibilities and initiative.

Federal Work for Unemployed.

"Sixth. I may cite another instance of absolutely destructive proposals to our American system by our opponents.

"Recently there was circulated through the unemployed in this country a letter from the Democratic candidate in which he stated that he 'would support measures for the inauguration of self-liquidating public works such as the utilization of water resources, flood control, land reclamation, to provide employment for all surplus labor at all times.'

"I especially emphasize that promise to promote 'employment for all surplus labor at all times.' At first I could not believe that any one would be so cruel as to hold out a hope so absolutely impossible of realization to these 10,000,000 who are unemployed. But the authenticity of this promise has been verified. And I protest against such frivolous promises being held out to a suffering people. It is easily demonstrable that no such employment can be found.

"But the point I wish to make here and now is the mental attitude and spirit of the Democratic party to attempt it. It is another mark of the character of the new deal and the destructive changes which mean the total abandonment of every principle upon which this government and the American system is founded.

Would Cost 9 Billions.

"If it were possible to give this employment to 10,000,000 people by the government, it would cost upwards of nine billion dollars a year.

"The stages of this destruction would be first the destruction of government credit, the value of government securities, the destruction of every fiduciary trust in our country, insurance policies and all. It would pull down the employment of those who are still at work by the high taxes and the demoralization of credit upon which their employment is dependent.

"It would mean the pulling and hauling of politics for projects and measures, the favoring of localities, sections, and groups. It would mean the growth of a fearful bureaucracy which, once established, could never be dislodged.

"If it were possible it would mean one-third of the electorate with government jobs earnest to maintain this bureaucracy and to control the political destinies of the country.

Statements Not Consistent.

"Incidentally, the Democratic candidate has said on several occasions that we must reduce surplus production of agricultural products and yet he proposes to extend this production on a gigantic scale through expansion of reclamation and new agricultural areas to the ruin of the farmer.

"I have said before, and I want to repeat on this occasion that the only method by which we can stop the suffering and unemployment is by returning our people to their normal jobs in their normal homes, carrying on their normal functions of living.

"This can be done only by sound processes of protecting and stimulating recovery of the existing economic system upon which we have builded our progress thus far—preventing distress and giving such sound employment as we can find in the meantime.

Attitude on Supreme Court.

"Seventh. Recently, at Indianapolis, I called attention to the statement made by Gov. Roosevelt in his address on Oct. 25 with respect to the Supreme court of the United States. He said:

"'After March 4, 1929, the Republican party was in complete control of all branches of the government—executive, senate and house, and, I may add for good measure, in order to make it complete, the Supreme court as well.'

"I am not called upon to defend the Supreme court of the United States from this slurring reflection. Fortunately, that court has jealously maintained over the years its high standard of integrity, impartiality, and freedom from influence of either the executive or congress, so that the confidence of the people is sound and unshaken.

"But is the Democratic candidate really proposing his conception of the relation of the executive and the Supreme court? If that is his idea, he is proposing the most revolutionary new deal, the most stupendous breaking of precedent, the most destructive undermining of the very safeguard of our form of government yet proposed by a presidential candidate.

"Eighth. In order that we may get at the philosophical background of the mind which pronounces the necessity for profound change in our American system and a new deal, I would call your attention to an address delivered by the Democratic candidate in San Francisco early in October.

"Our Industrial Plant Built."

"He said: 'Our industrial plant is built. The problem just now is whether under existing conditions it is not overbuilt. Our last frontier has long since been reached. There is practically no more free land. There is no safety valve in the western prairies where we can go for a new start. . . . The mere building of more industrial plants, the organization of more corporations, is as likely to be as much a danger as a help. . . . Our task now is not the discovery of natural resources or necessarily the production of more goods; it is the sober, less dramatic business of administering the resources and plants already in hand . . . establishing markets for surplus production, of meeting the problem of underconsumption, distributing the wealth and products more quitably, and adopting the economic organization to the service of the people.'

"There are many of these expressions with which no one would quarrel. But I do challenge the whole idea that we have ended the advance of America, that this country has reached the zenith of its power, the height of its development.

Counsel of Despair.

"That is the counsel of despair for the future of America. That is not the spirit by which we shall emerge from this depression. That is not the spirit that made this country. If it is true, every American must abandon the road of progress and unlimited opportunity.

"I deny that the promise of American life has been fulfilled, for that means we have begun the decline and fall. No nation can cease to move forward without degeneration of spirit.

"I could quote from gentlemen who have emitted this same note of pessimism in economic depressions going back for 100 years. What Governor Roosevelt has overlooked is the fact that we are yet but on the frontiers of development of science, and of invention.

"I have only to remind you that discoveries in electricity, the internal-combustion engine, the radio—all of which have sprung into being since our land was settled—have in themselves represented the greatest advances in America. This philosophy upon which the governor of New York proposes to conduct the presidency of the United States is the philosophy of stagnation, of despair. It is the end of hope. The destinies of this country should not be dominated by that spirit in action. It would be the end of the American system.

Progress of Generation.

"I have recited to you the progress of this last generation. Progress in that generation was not due to the opening up of new agricultural land; it was due to the scientific research, the opening of new inventions, new flashes of light from the intelligence of our people. These brought the improvements in agriculture and in industry.

"There are a thousand inventions for comfort in the lockers of science and invention which have not yet come to light; all are but on their frontiers.

"As for myself, I am confident that if we do not destroy this American system, if we continue to stimulate scientific research, if we continue to give it the impulse of initiative and enterprise, if we continue to build voluntary coöperative action instead of financial concentration, if we continue to build it into a system of free men, my children will enjoy the same opportunities that have come to me and to the whole 120,000,000 of my countrymen.

"I wish to see American government conducted in this faith and in this hope.

Growth of Bureaucracy.

"If these measures, these promises which I have discussed, or these failures to disavow these projects, this attitude of mind, mean anything, they mean the enormous expansion of the federal government; they mean the growth of a bureaucracy such as we have never before seen in our history.

"No man who has not occupied my position in Washington can fully realize the constant battle which must be carried on against incompetence, corruption, the tyranny of government expanded into busines activities.

"If we first examine the effect on our form of government of such a program, we come at once to the effect of the most gigantic increase in expenditures ever known in history. That along would break down the savings, the wages, the equality of opportunity among our people. These measures would transfer vast responsibilities to the federal government from the states, the local governments, and the individuals.

"But that is not all; they would break down our form of government. Our legislative bodies can not delegate their authority to any dictator, but without such delegation every member of these bodies is impelled in representation of the interest of his constituents constantly to seek privilege and demand service in the use of such agencies. Every time the federal government extends its arm 531 senators and congressmen become actual boards of directors of that business.

Capable Men Impossible.

"Capable men cannot be chosen by politics for all the various talents required. Even if they were supermen, if there were no politics in the selection of the congress, if there were no constant pressure for this and for that, so large a number would be incapable as a board of directors of any institution.

"At once when these extensions take place by the federal government, the authority and responsibility of state governments and institutions are undermined. Every enterprise of private business is at once halted to know what federal action is going to be. It destroys initiative and courage.

"We can do no better than quote that great statesman of labor, the late Samuel Gompers, in speaking of a similar situation:

"'It is a question of whether it shall be government ownership or private ownership under control. If I were a minority of one in this convention I would want to cast my vote so that the men of labor shall not willingly enslave themselves to government in their industrial effort.'

Question of Being Liberal.

"We have heard a great deal in this campaign about reactionaries, conservatives, progressives, liberals, and radicals. I have not yet heard an attempt by any one of the orators who mouth these phrases to define the principles upon which they base these classifications.

"There is one thing I can say without any question of doubt—that is, that the spirit of liberalism is to create free men; it is not the regimentation of men. It is not the extension of bureaucracy.

"I have said in this city before now that you cannot extend the mastery of government over the daily life of a people without somewhere making it master of people's souls and thoughts.

"Expansion of government in business means that the government in order to protect itself from the political consequences of its errors is driven irresistibly without peace to greater and greater control of the nation's press and platform. Free speech does not live many hours after free industry and free commerce die.

"It is a false liberalism that interprets itself into government operation of business. Every step in that direction poisons the very roots of liberalism. It poisons political equality, free speech, free press, and equality of opportunity. It is the road not to liberty but to less liberty.

True Liberalism for Liberty.

True liberalism is found not in striving to spread bureaucracy but in striving to set bounds to it. True liberalism seeks all legitimate freedom first in the confident belief that without such freedom the pursuit of other blessings is in vain. Liberalism is a force truly of the spirit proceeding from the deep realization that economic freedom cannot be sacrificed if political freedom is to be preserved.

"Even if the government conduct of business could give us the maximum of efficiency instead of least efficiency it would be purchased at the cost of freedom. It would increase rather than decrease abuse and corruption, stifle initiative and invention, undermine development of leadership, cripple mental and spiritual energies of our people, extinguish equality of opportunity, and dry up the spirit of liberty and progress.

"Men who are going about this country announcing that they are liberals because of their promises to extend the government in business are not liberals; they are reactionaries of the United States.

For Protection of Resources.

"And I do not wish to be misquoted or misunderstood. I do not mean that our government is to part with one iota of its national resources without complete protection to the public interest. I have already stated that democracy must remain master in its own house. I have stated that abuse and wrongdoing must be punished and controlled. Nor do I wish to be misinterpreted as stating that the United States is a free-for-all and devil-take-the-hindermost society.

"The very essence of equality of opportunity of our American system is that there shall be no monopoly or domination by any group or section in this country, whether it be business, sectional or a group interest. On the contrary, our American system demands economic justice as well as political and social justice; it is not a system of laissez faire.

"I am not setting up the contention that our American system is perfect. No human ideal has ever been perfectly attained, since humanity itself is not perfect. But the wisdom of our forefathers and the wisdom of the 30 men who have preceded me in this office hold to the conception that progress can only be attained as the sum of accomplishments of free individuals, and they have held unalterably to these principles.

"In the ebb and flow of economic life our people in times of prosperity and ease naturally tend to neglect the vigilance over their rights. Moreover, wrongdoing is obscured by apparent success in enterprise. Then insidious diseases and wrongdoings grow apace.

Men, Not Institutions, Fail.

"But we have in the past seen in times of distress and difficulty that wrongdoing and weakness come to the surface and our people, in their endeavors to correct these wrongs, are tempted to extremes which may destroy rather than build.

"It is men who do wrong, not our institutions. It is men who violate the laws and public rights. It is men, not institutions, which must be punished.

"In my acceptance speech four years ago at Palo Alto I stated that:

"'One of the oldest aspirations of the human race was the abolition of poverty. By poverty I mean the grinding by under nourishment, cold, ignorance, fear of old age to those who have the will to work.'

"I stated that:

"'In America today we are nearer a final triumph over poverty than in any land. The poorhouse has vanished from amongst us; we have not reached that goal, but given a chance to go forward, we shall, with the help of God, be in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation.'

Reaffirms Statement.

"Our Democratic friends have quoted this passage many times in this campaign. I do not withdraw a word of it. When I look about the world even in these times of trouble and distress I find it more true in this land than anywhere else under the traveling sun. I am not ashamed of it, because I am not ashamed of holding ideals and purposes for the progress of the American people.

"Are my Democratic opponents prepared to state that they do not stand for this ideal or this hope? For my part, I propose to continue to strive for it, and I hope to live to see it accomplished.

Land of Ordered Liberty.

"My conception of America is a land where men and women may walk in ordered liberty, where they may enjoy the advantages of wealth not concentrated in the hands of a few, but diffused through the lives of all; where they build and safeguard their homes, give to their children full opportunities of American life; where every man shall be respected in the faith that his conscience and his heart direct him to follow; where people secure in their liberty shall have leisure and impulse to seek a fuller life.

"That leads to the release of the energies of men and women, to the wider vision and higher hope; it leads to opportunity for greater and greater service, not alone of man to man in our country, but from our country to the world.

"It leads to health in body and a spirit unfettered, youthful, eager, with a vision stretching beyond the farthest horizons, with an open mind, sympathetic and generous. But that must be builded upon our experience with the past, upon the foundations which have made our country great. It must be the product of our truly American system."

ILLINOIS TO HEAR HOOVER FRIDAY ON MIDWEST TRIP

President Will Speak in Springfield, St. Louis.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

President Hoover will renew his invasion of the middle west with an address at Springfield Friday afternoon. Republican national headquarters in the Palmer house last night sent out the following announcement:

"President Hoover will leave Washington on Thursday, Nov. 3, for a western trip on which he is scheduled to make two major addresses.

"The first of these will be at Springfield, Ill., at the state arsenal Friday afternoon, Nov. 4. The second will be delivered at St. Louis Friday night."

Word from the east later was that the President had tentatively planned to make the trip to Illinois and Missouri, the first leg of a swift swing across the country which would land him and Mrs. Hoover in their home at Palo Alto, Cal., about noon on election day. This trip, if definitely decided on, would give them the opportunity to vote in their home polling place.

Claim Even Break in Illinois.

The announcement of plans for the Hoover trip to Illinois and Missouri trod on the heels of claims set up at Palmer house headquarters that an upset in sentiment in the last two weeks has now given Hoover at least an even break with Roosevelt in Illinois. Pressures had been renewed to get the President into Illinois, and the state leaders held that the state capital was the most effective place for an address.

Chicago they held, is rapidly veering to Hoover. The speeches delivered in the industrial centers have had a great influence in shaping sentiment in the metropolitan centers, they argued, and if the President appeared at Springfield instead of in Chicago it would be made the occasion for a great outpouring from rural Illinois.

"Tide Running for Hoover."

With a concentration on the middle west, Republican national managers declared that the tide is now running strongly Hooverwards and that the final week of the campaign will give the President victory over Roosevelt on Nov. 8.

At the national headquarters reports from scouts led the party leaders to declare that the corn and wheat belt as well as the industrial centers, has seen a great change in sentiment during the last fortnight, as indicated by straw votes here and there. They predicted that the closing days of the campaign would see a redoubled drive for the agricultural and industrial vote in the area which was the birthplace of the Republican party and normally has been a Republican stronghold.

A growing alignment of voters for Hoover for President and Horner Democrat, for governor was reported by party scouts.

Change in G. O. P. Reports.

Three weeks ago the Republican state politicians held that Hoover was weaker than Small, the G. O. P. candidate for governor, and that the Democrats stood to carry the state by 150,000 and upwards. Now they hold that Hoover is far stronger than Small, who is proving a load on the state ticket, while Judge Horner is drawing more strength than is Roosevelt.

The Democrats, on the other hand, say they see no reason for changing earlier forecasts of a Democratic landslide in Illinois, similar to the one of two years ago.

Iowa is claimed by the Republican managers who insist a great change in sentiment has occurred in the agricultural regions. National headquarters also declares that Kansas is "safe for Hoover."

Michigan, one of the G. O. P. birthplace states and a Republican stronghold, is regarded as doubtful, but the party managers are relying upon its inherent Republicanism to drop it in the Hoover bag.

Indiana Also in Doubt.

By some observers returning from trips, Indiana is held to be in worse shape for the Republicans than is Michigan. As to Ohio, they report it looks much as in 1916 when it was the keystone in the Democratic strategy east of the Mississippi.

From Wisconsin appeals for a Hoover visit came from party leaders who argued that the situation would be benefited by a trip similar to that in 1916 by Hughes when he went up the Lake Michigan shore to Green Bay and down the Fox River valley.

Republican claims of a switch to Hoover in Missouri during the last week or two are reflected in the billing of the President for a speech Friday night at St. Louis. Up in Minnesota, which is conceded by one and all to be in a bad way for the Republicans, pressures are being renewed for a presidential speech in Minneapolis or St. Paul.

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

Republican national headquarters in the Palmer house put out the following: "James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, until nine years ago was a star salesman [and according to Chicago brokerage offices is still a substantial shareholder] of the United States Gypsum company. But here's how the gypsum offices and plants voted on a straw poll: Hoover, 192; Roosevelt, 31; Thomas, 17."

Ex-Senator James A. Reed of Missouri is to speak for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt at a luncheon at the Congress hotel Thursday under the auspices of the Roosevelt Business and Professional league. Reed's theme will be prohibition.

Frank S. Regan is to make his only campaign speech in Chicago tonight in the Capitol building, State and Randolph streets. He is the Prohibition party candidate for Vice President.

That the Cook county coroner's office should set up a Scotland Yard is the contention of Dr. Joseph C. Ross, Republican candidate for coroner. "Crime detection," he says, "is still in the stool pigeon stage. We have the scientific crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university which has been maintained by Burt Messee at a cost of $200,000, yet the city has hardly ever availed itself of its services which can be had by the coroner free of charge."

President Hoover's labor record is being urged as a reason why industrial workers should vote for him in a statement from Thomas E. Burke, a lifelong Democrat, who is secretary treasurer of the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters of the United States. So reads a bulletin from Republican national headquarters.

Republican headquarters gave out returns from a straw vote taken at the University of South Dakota—Hoover, 380; Roosevelt, 288; Thomas, 64; Mahatma Gandhi, 1.

The National Federation of Colored Farmers in session at Memphis, Tenn., wired Republican headquarters it has pledged itself to work for President Hoover.

Republican Chairman Sanders put out returns from straw votes in 47 colleges compiled by the Daily Princetonian of Princeton university: Hoover, 29,289; Roosevelt, 18,212; Thomas, 10,470; Foster, 715. Hoover carried 31 of the 47 colleges.

Congressman Carl R. Chindblom of the Evanston district is to make three speeches for Hoover in Iowa this week. He has spoken in every Republican national campaign since the McKinley-Bryan fight in 1896.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, pioneer suffragist, will make what she terms the first political speech of her life in a national radio broadcast from New York tomorrow. Although she organized the suffrage movement in Iowa in 1890 and spent many years campaigning, her address on behalf of President Hoover will be her first partisan talk, she says.

SLAYING MOTHER TO HOSPITAL; IS MENTALLY ILL

Charleston, Ill., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Acting upon the advice of doctors Coles county authorities today permitted Mrs. Inez Steed Carrell, held for slaying her three children, to be removed from the county jail to a Charleston hospital.

Two special deputies were assigned to keep vigil at the woman's bedside to prevent escape or self-destruction.

Authorites announced that Chicago friends of the 29 year old mother, who admitted drugging and drowning her young children "as the easiest way out," had advanced sufficient funds for two weeks' hospital care.

Dr. R. H. Craig, attending physican at the jail, and Dr. Orlando H. Scott, Chicago alienist, who examined the distracted woman last week, declared today that constart confinement might cause her to become insane and recommended the hospital. Dr. Scott described Mrs. Carrell as "mentally ill, but legally sane."

Before she was removed from jail, Mrs. Carrell was joined by Mrs. Fern Stansberry of Charleston, who had been employed to be her companion and to divert her thoughts from herself.

ECONOMIST SAYS EMPLOYMENT IN CANADA BETTER

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Statistics showing a rise in employment in Canada since Aug. 1 were made public today by Prof. Gilbert Jackson, University of Toronto economist.

Employment in all trades except building showed improvement in the past three months, Prof. Jackson's figures indicate. Using average conditions during the 1925-29 five year period as the base of 100, the figures show that employment on Aug. 1 stood at 76.2, on Sept. 1 at 77.4 and on Oct. 1, 78.8. On the same basis a boom peak of 114.1 was reached in September and November of 1929.

In February, 1922, during the post-war depression, Prof. Jackson's report said, employment stood at 78.8, the same level as on Oct. 1 this year.

COMMUNISTS USE AMPLIFIER TO BOO HOOVER, CHIEF SAYS

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 31.—(AP)—William B. Mills, superintendent of police, in charge of the police arrangements on President Hoover's visit to Philadelphia today, said he blamed a group of communists for "booing" during the time Mr. Hoover was at Reyburn Plaza.

"The few communists were in such a position," Mills said, "that their voices went directly into the amplifying system and the boos sounded as though many persons were uttering them, while, as a matter of fact, they were only a handful."

DISABLED VETS FIRST CHARGE ON U. S., HOOVER SAYS

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—President Hoover told a delegation of disabled veterans whom he received at his hotel tonight that "the day will never come when this country is too poor or too niggardly to take care of those disabled in battle."

To the delegation, several hundred in number, in the roof garden of the Waldorf Astoria, the President said:

"I saw the last war. I know the sacrifice made by men who went to the world war. The men who were disabled have owing to them a larger consideration than is payable by money.

"The day will never come when this country is too poor or too niggardly to take care of those disabled in battle.

"It is a first charge not alone on our money but on our sympathy. That charge has never been questioned."

After these remarks the President retired to his suite to rest for his Madison Square Garden campaign speech.

He was applauded as he concluded his talk to the veterans.

HOOVER FIGHTS FOR VICTORY IN EMPIRE STATE

His Speech in New York Expected to Help.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 31.—That President Hoover can carry New York, with those 47 electoral votes that are essential to his reelection, is becoming more and more doubtful.

There is abundant evidence that the President has gained ground since he began putting his case before the voters. There is reason to believe that his speech in New York City tonight will make him more votes.

But few of the Republican leaders I have talked with all the way from Manhattan to Lake Erie entertain any substantial hope that he can change enough votes to insure his victory in New York. It seems to most of them like a superhuman undertaking which only a miracle could bring to a successful conclusion.

See Falling Off in Vote.

In the eastern headquarters of the party I heard one of the Republican managers, a veteran campaigner, express the fear that the President had embarked too late on his intensive drive for victory. All the way across the state I heard Republican leaders admit that a great falling off in the Republican vote of upstate New York is in prospect, despite all the efforts to turn the tide the President can possibly put forth.

They do not expect Gov. Roosevelt to carry Republican upstate New York, but they fear Hoover will not win it by enough of a margin to overcome the majority Roosevelt will get in New York City. The Democratic leaders profess to be highly confident of capturing the Republican upstate territory this time, as they did for their state ticket in 1930, and thereby swell the 800,000 plurality which they think they foresee for Roosevelt in the greater city. Time was when the metropolis went Republican regularly in national elections. Hughes, Harding, and Coolidge carried it. Smith, however, took the city away from the Republicans in 1928 by a 400,000 margin only to be overwhelmed by the Republican vote up state.

Urge Support of Hoover.

Republican leaders everywhere tell pretty much the same story. Business and professional men are conspicuously supporting the President and exerting their influence with their employes to vote for him. But among the unemployed workers in the cities, the small tradesmen in the towns and the discontented farmers there are tens of thousands of Republicans who are going to vote for Roosevelt or for Thomas or not vote at all.

These are the elements of the electorate that are blindly striking at the party in power as the supposed author of their ills. In addition there are the dry Republicans of upstate New York who have turned against the President with the feeling that he deserted the prohibition cause when he inspired the modification plank of the Chicago platform and then went the party one better in his acceptance speech in repudiating the 18th amendment. These irreconcilable drys who have been sufficiently numerous in the past to defeat Republican candidates for governor and senator are going to vote the Prohibition party ticket this time or not vote at all.

Tammany Machine Busy.

It is a formidable array of political conditions that the President is up against in this state. On the one hand is the Republican organization upstate, weakened by the defection of Republican voters and by factional strife between the old guard leaders, who wanted anybody but Hoover in 1928, and the Hoover "boy scouts" by whom they were supplanted at the instance of the President. On the other hand is the Tammany machine and its allied organizations in the greater city which circumstances have made a more potent force in this election than ever before and which apparently are going to deliver an enormous vote to Roosevelt.

Tammany, besmirched by the revelations of corruption made by the Hofstadter committee under the direction of former Judge Seabury, and Boss Curry, whose tenure as Tammany leader was endangered by the fall of Jimmie Walker, who made him leader, are seeking a vindication in the shape of an election of Surrogate O'Brien to the mayoralty by a stupendous majority. They are moving heaven and earth to get out an enormous vote in the city.

City Registration Heavy.

The registration speaks volumes for the efficiency of the Democratic machine. In New York City the registration is 2,339,617, an increase over 1928 of 310,000. The comparison of the registration in the Democratic city and in the Republican upstate region is illuminating. In the upstate counties 3,009,596 voters were registered, an increase of only 153,834 over four years ago.

Although Tammany cordially dislikes Roosevelt it is exerting no influence to bring about any wholesale knifing of his candidacy, according to leaders in the organization. They explain that Tammany regards it a dangerous practice to encourage ticket scratching. It is simpler and safer to inculcate the habit of voting the ticket straight among the tens of thousands of illiterates who would merely spoil their ballots if they attempted to scratch.

It is not possible to vote the ticket straight with a single cross in the circle. On the New York ballot it is necessary to mark a choice under the heading of each office voted for. The star is the Democratic emblem appearing beside the name of each Democratic candidate. The Tammany instructions are to mark every star on the ballot.

Tammany After Every Vote.

If Tammany were to undertake a wholesale knifing of Roosevelt, Edward J. Flynn, Bronx leader and Roosevelt appointee to state office, could retaliate with a serious knifing of O'Brien. And Tammany needs every vote it can get for O'Brien to make its vindication more impressive. It thus falls out that Tammany, much as it dislikes Roosevelt, is compelled to go the whole distance for him in this election.

As a matter of fact, Tammany is well satisfied with the situation as it has turned out, well content to let Roosevelt carry New York, if he can, and is preparing to claim much credit for the result. Tammany has come off much better than seemed possible a few weeks ago. Then it looked as if Tammany would be under fire in this election as never before, with the scandals of the Seabury exposure being ventilated by every Republican candidate.

But Curry engineered a deal with the Republican leaders whereby both organizations indorsed for judgeships a son of Max Steuer, Tammany man, and Senator Hofstadter, Republican chairman of the committee that turned up the Tammany scandals. Thus, Hofstadter, who could have made things hot for Tammany on the stump, was silenced. What looked like another deal was the nomination by the Republican machine of a weak candidate for mayor who has been silent on the Tammany scandals.

Donovan Silent, Too.

Equally silent on this logical subject of Republican attack is Wild Bill Donovan, Republican candidate for governor. Donovan is silent because as a Catholic he hopes to win the votes of Tammany Catholics, who are not disposed to support the Jewish Democratic candidate, Col. Lehman, whom Curry unsuccessfully opposed for the nomination. Altogether Tammany is getting off scot free.

British "Hunger Army" Ready to Invade Commons Today

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—London police are preparing for the possibility of new rioting by British unemployed tomorrow night when an effort will be made by the leaders of the "hunger marchers" to invade the house of commons to demand a hearing of their grievances.

W. A. L. Hannington, communist leader of the "hunger marchers," who came here from all parts of England, Scotland, and Wales, announced this afternoon that he would lead a deputation of fifty men to parliament tomorrow evening about 7:30 o'clock. It is illegal for any procession to approach within a mile of parliament while it is sitting or for any street meeting to be held within that distance.

Carries Million Signatures.

According to Hannington, he will present a demand with a million signatures for abolition of the "means test" from the dale system and restoration of reductions in government and to the unemployed.

John McGovern, Labor party leader from Glasgow, told the house of commons today that the "hunger army" leaders had refused to rely on a petition to the house to receive a deputation, but "preferred to rely on their mass strength to force parliament to receive them."

McGovern said he is convinced that the leaders do not want to be received, adding that he felt certain that the rank and file resented this loss of opportunit.

There were no disorders today. Police courts this morning heard testimony against several men arrested as a result of yesterday's rioting in Trafalgar square.

Spanish Jobless Riot.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 31.—Ten persons were wounded today in a clash between unemployed and police in Santander, Spain, according to reports received here from Madrid. The jobless, who were marching through the streets of the town, fled before a volley of bullets from police guns, the dispatch said. The demonstration was organized to protest against the city's method of distributing relief.

Canadians Attack City Hall.

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 31.—An attack by a band of unemployed on the city hall today was broken up by a police charge. Several persons were knocked down, but no one was seriously injured.

MACHINE GUN BANDITS LOOT MICHIGAN BANK

Monroe, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Six men, carrying submachine guns in an auto believed to have an Illinois license, held up the First National bank of Monroe. After stealing $40,000 they shot one policeman and escaped.

At noon, with dozens of pedestrians at the scene, four robbers entered the bank, ordering the employes, including women, to lie on the floor. They stole paper currency from the vault, which they forced Roy Meyers, assistant cashier, to open, leaving about $17,000 behind.

Policemen William Lynch and Chas. Knuth responded to a phone call and drove to the bank with the siren of their car screaming. A burst of machine gun fire greeted them, smashing the windshield of their car and wounding Lynch in the head and right arm. He fell to the floor of the car and the other policeman, blinded by glass fragments, was unable to return the fire.

Plans Radio Car Patrol.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Oscar G. Olander, commissioner of public safety, today announced a plan to patrol Michigan's southern boundary line with almost 20 radio equipped cars in an effort to halt an epidemic of bank robberies by gangs from other states. As many as possible of the state police autos will be withdrawn from the northern parts of Michigan.

Norris Asks South Dakotans to Re-elect Senator Norbeck

Redfield, S. D., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska today addressed to farmers through Senator Peter Norbeck's home offices here an appeal to keep Norbeck in office. Norris' telegram, given out here, said:

"I most heartily indorse Senator Norbeck for reelection. His defeat would mean a step backward. It would especially be a blow to those who have fought for farm relief. Senator Norbeck has been one of the leaders in that fight and I cannot conceive that farmers of South Dakota should not stand by him."

BERLIN IGNORES PLEA TO EXTEND ARMS HOLIDAY

Demands Recognition of Equality Claim First.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Indications that Germany may be willing to return to the world disarmament conference at Geneva are continuing, although today brought no concrete developments in that direction.

Everything depends upon recognition by the other powers of Germany's demand for arms equality, the issue which caused her withdrawal from the conference some weeks ago. Until the powers are willing to recognize that claim, it was said today, the government will not reply to a query from the league of nations as to whether Germany will participate in an extension of the one year arms holiday which expires tomorrow.

Praises Work of Davis.

The semi-official weekly Diplomatisch Politische Korrespondenz today printed an editorial warmly praising the work of Norman H. Davis, American disarmament representative whose activities have been followed with keen interest by the German press.

It is to the credit of the American government, said the paper, that it has "returned again and again with unflagging courage to the attempt to remove deep-rooted European prejudices and to save the disarmament conference. Germany's policy in this respect agrees entirely with the American. One feels apprehensions, however, lest the American initiative be shipwrecked on artificial rocks."

No Provision for U. S. Aid.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—(AP)—There is no provision in the new French plan for disarmament and security for contribution by the United States of armed forces to assist a nation which is the victim of aggression, a government spokesman said today.

Nevertheless, France hopes that America may subscribe to some form of international engagement for consultation in the event that peace is menaced, and also that when an aggressor nation is determined the United States will refuse to trade with that nation. The newspaper Echo de Paris said such an agreement would mean acceptance by America of a European blockade against the aggressor.

When Premier Herriot referred to American guarantees last week in outlining the new plan in the chamber of deputies he was alluding, the spokesman said, to Secretary of State Stimson's interpretation of the Kellogg pact and to the conviction in France that hereafter the United States will not be disinterested in aggressive wars and will do nothing to hinder the operation of any peace machinery which may be set up in Europe.

U. S. Favors French Scheme.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—American reaction to the new French disarmament proposals was described today as very friendly by Undersecretary of State William R. Castle. He said that while the department had not received a complete text of the French plan he was satisfied it would have no effect on the size or makeup of the American army as now constituted.

Mr. Castle said that it was his understanding that the plan for substituting conscript armies for professional standing armies applied only to continental Europe. He said that he did not believe that Europe would ask the United States to establish a conscript army. Mr. Castle expressed the opinion that the French plan would fit into the Hoover program for cutting armaments about one-third below the present levels.

The undersecretary said that he did not know exactly what Premier Herriot of France expected of the United States in the way of security. State department officials said reports from Paris indicated that the French government would not ask the United States to sign a new agreement binding us to consult with other signatories of the Kellogg pact in event of threatened war. The state department's optimism was not shared by war and navy department experts. The general opinion of this group was that the new plan represented a compromise between the diplomatic and military groups in France which would not be acceptable to other European powers.

J. D. PURCELL JR. CALLED A TOPER IN DIVORCE SUIT

Mrs. Charlotte Picher Purcell filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Superior court against Joseph D. Purcell Jr., charging him with habitual drunkenness. Her petition stated that he became addicted to liquor shortly after their marriage on Sept. 12, 1930, and persisted in his use of it until she left him on Oct. 3 of this year.

Their marriage was one of the events of the 1930 social season. Purcell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Purcell, 1320 State parkway. His wife is the daughter of Oliver S. Picher, 226 Sheridan road, head of the Eagle Picher Lead company.

Six weeks ago Purcell filed a petition in the Superior court to change his name, but withdrew it later.

SIMPSON GIVES WELFARE FUND 7 MONTHS' PAY

$98,587 Donation to Aid Former Employes.

James Simpson, chairman of the boards of the Commonwealth Edison company, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company, and their subsidiary corporations, yesterday gave his entire salary from those positions since he took office on June 6 up to Dec. 31, to charity. His donation was announced by Robert A. Gardner, director of the $7,500,000 campaign of the Emergency Welfare Fund of Cook County, Inc.

JAMES SIMPSON.

Mr. Simpson's donation amounted to $98,587.70. Mr. Gardner announced. His only deduction from the compensation he received before turning it over to the welfare fund was for federal income tax. The income tax law limits deductions for gifts to 15 per cent of income.

The gift brought the total of preliminary subscriptions to the welfare fund to $1,300,651.70. The fund is being raised to finance welfare work other than unemployment relief this winter.

Aids Former Employés.

"This gift is made in recognition of the fact that the present emergency has brought great distress to many of the former employés of these companies," Mr. Gardner said, "and Mr. Simpson has expressed the wish that so far as practicable his contribution be used for their relief."

In the field of unemployment relief, the Cook county agents of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission prepared yesterday to start today issuing new orders for perishable food to the unemployed. A fifty per cent reduction in the value of such orders, effected last month because of lack of funds, will be abrogated this month, commission officials announced.

Also, officials of the commission and its chief agent, the county bureau of public welfare, called upon Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, to request an immediate audit of the books of the highway department to determine what funds are available for diversion from the county's receipts of the state gas tax to relief. This diversion was made possible by a recent act of the legislature. Mr. Whealan promised prompt action.

"We are allocating a sum to the bureau of public welfare that will carry it only to Nov. 15," said Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the relief commission. "By that time we shall expect the county board to have made available any funds that remain of the county's share of the gas tax."

Other county agencies were allocated sufficient funds to carry them through the month, Mr. Ryerson announced.

Give Fresh Milk Daily.

Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare, made public the manner in which food is supplied to the unemployed. Communist agitators have listed among their "demands" one that all relief be in the form of cash. The system now in use, Mr. Moss said, is to supply each family with a rations box of staple food once a month, to deliver fresh milk daily and to issue two grocery orders a month, with which the families can purchase perishable foods.

The staple groceries average 15 per cent of the total cost of food relief, Mr. Moss said; milk costs on the average 35 per cent, and the grocery orders average 50 per cent. The staple grocery cartons are prepared under the direction of Dr. Adelaide Spohn, whose services are loaned by the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund. She is a diet expert.

The food cartons have been standardized into 38 separate types suitable for from one person to six or more, and are intended for various types of families: general, Negro, northern Italian, Jewish and Polish, Sicilian and Mexican. In the class for six or more persons there are nine cartons which range in price from $4.79 to $4.21.

Average Monthly Aid $24.

The total monthly expenditure for relief, including clothing and fuel, averages about $24 for each family.

Silas H. Strawn, attorney, has indorsed the $20,000,000 state relief bond issue as the only means of averting a heavy increase in real and property taxes, it was announced yesterday by Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the Cook county committee working for passage of the issue. It will be voted upon in referendum at the general election on Nov. 8.

COUNTIES IN INDIANA AND OHIO GET R. F. C. RELIEF ADVANCES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Indiana and Ohio today received emergency relief advances totaling $812,240 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The Indiana loan, amounting to $247,200, was granted, the corporation said, to provide relief in St. Joseph county and South Bend. Ohio received $565,040 for relief in Stark county, Columbus, and Dayton.

Data supporting the Indiana application, according to the corporation, indicated that inability to sell bonds of St. Joseph county has created an immediate emergency in the county and in South Bend. It was also stated, the corporation said, that the community chest in South Bend has raised $75,000 more in 1932 than in the previous year in an effort to meet its own relief needs.

Indiana has received no relief funds from the federal agency prior to today.

Of the total advanced to Ohio $170,000 will go to Stark county, $282,000 to Columbus, and $112,500 to Dayton, according to the announcement. The corporation said it had been advised that "every effort is being made to meet the relief problem in these Ohio political subdivisions, but that the amounts requested for the respective communities are beyond what can be provided locally."

The corporation has previously advanced $5,049,222 to Ohio and several communities in the state.

The corporation also announced today that 231 loans totaling $829,118 have been made to farmers and stockmen through its agricultural credit corporations during the first three weeks of their operation.

ATTEMPT TO ROB EXCLUSIVE HOME; FOILED BY SCREAM

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 31.—(AP)—An attempted robbery of the home of Robert J. Hart in the fashionable Brentwood Heights district failed today and one of three holdup men was captured when screams of Mrs. Hart routed them.

Two officers in a passing radio police car, hearing the screams, saw two men flee from the house and with the aid of neighbors cornered Charles Liggers, 28, in an alley and forced him to surrender. His two companions escaped.

A police report said the men encountered Mrs. Ida Gafner, a maid, at the back door and demanded money. Mrs. Hart saw them through a window and ran screaming for help.

Reports that the men had threatened to kidnap Mrs. Hart's 2 year old son were denied by Hart tonight.

AUTO KILLS OFFICIAL.

Fairfield, Ill., Oct. 31.—(AP)—L. C. Draper, chairman of the Wayne county board of supervisors, died Saturday of injuries suffered in an automobile accident Friday night. Draper's car crashed into a bridge.

JOBLESS PARADE IN LOOP; MAYOR HEARS DEMANDS

Relief Pleas Are Made in Orderly Demonstration.

Hunger marchers, the estimates of their numbers ranging from 5,000 to 10,000, paraded in an orderly manner through loop streets yesterday and presented to Mayor Cermak demands for an increase in relief funds and a reorganization of relief administration to give the unemployed more of the necessities of life.

The mayor told the delegation of thirty who appeared in his office that he was sympathetic and was doing all he could to relieve distress, but declined to sign a recommendation of the committee of unemployed. He approved their plan in principle, he said, but was not satisfied with the working details.

Offers an Appointment.

Mr. Cermak told Raymond Sanford, chairman of the committee, that he would appoint as a member of the Chicago emergency commission, which is to conduct a campaign against tax strikers, any person approved by the unemployment groups as a whole.

Following this visit the committee went to the county building, where its members were met by Mrs. Grace Fleming, county commissioner, who agreed to present their petitions to the county board.

The main body of the marchers, which probably numbered about 6,000, braved the cold and the rain to gather and walk in the parade. Although there were a number of Red banners and even of soviet Russian flags displayed, the communist element was apparently outnumbered. The majority marching apparently were striving only to get a hearing on their needs.

Parade Is Peaceable.

Policemen had been concentrated along the line of march to prevent any possible disorder, but there was no trouble. One communist agitator, who climbed to a post on Michigan avenue to display the hammer and sickle emblem of Moscow, climbed down again when a detail of policemen approached.

After leaving the city hall the marchers collected in Grant park. Here the Red influence was more pronounced and the professional agitators were more in evidence. Hearers were urged to unite under the communist organization and fight for relief. After an hour of speechmaking the crowd dwindled to about 1,000.

A police permit for the parade and the Grant park demonstration had been issued and traffic was halted in Michigan avenue and the loop streets. The paraders gathered in three sections on the north, south, and west sides, a junction being effected at Randolph and Franklin streets.

Call for Full Rations.

Among the demands of the paraders were a resumption of full ration distribution, recently cut 50 per cent; cash allowance of $7.50 weekly to couples and $5 to single workers; stopping of evictions for nonpayment of rent; free gas, water, and electricity; free carfare for the unemployed; free dental and medical service and a public works program to build homes for the out of work.

There was some complaint among the marchers that members of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission were not present at headquarters to receive their demands. E. L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the commission, said these demands had already been received.

INHALES GAS; DIES IN HOSPITAL.

Gustave Hollegcha, 54 years old, inhaled gas yesterday in his home at 2220 South Kedvale avenue and died several hours later in the county hospital.

BEG YOUR PARDON

An item yesterday stated that John McGuire was arrested on a charge of murder at 5137 Lowe avenue. The address should have been 5134 Lowe avenue. The house at 5137 is occupied by the family of Simon Joseph Armstrong and no one there was connected with McGuire in any way.

It is made with an amazing new-type shortening (manufactured exclusively for use in Bisquick) which still keeps fresh and sweet when old-type shortenings turn rancid.

Then, too, the "knack" or "trick" of perfect biscuits is made into Bisquick. By a remarkable new process which mixes the shortening into the dry ingredients (something few women ever learn to do) about ten times more perfectly than human hands can do.

"Kitchen-tested" for uniformity of results under the direction of the noted Gold Medal Cooking Authority, Betty Crocker, Bisquick brings you perfect biscuits every time.

Based on an historic Southern recipe, every Bisquick you make is an exquisite adventure in deliciousness.

LEN SMALL'S RECORD.

As candidate of the Republican party organization, nominated at the party primary of last April, Mr. Len Small invites the voters of Illinois to return him to the office of governor which he held from 1921 to 1928 inclusive. His appeal is based upon what he offers as his record and upon the argument that the election of his opponent, a resident of Chicago, would mean the domination of the public affairs of the state by sinister influences which Mr. Small alleges will control him.

The best answer to the latter appeal is in the character and public service of Judge Horner, to which we have already paid tribute.

As to the record of Mr. Small upon which he purports to stand for restoration to public office, his main reliance is upon the highway construction during his governorship. As an earlier champion of road building in Illinois than Len Small, a champion before the automobile had waked the farmers of this state to the importance of good transportation, a champion when expenditure on highway improvements was begrudged or refused and there was nothing to be gained, politically or otherwise, by the championship, THE TRIBUNE cannot be honestly charged with a failure to appreciate the blessing of modern highway development.

Nothing has added more to the satisfaction of living in Illinois than this development, but it was initiated and launched not by Len Small but by Frank Lowden, in whose term as governor the first 270 miles of the 4,800 mile system he planned were built, and the first great bond issue, of sixty million dollars, was passed. Unhappily for the people of Illinois Mr. Lowden retired from office and was succeeded by Len Small at a time when all the state was clamoring for roads and no consideration of abuses was listened to or tolerated. This was Len Small's opportunity. It did not ripen until 1924, when Small was about to run for reëlection. In that year the department speeded up and 1,018 miles of modernized roads were built, not according to any logical plan of development for maximum need and use, but where they would return the maximum political profit to Len Small. Small was reëlected by a grateful if not farsighted electorate and once reëlected proposed a new bond issue, one of one hundred million dollars, although there were still two-thirds of the previous sixty million issue unexpended.

Indignant protest appeared. "There is no reason," said the Citizens' association, one of the most responsible and respected of civic organizations, "to expect that a state administration which has shamelessly manipulated the state's present road building for political purposes will be any more scrupulous if intrusted with the great additional weapon which it seeks." But roads had been built where they would do Small the most good and representatives who would not obey Small found their districts left out in the cold. Although bankers, business men and civic leaders had pointed out that funds unexpended from the sixty million issue were available to complete the 3,056 miles still to be built under the road plan for which the issue was voted, and warned against engulfing the state further in debt, Small wanted more. So he asked for a 2 cent tax on gasoline. He got it. His political leverage was irresistible and Small got his additional hundred million and his gas tax. With it Small went on to build his power, and it is his power today, a power of political extortion and corruption exploiting an overwhelming and justifiable demand for modernized communications.

Thus a great good was achieved in spite of the evils to our public life, the injustices, and the economic wastes which unnecessarily accompanied it. Small asks gratitude today for doing a good thing in the worst way. There was no opposition to road building anywhere, though Small pretended there was to cover his own abuse of power. The great system was a certainty and in the hands of a faithful public servant it would have been built so that it would today serve better the needs of the people than our system as it exists. At this time the people burdened by taxes for unproductive expenditures may be ready to see that the cost of parasitic politics, of political wastes and abuses, must be paid by them in the end and that it is cruelly high when hard times come. They may be ready to see the fraud of Small's claims to gratitude and refuse to give back to him the opportunity to betray them again. The improvement and maintenance of highways is a major duty of our state government, but it should be carried on with faithful regard for the greatest benefit to all our people, and not as a means of political profit to political bosses and their favored henchmen.

THE INDIVIDUAL VERSUS THE STATE.

Socialistic programs put forth by radicals who will not mount the ramparts behind the Socialist party leaders include many items for the protection of the aged, the infirm, the unemployed, and various other persons unable to provide for their own sustenance. In a socialistic state these persons are wards of the general fund, although no one is able as yet to show how sufficient funds can be accumulated and maintained for such purposes. Unemployment insurance, for instance, breaks down when the need for it becomes real. It is possible to figure out a charge on industry and wages which might provide something less than three months' protection, but that is, of course, merely incidental, and such relief is ordinarily within the capabilities of the individual himself. When any long stretch of unemployment, such as the present, is considered, all the schemes break down as unworkable.

In the individualistic world the average prudent person endeavors to make provision for the years in which he may be unproductive. His scheme may also break down under an accumulation of misfortunes or under one or two hard blows of tough luck. His protection takes the form usually of investments. He buys securities or real estate. His old age provision is found in dividends, interest, or rents. If his judgment has been good and if the organizations in which he has put his money are able to operate with a profit his future is secure.

The state, urged by the radicals to provide the individual with benefits and protection from expropriated money which cannot be obtained in sufficient amounts without breaking down the resources relied upon for it, is seldom solicitous for the agencies which could provide the security if they were allowed to function without government interference.

Rentals become precarious because real property has its profits taxed out of it. Insurance, the greatest refuge of people who cannot gather fortunes in their active days, is disturbed because of taxes on the enterprises such as the railroads in which its surplus is invested. Dividends recede or disappear because the government interferes with the profit making of the great corporations which it regulates.

Capitalism, if not tied up and starved by socialism, offers the means by which prudent people can hope to make their productive years provide against their misfortunes, infirmities, and days of enforced leisure. Socialism, making this workable scheme precarious, offers in exchange only its illusions that out of its drains upon private enterprise can come a scheme requiring no individual responsibility, no consideration for the probabilities of the future, and no reliance upon self. The most superficial recognition of human tendencies would condemn these Utopian dreams, but nevertheless the effort to materialize them proceeds, to the demoralization of the sound system which will work when it is allowed to.

OLD TEAMS AND NEW.

An old physical trainer of Princeton athletes, retiring, said that the boys these days did not have the stamina and endurance of boys of an older generation. He didn't know exactly why, but he thought the conveniences and luxuries of modern life had something to do with it. The boy who drove his car was not quite the man the boy who walked had been.

Every one is familiar with the old timers who look back at the virtues of a golden age, and we know this always has been and expect that it will always be. Probably the Princeton old boy would have been less dubious about the present if he had waited to see an underdog Princeton team get very rough with the Michigan team Saturday and nearly take it into camp. Some sports do not permit the competition of the new style with the old. Jack Dempsey could never box John L. Sullivan. The Princeton team of 1932 cannot play Gerry Cochran's stem winders of '96. Where competitive records are comparable, as in the case of track and field events, the new boys constantly outdo the old, owing largely to perfected methods of training and the greater skill which has been given the athletes by many years of experiment.

Football today at least can show lineups which for size, weight, and brawn are superior to the boys of the so-called heroic age. Yale's '88 eleven is still regarded as one of the country's all-time all-Americans. It was captained by Corbin and its record was 698 points to 0 in thirteen games. Pudge Heffelfinger was one of the guards and Alonzo Stagg was one of the ends. These Neanderthalers averaged 163 pounds. In 1909 Ted Coy's Yale line averaged nearly 200 pounds. So much for comparisons.

Editorial of the Day

DEMOCRATS AND HARD TIMES.

[Commercial and Financial Chronicle.]

In view of the renewed uneasiness abroad created by the President's remarks and which uneasiness fortunately has now again in great measure been relieved, there has been a further outcropping of talk in this country to the effect that the accession of Gov. Roosevelt and the Democratic party to control at Washington would mean a new series of calamities for the country. There has even been talk of the precipitation of another panic, and the weakness in the stock market on several days this week may be ascribed in large part to such talk, bear operators using it as material to further their onslaughts on the market. All the President's recent speeches and addresses have been directed towards creating a belief that though things may have been intolerably bad during the last three years, they may easily be rendered a great deal worse, and that if the voters choose to put the Democrats into control they run a good chance of having it worse.

Many of the President's most ardent supporters go a great deal further and seek to instill a feeling of fear in the minds of the voters. For ourselves we have no patience with tactics of this kind. Without wishing to express a preference for either one of the two candidates [and the editor of this paper is not yet entirely clear as to how he shall cast his personal vote], we have no hesitation in saying that things will go on pretty much the same whichever candidate is elected, and we still believe that things will improve after the election, whatever the outcome—this irrespective of the merits of the two candidates—our conclusion resting largely on the fact that industrial paralysis is now so nearly all complete and business so nearly at a complete standstill that greater activity must ensue in the near future no matter what happens. Perhaps this activity would be greater and come quicker under the leadership of one man than under that of the other, but it would seem that greater activity there must be in any event. In the meantime there is no basis for any calamity talk. As for staging a panic, before or after the election, there should be no room in decent society for any one capable of such an act.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Here to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

BOY SCOUT reports to us that he went to a movie show Sunday night and in the weekly review of the news Mr. Hoover appeared on the screen. There were a few faint hand claps in the way of applause, but many more boos and hisses. Next Mr. Roosevelt came on the screen. Same. Faint hand claps, much stronger boos and hisses. Score, a tie. We do wish some news of the day, week or minute, that puts pictures of current happenings on the silver sheet, would follow the pictures of the two regular candidates with a picture of Norman Thomas and Comrade Foster in action to see how they would be greeted. Great Scott, the sovereign voters must be for somebody!

No, then it would want to go lower than it did in the time of the Pharaohs. What's the use?

LEARNING.

Whatever the Hereafter offer,
Though little or great its worth,
I cannot go higher nor lower
Than I have done on earth.

For I've taken life as I found it,
And it's taught me all too well:
It is Love that builds your Heaven,
It is Love that digs your Hell.

Surely Death will not take it amiss
If I doubt he can teach me more than this!

AND WHILE WE REMAIN as firmly rooted as the Rock of Gibraltar against the return of the old time saloon we would like to see the return of the old time saloon's free lunch counter. Ah, how we would like to go into Ed Keglar's place again and buy a big brimming goblet of real beer for five cents [one nickel, half a dime] and then arming ourselves with one of Ed's famous long tined forks harpoon a big piece of cheese, a couple of slices of rye bread and half a bologna sausage. And we would keep on harpooning until the bartender said: "Hey, young fellow, how much you expect to eat fer five cents?" Then all we had to do to keep on munching the glorious viands was to buy another nickel glass of lager. Those were, indeed, the happy days! And on Thursday Ed served turtle soup. But why speak of such things now? To think of that turtle soup is to weep. Ah, memories, memories! The unemployed didn't march around in those days. They were all standing in front of the free lunch counter.

SCARLET FEVER.

THERE are those who think of scarlet fever as a trifling disease unworthy of consideration. They have been told that while it is still fairly prevalent it has become extremely mild. Most vital statistics show that only one person dies from scarlet fever for each one hundred who have the disease.

In at least one study an effort was made to get track of all the very mild cases—those that have little more than a sore throat and practically no eruption; those that are so free from symptoms that they do not take to the sick bed. Many of these cases are called stomach rashes, few are seen by physicians, and most of them are not reported to the health department or to school authorities. When these very mild ones were added to the official list of scarlet fever cases the death rate—what is called the case fatality rate—fell to about one in five hundred.

But the death rate of a disease may be low without making it unimportant. Other consequences need to be considered. In Durand hospital the physicians have rather specialized on scarlet fever for more than twenty years. They have made several discoveries during the course of this experience. One is that scarlet fever is caused by a certain kind of streptococcus. Using this coccus, they have made a vaccine to protect against the disease, and an antitoxin to cure it. They require their nurses and physicians to be tested for susceptibility to scarlet fever periodically, and to be vaccinated against it. When this policy was begun the institution was accustomed to a good deal of scarlet fever among the members of the staff. Now there is practically none. With respect to diphtheria they followed a like policy and with even better results.

One of their observations relates to the probability of complications from scarlet fever. During fifteen years, in spite of the best hospital care, 14 per cent of all the scarlet fever children have developed disease of the middle ear. Impaired hearing is very apt to follow as a consequence of this. Eleven per cent of them have developed some form of arthritis, and 7 per cent some form of nephritis. In addition there have been cases that have had sore throats, boggy tonsils, and enlarged glands in the wake of fever.

Intelligent effort to avoid scarlet fever because of the tendency to after effects and the tendency for cases to become carriers, the duration of illness and isolation, exclusion from school and work, and the social and domestic upset it causes are additional reasons for this policy.

NOT TOO LOW.

Mrs. E. P. R. writes: I am 44 years old and my blood pressure is 116. Is that too low for good health?

2. What makes my chin itch at times? There is no eruption.

3. Is there a chance of eating too much fruits and vegetables? My weight remains the same, but will those things cause low blood pressure and thin blood?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. There are many causes of itching.
3. Theoretically, yes. Practically, no.

MAY NEED OPERATION.

Mrs. M. writes: I had an X-ray of my right shoulder, which showed I have sub-deltoid bursitis, due to calcium in the system. It is in the form of an irregularly calcified sheet of varying thickness. Would you kindly let me know what is the cure, and what kind of a diet one should have? My doctor told me to have an operation and save the calcium removed. I have heard that this is unnecessary.

REPLY.

You are not likely to get rid of the calcareous bursa except by operation. However, sometimes the pain and disability subside even though the lime remains. Diet will not affect this condition. The bursa was disordered before the lime was deposited there.

LEAVE THEM ALONE.

J. J. B. writes: What is the best course to follow with moles and warts? I have a number of them. What is the treatment?

REPLY.

Leave them alone. Use no treatment.

TRANSFER OF OWNERSHIP.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. "A" bought a mortgage on a residence through a bank [now closed] and now wishes to convey the legal ownership of this mortgage to "B." 2. Is the present holder of the notes, etc., the legal owner of the mortgage? 3. Is a conveyance necessary to transfer ownership to "B," or [4] is it sufficient to merely turn the papers over to "B"? 5. If a conveyance is necessary, what legal form should be used? F. A. F.

1. A mortgage proper is a conveyance of a real estate title to a creditor as security for a loan. This form of security has in this locality been largely superseded by the trust deed in which the title is conveyed to a third party as security for the holder of promissory notes.
2. In general yes, in either case.
3. No, in the case of the trust deed. In the case of the mortgage an assignment would be necessary.
4. See preceding answers.
5. Same.

PERSONAL INJURY.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I was injured Aug. 30, 1932, while on duty at my place of employment. The injury caused me to be at home totally disabled for exactly three weeks. 1. On Oct. 8, 1932, I received a check from the company which paid me only one-half of my salary for the time lost. 2. Please state whether I am entitled to full wages under the compensation laws. J. M. S.

1. This was correct.
2. No. The compensation act provides: "If the period of temporary total incapacity for work lasts for more than six working days, compensation shall be paid equal to fifty percentum of the earnings, but not less than $7.50 nor more than $15 per week, beginning on the eighth day of such temporary total incapacity and continuing as long as the temporary total incapacity lasts, but not after the amount of compensation paid equals the amount which would have been payable as a death benefit. Provided, that in the cases where temporary total incapacity for work continues for a period of four weeks from the day of the injury, then compensation shall commence on the day after the injury."

UNPAID TAXES.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I owe taxes for 1930 on a lot. 1. Will I lose the property? 2. What would you advise me to do about it? 3. Can it be sold for taxes without notification? 4. Could I buy it back? J. B.

1. You are permitted two years from a tax sale in which to redeem. At the end of the two years a tax deed would issue which would be a serious cloud on your title.
2. Ordinarily it is for the property owner's interest to pay his real estate taxes.
3. The statute does not require notice, but it is the ordinary practice to give notice.
4. See 1.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 1, 1916.

LONDON.—The battle that has been in progress in the Szurduk pass region on the Rumanian - Transylvanian frontier has ended in a brilliant victory for the Rumanians, according to a wireless message from Bucharest. The Austro-German forces, it is declared, have been repulsed from the frontier, after having lost much artillery and many prisoners. Along the whole front of the Transylvania Alps on the northern Rumanian border the Teutonic lines have been taken by the Rumanian attack, the dispatch adds.

PARIS.—On the Macedonian front, west of Lake Presba, both the French and Serbians have made further progress, the war office announced. The French took possession of Singieri monastery. British aircraft bombarded important enemy depots at Demir-Hissar. North of Lake Doiran Italian artillery caught under its fire and dispersed Bulgarian troops in the direction of Akinjali. In the bend of the Cerna the Serbians continued to advance.

BERLIN.—Attempts of the French and British troops on the Somme front near Les Boeufs and La Maisonnette to advance yesterday were defeated by the Germans, the war office announced. French attacks in the region of Albainecourt and on both sides of the Chaulnes-Lihons road were without success.

PETROGRAD.—In Transylvania the Rumanians continue to press back the Austro-German forces in the Jiul valley, the official statement says, 300 additional Teutonic prisoners being taken yesterday and four machine guns captured. In the Rumanian province of Dobrudja, it is said, there is no change in the situation.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass.—The alleged weakening postscript to the Lusitania note to Germany regarding "strict accountability" was again referred to by Senator Lodge at a political meeting. "The President of the United States has denied that there was any postscript to the Lusitania note, and we are bound, of course, to accept the President's denial just as he makes it," Senator Lodge said. "I need hardly say," he added, "that I would not willingly bring an unfounded charge against any one, high or low, and if misled into doing so I should be quick to retract it."

CHICAGO.—John W. Kiser died in his suite in the Blackstone hotel after a lingering illness yesterday, leaving a fortune said to be in the vicinity of $8,000,000. He was 58 years old and came to Chicago from St. Paris, O., in 1889 practically penniless. At the time of his death he was the president of the largest concern of its kind in the world, the Phoenix Horseshoe company, and was a director in the First National bank and the Miehle Printing company.

CANADIAN, Tex.—Charles Taze Russell, known as "Pastor Russell," an independent minister, editor of the Watch Tower and prominent author of studies on the Scriptures, died on an Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe train en route from Los Angeles to New York. Pastor Russell was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., on Feb. 16, 1852. He was president of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Pennsylvania, the International Bible Students' association of London, and the People's Pulpit association of New York.

NEW LEGISLATION.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 22.—Your paper of Oct. 22 carried a story covering A. G. Schmedeman's campaign speech in which he promises, if elected, "new legislation" designed to deduct farm debts from land valuations before computing the real estate tax.

Schmedeman said, "My proposal to permit debt deduction from property, farm and general, as is done on income taxation, would be strictly in line with my policy that taxation should be placed according to ability to pay."

This promise is rather amusing as this proposal was enacted into law more then a generation ago by old Bob La Follette after a long fight. This law was no sooner enacted than the mortgagees issued a new mortgage form which had included in it the following: "The mortgagor agrees to pay all taxes and assessments of every kind upon this mortgage or the note thereby secured, or upon the mortgage interest in said premises created by this instrument." This has been included in the Wisconsin standard mortgage form ever since.

Neither the La Follette progressive Republicans nor the Democrats have ever made any attempt to correct this evasion of the law and thus help the dear peepul.

DAVID G. GAY.

THE EFFECTS OF PURE EDUCATION.

Quincy, Ill., Oct. 26.—Such ideas as were voiced by Mr. Hutchins should not go unchallenged. They come from a person too highly placed to be accepted without comment or dissent.

I have long suspected that pure education, like pure reason, pure mathematics, pure philosophy, and the like, is sterile if not dangerous. Mr. Hutchins has led a life of pure education and is quite young. He has never had the struggle of economic life. His life is purely parasitical—that is, supported by the economic labor of the world. He says that the reduction of the budget is not to be expected or desired and that the reduction of the pay of teachers is stupid; in other words, that the people are made for the sole purpose of paying taxes to support a highly educated minority. All this may be so, but one does not like to be told the sad news. KENNER S. BOREMAN.

HOW NOT TO LOWER TAXES.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Mr. Roosevelt's plan for relief of the farmer, as outlined at Springfield, is rather unique when analyzed. He must get the money by taxation of us all (the farmer included). This will pay his taxes and interest. And next year, in order to meet the increased taxes, he must increase taxes to meet the case, which is exactly what it was before, only at an increase.

This reminds one of the celebrated acrobats who as an encore showed up in a line facing the audience, each holding a lighted candle in each hand. The first made a bow and turned a back somersault down the throat of No. 2, who did the same to No. 3, who made an elaborate bow and turned a double back somersault down his own throat.

C. H. LARKIN.

EVERYTHING EXPLAINED.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Nothing wrong with Illinois except too many of us get up in the morning at the alarm of a Connecticut clock, button a pair of New York pants to Ohio suspenders, put on a pair of shoes made in Massachusetts, wash in a Pittsburgh basin, using Cincinnati soap and a cotton towel made in New Hampshire; sit down to a Grand Rapids table and eat pancakes from Minnesota flour, spread with Vermont maple sirup; buy fruit put up in California, seasoned with Rhode Island spices and sweetened with New Orleans sugar; put on a hat made in Philadelphia; hitch a Detroit mule fed on Texas gasoline to an Ohio plow and work like hell all day long on an Illinois farm or garden covered with New England mortgages and wonder why Illinois taxes are $6 per hundred in Cook county and $2.75 per acre on farms, while the farmers of Ohio pay $1 and drive on paved roads. And at night we crawl under a New Jersey blanket to be kept awake by a damn dog—the only home product on the place—wondering all the while why ready money and prosperity are not more abundant in this wonderful state of ours.

WILLIAM J. CLEARY.

WHY ROME FELL.

Riverside, Ill., Oct. 19.—A writer in your columns asserts sapiently that conditions in the United States resemble those of Rome in the days of Diocletian. He credits the collapse of the Roman empire solely to onerous taxation and predicts that a similar fate portends here. Unfortunately, or fortunately, history never repeats, nor is the gentleman's analogy very apt or particularly potent.

Rome did not fall from any one cause, and least of all from the burden of taxation, which was paid in kind chiefly; and the United States will not topple under its present tax loads, excessive though they be. From the days of Marius to the death of Theodosius the Germar hordes beat against the ramparts of the empire with increasing force, and in the time of Aurelius a series of disastrous plagues decimated the population. The United States has no such foes to contend with. The Second Punic war ruined the small farmers of Italy and, bit by bit, the human harvest grew bad and the population began to decline. The east drained the land of silver and other coins and credit became bad, and Christianity sapped the military spirit of Rome. Civil wars and disputes over the succession to the purple did their bit to hasten the debacle. Increased taxation was necessary to pay for the wars, but was hardly a cause for the collapse in 410. K. SMITH.

ROOSEVELT AND HIS SUPPORTERS.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 27.—I have subscribed to THE TRIBUNE for years because I thought it was the most fair of the Chicago papers, but I don't think your editorial, "Roosevelt and His Supporters," in Wednesday's paper was fair. You just named the radical supporters. How about Melvin Traylor and Newton Baker? They are his advisers, too, and they are certainly not radical.

TRIBUNE COOKING SCHOOL OPENS ON WEST SIDE TODAY

Treat Waits Thousands at Guyon's Paradise.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

No more will finicky husbands shudder at the sight of spinach. No more will they lay down their forks after a heroic struggle with vitamins A, B and C, glare at their wives and suggest that the children's pet rabbits might thrive on it.

Today more than 5,000 west side housewives will hustle the children off to school, give the house a hasty dusting, and dash off for the opening session of THE TRIBUNE'S cooking school at Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 126 North Crawford avenue, to learn the "impossible"—how to disguise spinach. And tomorrow, after hundreds of tired husbands have been revived at the supper table on a fluffy delicious oven dish, these housewives will be able to say: "My dear, I'm so glad you've learned to like spinach."

Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, known throughout the country as a famous home economist and food expert, said yesterday that her spinach dish at today's demonstration and lecture, was bound to make most any one like spinach—even husbands.

Favorites on Her List.

The wives won't pretend to deceive their spouses when it comes to the more vigorous dishes of Italian spaghetti, baked beans casserole, meat loaf and macaroni, stuffed baked apples, or southern biscuits. Mrs. Chitwood promised to place her favorite recipes for those dishes on the menu list for the four days of the west side cooking school and to show her students just how certain seasonings, spices and oven brownings will produce that artist's touch so essential to the best works of culinary art.

Those who go to the west side school for the first time will find themselves in the midst of a fall food festival where ushers wear white chef's caps perked on their heads, where dancers and famous singers entertain and where all the folks join in community singing, and every one has a grand and glorious time. They will learn a good bit about cookery from Mrs. Chitwood and Miss Mary Meade, TRIBUNE food expert, and if they're lucky they may win one of the five grand prizes awarded at Friday's closing session.

Club Women as Hostesses.

Every one is made welcome at each day's session by a committee of club women who will act as hostesses. Today Mrs. W. A. Evans, president of the Edgebrook Woman's club; Mrs. Mathilda Petersohn, former president of the Forest Park Woman's club; Mrs. J. A. Schaefer, president of the Forest Park Woman's club, and Mrs. F. R. Campbell, president of the Austin Woman's Republican club, will be hostesses.

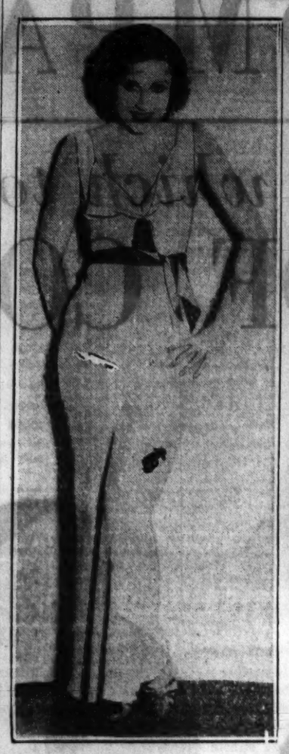
Tomorrow the hostesses will be Mrs. Harry Joseph, Hull House Woman's club; Mrs. Inez Deach, president of the Chicago Woman's Shelter; Mrs. W. J. D. Beck, former president of the Edison Park Woman's club and Mrs. T. S. Harper, social chairman of the League of Club Presidents, who will extend the official welcome.

The hostesses named for Thursday will be Mrs. George Farley, Municipal Art league; Mrs. Jessie Dabe, president of Hull House Woman's club; Mrs. Silas Whitlock, and Mrs. W. H. Cade. On Friday Mrs. A. Markwort, Mrs. N. D. Marty, recording secretary of the Wicker Park Woman's club; Mrs. J. Van Wakeman, president of the Austin North End Woman's club, and Mrs. Mildred Posson, Austin Woman's club, will greet the guests.

Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies, will open today's school at 1 o'clock.

At the close of the first week of the cooking school last Friday, it was estimated that more than 20,000 women visited the Trianon ballroom where the school was held.

To Entertain at Cooking School



Deane Janis, soprano, with Hal Kemp's orchestra at the Blackhawk cafe, who will sing Thursday afternoon at The Tribune Cookery School at Guyon's Paradise ballroom.

Russ Russell, W-G-N announcer, who will introduce Bebe Franklyn, W-G-N torch singer, at the opening Tribune Cookery School program this afternoon at Guyon's Paradise ballroom.

Master Eugene, 12 year old xylophone wizard, who will appear this afternoon on the entertainment program of the Chicago Tribune School of Cookery which opens on the west side at Guyon's Paradise ballroom at 1 o'clock.

LOSES HER PLEA TO DODGE PRISON BY PAYING $8,000

Mrs. Sophie Paul, 56 years old, appeared yesterday before Judge Michael Feinberg and sought to escape a one to ten year penitentiary sentence by payment of $8,000 to her former employer, Harry C. Wirsing, 76 years old, 134 Main street, Evanston. Mrs. Paul was found guilty by a jury five weeks ago of the theft of $18,000 from Wirsing, who testified that she had taken cash and securities from his safe deposit box while employed as his housekeeper.

Attorney W. W. O'Brien, representing Mrs. Paul, said yesterday that his client was ready to pay $8,000 to Wirsing and that the complainant was willing to dismiss criminal charges. Wirsing substantiated the statement. Judge Feinberg and Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller refused to approve the suggestion.

Hearing the statement that Wirsing is penniless, Judge Feinberg said that it would be better for the county to support him than to let Mrs. Paul escape the penalty for her crime. He dismissed the motion of Attorney O'Brien.

Contractor's Reno Divorce Is Attacked by Wife Here

Mrs. Isobel Joy, 27 years old, 7836 South Morgan street, yesterday asked Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan to set aside the Reno divorce won last May 7 by her husband, Benjamin Joy, a building contractor. Through her attorney, Robert E. Cantwell Jr., she charged that the decree was fradulent because she had not been notified of the proceedings in Nevada. She has a suit for separate maintenance pending here.

WOMAN PURSE SNATCHER GIVEN ONE TO 10 YEARS

CRIMINAL COURT.

William Lawson and Henry Maxwell, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory; Harry Bowman, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Dorothy Kerron, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Harry A. Lewis.

Mrs. Dorothy Kerron, alias Kerwin, 38 years old, whose police record as a pickpocket dates back to 1914, was sentenced to serve one to ten years in the penitentiary for larceny yesterday by Judge Harry A. Lewis, who found her guilty after she waived a jury trial. Before serving the present sentence Mrs. Kerron must complete two years of an unexpired prison term, on which she had been paroled when she was arrested on Aug. 6.

She was captured and held for police after she had seized the purse of Miss Mary Simpson, an employé of the Binkley Coal company, 230 North Michigan avenue, in the Hillman's Pure Food store, 24 West Washington street.

PETER HOFFMAN IS OUSTED FROM FOREST SERVICE

Peter M. Hoffman, who served several terms as coroner and then as sheriff of Cook county, has been dismissed from the pay roll of the forest preserve service, it was learned yesterday. Hoffman was discharged several weeks ago with other employés.

Superintendent Charles G. Sauers of the forest preserve district said that Hoffman had been employed in the construction division of the service. He said that when the county was unable to sell $2,000,000 worth of improvement bonds to construct certain projects in the preserves, there was no work for Hoffman and several other employés and they were discharged. President Emmett Whealan of the forest preserve board said that Hoffman's dismissal was not a political move.

Hoffman was sheriff of Cook county when Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, beer purveyors, were federal prisoners in the county jail for violations of the prohibition law. An investigation disclosed that both men enjoyed special privileges, including trips outside the jail, and as a result Hoffman himself had to serve a jail sentence for contempt of court.

MEDICAL CARE TO EVERYBODY TO BE ADVOCATED

Cost to Be "Reasonable," Committee Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur as chairman of the committee on costs of medical care announced today that a report outlining recommendations for providing medical care to every one at a reasonable cost will be made public by the committee on Nov. 29.

The report, according to Secretary Wilbur, is based on five years of "exhaustive research" by experts of the committee.

"For Rich and Poor."

According to Secretary Wilbur's announcement the committee's report will present recommendations looking to "the delivery of adequate scientific medical service to all the people, rich and poor."

Among the "maladjustments" with which the committee will try to cope in its recommendations, according to Mr. Wilbur, are such problems as the "uneven distribution in costs of medical care among families; the acute shortage of physicians and hospitals in certain rural areas; the general shortage of dentists to meet real needs of people; the inadequate personnel and financial support among official health agencies; the inability of many patients to obtain nursing services because of cost and a shortage of nurses trained in obstetrics and public health; and the low net incomes of many physicians, dentists and nurses."

Motor Club Pays Speed Fine for Doris Horder

Doris Horder, Northwestern university student and daughter of Harry G. Horder, 91 Beach road, Glencoe, vice president of the office supply company, who called the Evanston police "old meanies" when she was arrested Saturday, did not have to appear yesterday before Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter to answer a charge of speeding. Instead the Chicago Motor club, of which she is a member, arranged to pay her fine of $5 and costs.

Careful about the Tie he wears... Careless of his Teeth and Gums

DON'T lose your sense of proportion. Of course you want your ties to look and sit just right. But wouldn't it be wise to give a little attention to your teeth and gums?

Here are the facts. Science says that because civilized people eat soft, cooked foods, their gums tend to become flabby, soft, and tender. Next step — they're bleeding. You have "pink tooth brush."

And "pink tooth brush" not only dulls the teeth—but it may lead to gingivitis, Vincent's disease, and even rare pyorrhea. Moreover, it may endanger sound teeth.

But you needn't have "pink tooth brush."

Get a tube of Ipana Tooth Paste. Clean your teeth with Ipana—and each time, rub a little extra Ipana into those touchy gums of yours.

White, bright teeth? You bet you'll have them! And inside a month your gums will be harder and healthier, too. Keep on using Ipana with massage—and you can forget all about "pink tooth brush."

CONVICT 2 BANK HEADS OF MAKING FALSE REPORTS

R. A. Cepak and J. Havlicek Face Prison Terms.

Rudolph A. Cepak, president, and John Havlicek, cashier, of the closed Millard State bank at 3645 West 26th street, were found guilty yesterday by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Philip L. Sullivan on charges of making false statements to bank examiners. They face sentences of from one to ten years each in the penitentiary.

The convictions were the 23d and 24th in the drive of State's Attorney Swanson against crooked bankers. The state charged that Cepak obtained a loan of $71,309, illegal in itself, from the bank, and covered the fact by making fraudulent statements to the bank examiners. The loan and subsequent statement were made with the approval and aid of Havlicek, the prosecution charged. The largest legal loan that the president could have obtained, Prosecutors Donald Thompson and Charles J. Mueller said, was $17,000.

Motion for New Trial.

A motion for a new trial was made by the defense and continued for hearing until Nov. 18.

"I am gratified by the convictions," State's Attorney Swanson said, "coming as they do when we are renewing our fight against the illegal acts of bankers."

The bankers previously convicted and the banks with which they were connected are as follows:

Harold J. Wolf, Citizens State bank, Melrose Park.

Alexander Flower, Frank Flower, and Samuel Flower, Roosevelt Bankers State bank.

Elmer Langguth and Lavergne Lindgren, Peoples State bank of Maywood [Miss Lindgren won a reversal after her conviction with Langguth.]

O. C. Dunkle, J. C. Vastine, L. A. King, E. J. Heinzelman, and E. D. Philips of the Exchange State bank.

A. E. Brucker, J. P. Matthews, and C. A. Mueller of the Laramie State bank.

Peter J. Immel, Peoples and Merchants State bank of Park Ridge.

John Bain, John H Bain, Robert A. Bain, and W. Merle Fisher of the Bain chain of banks. They are to be retried on a second case next month.

Frank J. Gata of the Stockman's Trust and Savings bank.

John A. Stach of the Tarnow Building and Loan bank.

Walter F. Wolf, an employé of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.

More Cases for Trial.

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers, in charge of the special banking department established by State's Attorney Swanson, said that he still had 86 bank cases to be disposed of.

He also announced that his so called extra legal department to date had collected more than $3,000,000 for bank depositors from debtors from whom the receivers could not get settlements.

QUARREL PUTS S. SIDE COUPLE IN A HOSPITAL

Harry J. Dolan, 39 years old, and his wife, Myrtle, 38 years old, occupied adjoining rooms in the Jackson Park hospital with a policeman on guard in the corridor yesterday as the result of a quarrel which occurred earlier in the day in their apartment at 8620 Ingleside avenue.

Dolan, a salesman, had minor gunshot wounds in his left side, left arm and left hand. His wife had a dislocated right shoulder.

"We had a party and there was a lot to drink," Mrs. Dolan told the police. "After every one had left Harry and I began quarreling. We both started for his gun in a bedroom drawer. We reached it at the same time and it went off as he grabbed it. That's all I remember." Dolan refused to amplify a statement that he had shot himself.

Because 200 American students of the American People's college at Oets, Austria, picked her as the "average European girl," Miss Hertha Zwerger, 24 years old, student of Innsbruck, Austria, arrived in Chicago yesterday to spend two months observing the private lives of some Chicago families. At present she is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Atkins Moore of 166 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park. She will visit homes in a dozen cities during the winter.

Miss Zwerger's journey was originated and carried through by the group of students who during their studies in the Austrian Tyrol last summer agreed to finance her trip. Their purpose was to have the Austrian girl take back to her homeland impressions of this country to counteract those left by a certain type of American tourist; to promote international goodwill and to banish any lingering war resentment against German speaking peoples as far as possible.

Mrs. Moore, a director in the Woman's City club, will arrange for various groups of Chicago girls to meet and entertain Miss Zwerger, who was selected from a large number of European boys and girls met by the American students abroad.

SAVE GIRL FROM SUICIDE.

Miss Diane D. Wutjivich, 25 years old, 644 Diversey Parkway, was recovering yesterday in the American hospital after trying to end her life by taking sleeping powders in the Marigold drug store at 3800 Broadway.

Freed At Last From Stomach Gas Misery

"For years and years I suffered stomach and bowel trouble," says Mrs. Alice Tebbetts of Lexington, Mass. "Have taken ACIDINE and from all the other medicines I had taken, I never found such relief. It seems wonderful to be free from stomach ache and gas."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy, starchy foods that cause trouble. ACIDINE stops burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, ends gas, headache, sleeplessness from acidity and helps digest starchy foods and meats.

Don't run chances of dangerous painful troubles from acidity. Get ACIDINE today from your druggist and note quick relief from sourness, pain and belching. You can eat, drink and smoke as you like. Maker guarantees results that satisfy you or money back.

RULING PERMITS BOARD TO DOUBLE TAX HEARINGS

Brummel and Nixon Will Act Independently.

The two members of the board of tax appeals, Fred W. Brummel and George F. Nixon, may hold simultaneous hearings on objections to 1931 tax assessments, provided both complaints under consideration have a common ground for complaint, County Attorney Hayden N. Bell stated yesterday in a legal opinion. Otherwise, the opinion stated, each complaint must be heard by the two members sitting together.

The opinion was sought by Brummel who was appointed by Democrat Emmett Whealan, president of the county board. His colleague, Nixon, is the appointee of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, Republican. Both members had listened to each complaint presented to them on the personal property assesment prior to yesterday. They sought legal advice before adopting the practice of hearing complaints separately in an atempt to expedite hearing of the many protests from country town taxpayers involving small amounts.

Bell Quotes Statutes.

In his opinion Attorney Bell stated: "The statute provides the hearing upon which any such complaint shall be open to the public and the board of appeals shall sit together—and no order for a correction of any assessment shall be made unless both members concur therein."

"In each instance in which an assessment is ordered corrected the board shall sign a brief written statement of the reason and the point wherein the assessment was erroneous.

"In many cases the grounds of complaint will be found to be common," the opinion continued. "These common grounds will grow in familiarity and knowledge of the board as the hearings proceed. It is not unreasonable to suppose that, in many cases where complaints are common, each member of the board could direct the examination of different complaints at the same time, and that both members of the board could follow the representations of the different complainants and be able to pass judgment thereon.

"In all cases where each member of the board for any reason is unable to follow the representations of different complainants and form his own judgment thereon, single hearings should be the rule."

The board announced that they would follow the suggestions of Attorney Bell.

Independent Stores Complain.

Yesterday morning a dozen Evanston merchants appealed to the board to adjust alleged inequalities between assessments against independent business men and those placed against chain store operators in that city. The men were representatives of the Evanston Retail Merchants' association.

"The average assessment against an independent merchant in Evanston is 144 per cent higher than valuations of the chain stores," asserted Peter J. Jans, executive secretary.

"If we are not given justice there will be no collection of taxes in Evanston. I know what happens to personality tax judgments. They are given by the state's attorney to the local justices of the peace to settle. Why I can settle any tax bill for $5 in Evanston. The justice of the peace keeps the money and returns the bill stamped paid in full by adjustment.

Protest Warrant Deal.

"In addition," he continued, "the Evanston school boards made a deal with the chain stores to accept tax warrants and give out coupon books. The books are given to the teachers and other creditors and used to buy the chain store goods. This is because the local banks and merchants are loaded with 1928 and 1929 tax warrants and can't accept such 1930 paper. This is driving local money out of the town altogether."

Calling in Assessor Jacobs the board agreed to continue the final day for filing complaints from Evanston until next Friday. The assessor and the merchants agreed to meet today and tomorrow in an effort to reach a compromise on their assessments.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Zaro Agha, who says he is 158 years old, came home unexpectedly here today after two years of wandering about America and Europe.

His octogenarian wife and his eleventh, hid behind her veil before she would let her stylishly dressed husband enter their shack. Finally she relented and gave bread to all the neighborhood street dogs as a token of thanksgiving for his return.

Zaro Agha, billing himself as the oldest man in the world, went to the United States two years ago; his manager announcing that he would be exhibited by foes of alcohol as a man who hadn't taken a drink in 158 years. He played some vaudeville bookings and was injured slightly in an automobile accident in New York. His wife, wearied of his absence and threatened to sue if he didn't return.

TWO SUICIDES CLIMAX OF ROW AT HOUSE PARTY

Divorcee and Host Kill Selves in South.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Two suicides were the climax of a weekend party at which drinks were served in a suburban bungalow, a coroner's jury decided today after the bodies of Howard N. Evans, 40, Jackson cotton oil mill executive, and Miss Ruth Kirkpatrick, 28 year old divorcée, were found in the house.

Father of 5 Children.

Evans, married and the father of five children, was host of the party, which was attended also by Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Dawkins of Memphis. The Dawkins couple told police the story of the suicides after an unsuccessful attempt to leave the city quietly. They said Miss Kirkpatrick shot herself and Evans then said, "It's hell to pay now—I'll have to kill myself."

He then shot himself. Mr. and Mrs. Dawkins said Evans and Miss Kirkpatrick had quarreled all day Sunday.

Locks Door, Kills Self.

That night she obtained a pistol, locked herself in a bedroom and shot herself. When Evans and Dawkins later broke into the room Evans said he would kill himself.

Mrs. Dawkins said she grabbed the pistol that Miss Kirkpatrick had used and hid it, but Evans found another.

The bodies were discovered several hours later by Charles E. Franklin, a business associate of Evans. Later Mrs. Evans said her husband had told her Saturday he was leaving town. Miss Kirkpatrick formerly lived in Memphis, moving here after she was divorced about a year ago.

DON MARQUIS BLIND BY SUDDEN STROKE; IMPROVES SLIGHTLY

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Don Marquis, the humorist, author and at one time columnist, was stricken blind Thursday night and today his condition had improved only to the extent that he could distinguish between red and black.

Mr. Marquis' attack came upon him while he was at the Players' club. He had been working for several weeks on the casting and rehearsal of his play, "The Dark Hours," and fatigue presumably contributed to the seizure.

He was removed from the club to his home and it was from there that the slight improvement in his condition was announced today.

The play, which deals with the last hours of Christ on earth and which he wrote in 1925, will open on the night of Nov. 14.

Mr. Marquis is fifty-four years old.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"
THE JUGGERNAUT OF THE JUNGLE
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the famous animal painter, Paul Bransom...inspired by the savage charge of the African rhinoceros crashing through the untamed jungle. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

5 SLAIN IN CUBA ON ELECTION EVE; CAPITAL GUARDED

Machado's Party Is Seen as Sure Winner.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 31.—President Machado's government will turn over control of the Cuban election machinery and the police to a supreme electoral council at midnight tonight for twenty-four hours. More than 700,000 voters are expected to go to the polls tomorrow to elect two senators, 72 representatives, six governors, 124 mayors, and about the same number of city aldermen and provincial councilmen.

As a prelude to the balloting, five persons were killed today in political shootings between Conservatives and Liberals at Ciabaguan, Santa Clara city, and Remedios. Feeling is running high throughout the island. Extraordinary precautions are being taken to keep peace. Police will patrol Havana. Groups of more than three persons will not be allowed and drinking in public is forbidden.

Predict Machado Victory.

The Liberals, President Machado's party, expect a big victory. The Progressives, the latest political organization, are not expected to elect a single candidate. The Conservative oppositionists refused to organize a legal party to participate in the election, objecting to the existing suspension of constitutional guarantees. They are urging the people not to vote.

The government tonight said it believed it had frustrated an alleged oppositionist plot to prevent the elections. Police confiscated quantities of arms, ammunition, machine guns, and armored cars, which, it is alleged, were to be used to massacre Liberal candidates and officials.

Fire on Chilean Mob.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 31.—Police today fired rifles and machine guns on part of a crowd of 30,000 persons demonstrating for Col. Marmaduke Grove, radical, who was defeated in yesterday's presidential election by former President Arturo Alessandri.

Complete returns tonight gave Alessandri 183,744 votes as against 60,261 for Col. Grove; 45,267 for Hector Rodriguez de la Sotta, Conservative; 42,273 for Enrique Zanartu, Agrarian, and 4,621 for Elias Lafertte, communist. Lafertte, who ran for two offices, was elected senator from Tarapaca province.

Massmeetings and parades were held today to welcome Col. Grove and Eugenio Matte Hurtado, who were the heads of a socialist revolution early in the summer, back from exile on Easter island. Grove supporters marched through the center of the city, maintaining order for the most part. Some of them got out of hand, however, and clashed with police. The latter opened fire.

Col. Grove told his admirers that "we intend to continue the revolutionary activties, not only in Chile, but in other Latin American countries. We have sworn to unite our efforts for the formation of a Latin American Federation of Socialist Republics.

Andino Wins in Honduras.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Tiburcio Carias Andino, Nationalist-Conservative candidate, was assured of election as president of Honduras today. Returns from yesterday's election gave him a lead of 20,000 votes over Angel Zuniga Huete, the Liberal party nominee. The entire country was orderly during the voting.

Liberal Leads in Ecuador.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Martinez Mera, who resigned as minister of the treasury last summer to become the Liberal candidate for president, was leading the race for that office today on the basis of early returns. He opposed Manuel Sotomayor Luna, Conservative candidate and former ambassador to to Chile. There were numerous disorders during the voting yesterday, but the police had little trouble preventing them from becoming serious.

MOTHER SLAYS TWO DAUGHTERS AND HERSELF

Coldwater, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Continual brooding for a year over the suicide of an aunt is believed to have led a mother living near Sturgis, Mich., to shoot and kill her two daughters today, and then to end her own life after firing the bedroom in which the tragedy occurred.

The dead are Mrs. William Ochs, 45, wife of a farmer, and her children, Laura Jean, 15, and Alvine Yvonne, 7.

The father heard the shots while he was attending to chores in the barn. He rushed into the house to find the bodies of his wife and daughters encircled by flames which were rapidly spreading throughout the dwelling.

A neighbor, Bert Hagadorn, who also heard the shots from a field, helped the father extinguish the flames and remove the bodies.

Mrs. Ochs had crept into the bedroom while her daughters were sleeping. Using an automatic shotgun, she shot them in the head. She then locked herself in the room, soaked papers with crude oil, and fired the house.

The St. Joseph county coroner investigated the tragedy and indicated he would return a verdict of double murder and suicide.

Ochs, near the point of collapse from shock and grief, said his wife had been despondent for some time over the suicide of her aunt last year in Lansing, Mich.

Seven More Caught

Seven men implicated by a prisoner in robbery of motorists on the Lincoln highway, Western avenue, and the Old Sauk trail, south and west of Chicago Heights, were under arrest yesterday at the Homewood station of the county highway police. A series of these robberies in the last thirty days caused Lieut. Robert Seiter to assign Deputy Edward Freckelton to don woman's clothing and ride with Sergt. John Orgel and patrol the roads. Sunday night they were stopped by two men. Orgel shot one of them, a Negro, named Arthur Gray, and also captured the other, Walter Wheeler, under parole from Pontiac reformatory. The seven other men arrested after they had been named by Wheeler were John and Samuel Somillis, Lawrence Schubert, Peter Bukarski, Benny Leonardo, Joe Natalian and Peter Puharski.

250,000 BRITISH COTTON WORKERS STRIKE OVER PAY

LONDON, Oct. 31.—More than 250,000 workers in the Lancashire cotton mills were pulled out on a strike today when 150,000 spinners and 50,000 carders rejected the wage terms negotiated by union chiefs with the employers.

The wage cut accepted by the union negotiators slightly exceeds 5½ per cent against an initial reduction of 13 per cent. The vote of delegates assigned by local unions to consider the settlement precipitated the strike. The dispute is now in the hands of the workers themselves. They are taking a vote on whether to continue the walkout or acept a compromise.

Should the spinners and carders abide by the decision of their delegates that the strike is the best policy, others eventually will be involved. The weavers, who walked out last July over a pay cut and went back to work a few days ago, will be affected in a strike of any duration.

STUDENTS RIOT IN MADRID; TRY TO MOB HERRIOT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York News.]

MADRID, Oct. 31.—While all of Spain's high dignitaries were giving Premier Herriot of France the nearest approach to a royal welcome that the republic could achieve, and the Spanish press was pronouncing eulogies of him, Madrid's collegians, who bow neither to kings nor to presidents, greeted the French premier's car today with shouts of "Death to Herriot!" and "Down with war!"

As the car neared Puerta del Sol, Madrid's central square, police armed with leather quirts smashed into and dispersed the student mob. The students later declared a strike until Herriot leaves Spain.

Rumors of Military Pact.

The hostile demonstration was attributed to rumors that France and Spain had reached an understanding on concerted action in case of war. Feeling against France reached its peak last week, when it was stated that the minister of public works had granted $500,000 to fortify Mahon harbor, in the Balearic islands, at the instance of France.

Rumors of a French-Spanish entente have been officially denied by both sides. It was emphasized today that Herriot's visit had "no ulterior motives" but was "merely one of friendship for Spain."

President Is Decorated.

The French premier spent the day making official calls. He was closeted for twenty-five minutes with President Alcala Zamora, and conferred on him the grand cross of the Legion of Honor. Later he visited the cortes and spent fifteen minutes with Premier Azana. Then he inspected the Prado museum and attended a small luncheon given by Premier Azana.

After the municipal reception, Herriot visited the ancient university of Alcala de Honares, fifteen miles from Madrid. He took a walk through the streets of Madrid, finding his way with a map. He bought fruit for small children and joked with workers in the Petiro, Madri's Central park.

VERA CRUZ PUTS BIRTH CONTROL LAW INTO EFFECT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—According to information received here from the port of Vera Cruz, birth control goes into effect tomorrow in that state.

The law was introduced by Salvador Mendoza, prominent Vera Cruz lawyer, who claimed that it would benefit the working classes by avoiding the creation of children by parents unable to support them and prevent the birth of degenerates due to parental diseases.

The legislation aims to prevent marriages within the state of Vera Cruz unless the principals are proved medically fit.

Burton Rascoe Values 'Titans of Literature'

He Makes Famous Authors Live Again.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Titans of Literature," by Burton Rascoe. [Putnams.] Published today.

WHAT Will Durant did for philosophy in "The Story of Philosophy" Burton Rascoe does for literature in "Titans of Literature," and to many readers the result will be as startlingly and excitingly news as were the contents of "The Story of Philosophy." For Mr. Rascoe has not written a mere outline of literature "From Homer to the Present" as the book is subtitled, but he has, as Mr. Durant did, with science, taken the titans of the art and by showing the humanness of the creator revivified the creator's creations.

BURTON RASCOE.

To all readers of "Titans of Literature" the creators whom Mr. Rascoe has chosen are known by name, and to most of them they are known in more or less intimacy. Homer, Sophocles, Virgil, Dante, Boccaccio, Rabelais, Villon, Montaigne, Cervantes, Chaucer, Shakespeare, Voltaire, Milton, De Foe, Goethe, Byron, Balzac, Victor Hugo, Verlaine, Dickens, Shelley, Flaubert, Whitman, Poe, Dostoievski, Tolstoi, Mark Twain, Anatole France, Proust, and George Moore are names so common to the current speech of literature that they have achieved the remoteness, for most readers, of monuments.

Mr. Rascoe rescues the wearers of those names from their eternal monumentalism and makes of them human beings, who lived and had their being even as you and I. He revaluates their work according to the latest critical estimates or according to his own if that differs from the conventional. Each chapter is ostensibly devoted to one great man and the influence which he had upon literature, but in many cases the chapter is an essay on the literature of a period more than it is the critical biographical estimate of one man.

A final chapter called "Coda" is subtitled, "A Short History of the Development of Literature since the Victorian Period," in which Mr. Rascoe expounds an unusual theory of the modern literary movement—that the whole modern literary movement began with Ibsen, when new values of human life and the relationship between men and women came into being in literature.

The fact that throughout the book Mr. Rascoe tends to question rather than to swallow the cliches of literary criticism makes the book amusing and alluring and takes it out of the class of the mere retelling of fact and reassembling of knowledge and tradition which such a book could so easily have become.

For instance, Mr. Rascoe says of Dante: "He had a certain talent, perhaps even a certain genius. . . . But surely the time has come when less nonsense, less fustian, less cant will be written about him by men and women who have any regard for the values in literature. . . . There is nothing elevating about the subject of the 'Divine Comedy' and even less about its treatment."

And of Milton he says—after warning his readers to "take an aspirin and a bromide before I utter the most frightful blasphemy that was ever uttered . . ." that "'Paradise Lost' and 'Paradise Regained' are horrible examples of what may occur when a man with a displeasing type of mind happens to be an expert versifying technician in what is loosely called the Biblical style." He points out: "The truth is known to many scholars that 'Paradise Lost' is one of the baldest plagiarisms in the history of literature" and backs up his conclusions by facts and words of other scholars.

Throughout the book Mr. Rascoe either confirms his own opinions with the findings of the great recognized authorities on the subject or points out how modern research has changed the traditional judgments of the men of whom he writes. But it is all done so popularly and so skillfully as never to lead the reader into the morass of critical discussion.

One of the most amusing chapters in the book is the one on De Foe in which he shows that the author of "Robinson Crusoe" was the father of most of the most famous and most popular modern journalism.

In his chapter on "Mark Twain, the First American," Mr. Rascoe makes the following challenging statement: "The most important single event in American literature occurred when Mark Twain wrote the opening paragraphs of 'Huckleberry Finn.'"

And he says: "Other events of importance were the publication of Walt Whitman's 'Leaves of Grass' . . . of Dreiser's 'Sister Carrie' . . . of John Macy's 'The Spirit of American Literature,' . . . of H. L. Mencken's 'The American Language' . . . of Vernon Parrington's 'Main Currents of American Thought' . . . of Mark Van Doren's anthology, 'An Autobiography of America' . . . the first appearance of a short story by Ring Lardner in the Saturday Evening Post . . . the moment when Sinclair Lewis decided to take a year off from writing according to a commercial formula, in which he had become adept, in order to write a book ('Main Street') which he thought would be a failure. . . . The moment James Branch Cabell conceived the idea of the biography of Manuel and his descendants."

According to Mr. Rascoe, "Dreiser and Cabell are the two most important literary figures in America of our time."

Whether you always accept them or not Mr. Rascoe's findings in "The Titans of Literature" are stimulating and his presentation of them vivid. Mr. Rascoe was formerly literary editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Well, I've seen "Strange Interlude" both on stage and screen, and from where I sit in lowbrow serenity I think the picture has it all over the play. I will go even farther and say that the play bored me and the picture did not.

If brevity indeed be wit, then Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have indeed achieved something! In two hours they tell completely and engrossingly what Eugene O'Neill had hard work crowding into five.

There are those who feel that the movie fails to grasp the author's "bitter irony," or the real meaning of his "expressive, tortuous work." Well, since his irony had to be bitter and his expression tortuous, that's just as well. I know that when the play was over I was, to quote the old lady who sat in front of me, "all did in." Anyhow, the picture is only claimed to be based on the play. So that is that.

It's inevitable that the orally delivered thoughts would be more effective when heard, accompanied only by pantomime, as on the screen, than when lip movements of the thinker must be seen as on the stage, where, of course, the cogitations were necessarily spoken by the thinker. These asides are largely what make the Freudian piece remarkable—so here again the picture scores.

Then I thought Norma Shearer a more effective Nina than Judith Anderson, who played the rôle with the Chicago company. How Miss Shearer would have compared with Lynn Fontane [of the New York players], whom it is fashionable to admire extravagantly and who is worthy of extravagant admiration, I can't say. But the picture star gives an artistic, touchingly sincere performance. She has never done anything better. Perhaps, never anything as well. And how lovely she is! She ages as beautifully as does Irene Dunne in "Back Street."

Ralph Morgan is a delight as the Oedipus ridden "Dear old Charlie." Alexander Kirkland delivers a fine portrayal as the sensitive young husband who develops into such a tiresomely normal elderly spouse. Tad Alexander, as the child the neurotic Nina and the stalwart Dr. Darrell give Evans, surreptitiously as it were, to save his sanity, is a knockout, and Robert Young, as the boy grown to young manhood, presents another ringingly true characterization. May Robson has a brief but intensely impressive entrance as the mother of Evans—who tells Nina that she cannot have a child because there is insanity in the Evans blood.

Clark Gable? NO. Forced acting. Poor makeup.

The picture has been faithful to the play as to settings and the photography is very fine.

Direction by Robert Z. Leonard is surprising. He's always been identified with these flashy, chorus-girly things, you know. In this opus he proves his versatility and delivers a job to be proud of.

I'm sorry the censors thought it necessary to delete certain lines at the beginning of the picture relative to the heroine's pathological condition—but if you're bright you'll get the idea.

Political note: Mayor Cermak was at Sunday night's performance looking a bit perturbed and distrait. Couldn't make out whether he was puzzling as to how the screen characters got the way they were or wondering as to which would most endear him to the voters' hearts—to let or not to let the Dixiana tie up at our wharf.

See you tomorrow.

Schipa Concert a Big Day in the Music Season

Gifted Tenor Displays His Showmanship.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Tito Schipa's song recital at Orchestra hall last night classified among the season's major musical events, as does almost any program this greatly gifted tenor chooses to sing. It was the second concert in the series for the benefit of the Girl Scouts of Chicago, but it likewise deserves consideration for its musical values.

Mr. Schipa is not only one of the foremost singing artists of the generation but he is also an uncommonly canny man of the theater. He began his program with a group of music from another era, the aristocratic imaginings of Gluck, De Luca, Handel, and Scarlatti, with Pergolesi's "Nina" thrown in for good measure. This is music in which he is perfectly at home, an equal among equals.

Passing on, he included a complete group of arias from the operas in which he has many times been justly applauded, "Dalla sua pace" from "Don Giovanni," Ossian's song from "Werther," Federico's song from Cilea's "L'Arlesiana," "Ella mi fu rapita" from "Rigoletto." Here was another case where his golden voice and distinguished manner won the audience. At their end he began singing Neapolitan songs, and he could probably have been singing them yet if the lights had not finally indicated an intermission. A final group presented him in at least four languages, English, Russian, German, and dialect Italian.

This is the kind of program he presents, and it is one reason why he is unfailingly popular with his audiences. His accompanist, Frederick Lomgas, a brilliant pianist, varied the program by playing a number of solo Spanish works, one of them, a Jota, from his own pen.

Mr. Stock has changed Haydn's "Surprise" symphony, announced for the Thursday-Friday symphony concerts, to another symphony by the same composer known in London as "Letter V." It was last played here in 1907, on the 175th anniversary of the composer's birth. The program will open with Reznicek's "Donna Diana" overture and will include the previously announced piano concerto by Arne Oldberg in its first performance by Hilda Edwards and Charpentier's "Impressions of Italy."

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932 By News Syndicate Co. Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE CLEW TO THE CASE.

When Inspector Kelley pulled the dumb-waiter up from the cellar of the palatial old house to the fourth floor he found a man's glove on it.

"Raise it a little higher. There," said Fordney as he stuck his head under it and looked down the shaft.

"See anything?" inquired Kelley.

"No. The flashlight doesn't reach to the bottom. I'll go down."

Ten minutes later Rickett, the butler, assisted Fordney and Kelley as they removed the huddled form of old Mrs. Porter from the bottom of the shaft.

"My God, sir, what a way to commit suicide," he gasped.

"Looks like the fall killed her, all right," remarked Fordney, "and she hasn't been dead very long."

"Why did you phone the police?" asked Kelley, turning to the butler.

"When I returned after having the day off I couldn't find Mrs. Porter. Searching the house and discovering her street clothes on the fourth floor I became alarmed. She seldom went up there. It never occurred to me to look in the shaft. I haven't touched this thing today."

"Does she live alone?"

"Yes. But her nephew came to spend the day. They were out walking in the park when I left."

"Was she worried over anything?"

"Well, he'd been in trouble recently and she's been very upset and discouraged about him."

"Let's see that glove you found, Kelley," requested the professor. "If Rickett is telling the truth and no one else was here the nephew is her murderer. She didn't kill herself!"

WHY?

[See solution on page 31.]

Princess Ingrid Is Dinner Guest of Prince George

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Princess Ingrid of Sweden with her aunt, Princess Alice, the countess of Athlone, and the earl of Athlone dined with the prince of Wales and Prince George at York house tonight. The quiet informal dinner in the princes' private apartments in their London residence strengthened rumors of an impending announcement of Princess Ingrid's engagement to Prince George.

From the moment of her unexpected arrival by airplane from Brussels last Thursday Princess Ingrid has been the most talked of girl in Great Britain. All her activities have been recorded in the newspapers, accompanied by photographs.

Particular significance is also attached to the unannounced arrival today of Princess Ingrid's cousins, Crown Prince Olaf of Norway and Princess Martha, by air from Brussels. No one met them at Croyden airdrome, where they had to hire a car themselves. The Norwegian legation had no news of their arrival.

Princess Ingrid's parents are due here a week from today and it is believed the engagement will be officially announced soon thereafter.

Display Hair Mode for Little Girls at Show

Beauty Shop Owners Tell of Children's Trade.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Fashions in permanent waves, finger waves, semi-windblown bobs, and marcels for children were displayed by child models last night in the Hotel Sherman at what was hailed as the "first coiffure style show for children in Chicago." It was sponsored by the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association.

Children from 3 years old to 16 years old smiled and pirouetted, not a hair out of place in their coiffures. The "semi-windblown bob" is only so in name, the locks of hair actually lying flat against the head in big waves.

"There's no longer any excuse for a little girl to have tousled hair," explained Miss Agnes Schmitt, Lincoln, Neb., president of the Nebraska Hairdresers' association, who lectured on beauty culture for children. "Mother doesn't have to worry about her child's straggly hair now."

In an interview Miss Schmitt said that in Lincoln, Neb., "all the members of the 400" took their children to beauty parlors.

"It's positively sweet," she said, "to hear the little darlings chattering about makeup."

Not only are beauty parlors over the country catering to children in the matter of permanent waves, "ringlet ends," marcels, and curls around the face but they are finding considerable business in giving children manicures, according to Miss Schmitt.

"It's the mothers who want it done," she said. "It saves them so much trouble not to have to curl their children's hair. Also they like to have their children look well groomed with polished nails and perfect coiffures. I teach my little customers to be careful of their facial expression, too, not to frown, as frowns produce wrinkles. Often manicures help children to quit biting their nails."

Retouching, or what Miss Schmitt calls "living up," a child's hair is quite popular, she said. Many mothers have a partiality for adding a reddish cast to their little girls' hair.

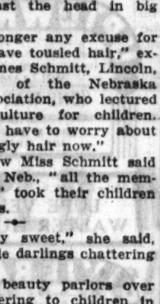
"Not only little girls but boys are made beauty conscious at an early age now," Miss Schmitt said. "I often lecture to the 4-H clubs for boys and girls in Nebraska, and the boys are more enthusiastic than the girls over the subject of being well groomed. Most of them want to know how to keep their hair from falling in their eyes."

Miss Schmitt said that she did not encourage the use of lipstick and rouge for school children.

"Why, it would ruin our business if we did that, you know," she explained. "We always keep in mind that the child is the woman customer of the future."

Hold Recital

The Illinois Federation of Music Clubs will present an American opera evening in its fourth program in the series of American Artists' salons tomorrow night in the antique lounge of the Stevens hotel. Dr. Frank L. Waller, conductor of the American Opera company, will present artists and members of the ensemble in solos, duets, and choruses in English. Harriet Brewer, contralto, is among those on the program. According to Mrs. Louis Yager of Oak Park, the salons provide opportunity for young musicians at a time when financial backing for them is impossible. More than 15,000 artists in the Illinois federation and 500,000 in the national group are represented in this new project to hear and assist native composers and artists. The recitals are free and the guests are friends, managers, critics and music patrons.



HARRIET BREWER.

Mrs. Yager is chairman of the committee in charge of the salons. Harriet Brewer, contralto, is a member of the American Opera ensemble.

Mrs. Porter Will Give Dinner Dance for 3 Daughters-in-Law

Party Will Be Held at Casino After Sons and Their Brides Return from Wedding Journeys.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MOST of the entertaining this year seems to be for the debutantes or for the purpose of raising funds for charity, so it is nice to be able to report that there is to be at least one party early in the New Year for the "young marrieds." On Jan. 6, Mrs. Henry Homes Porter is going to give a dinner dance at the Casino for her three new daughters-in-law, Mrs. Henry H. Porter Jr. [Mary Kinney], Mrs. Sartell Prentice Porter [Elinor Durbin], and Mrs. John Pierrepont Porter [Mary Brumback].

Mrs. Porter, who came west with her daughter, Miss Mary Porter, for the three weddings, is in Lake Forest for a few days but she and Miss Porter expect to leave shortly for their home in Manchester, Vt. They will return to Chicago shortly after Christmas, however, in time for a large New Year's day reception that Mrs. Porter will give at the Fortnightly.

All three of the Porter sons and their brides are honeymooning now but all will be back in Chicago in time for the party Mrs. Porter will give on Jan. 6.

Open New Shop to Aid Charity.

Another new way of raising money for charity! And such a clever way as the women of the Winnetka board of the Northwestern University Settlement have evolved. They have been working for weeks on the idea, and really working, too, for getting ready to open the "Fancy Costume Rental Shop" that they are conducting meant renovating dozens of costumes that had been given to them, and if you think it is an easy task to clean, press and freshen up such costumes, it is just because you've never had the job!

The shop was opened last Saturday, a propitious time to launch such an undertaking for almost all their costumes had been rented for Halloween parties before the shop had been opened, even. Quite a few of the costumes that were worn to the Arden Shore party Saturday night in Lake Forest and some of the baby ones that the young people wore to Miss Laura Thorne's party that night and a number of those worn by the guests at the Lansing B. Warners' "hard times" party were rented from the shop, which fills a long felt need on the north shore I am told, for until now a north shore resident has had to come to Chicago to rent even the simplest sort of fancy dress outfit.

The committee in charge of the shop, which occupies space in a store at 747 Elm street, Winnetka, plans to keep the costumes cleaned and in good condition, and the space is donated by the owners of the store, Mrs. Harold Wilder and Mrs. Towner K. Webster Jr., so everything realized by the rentals will go to the charity.

Mrs. John P. Hooker is chairman of the committee, the other members of which are Mrs. Wilder, Mrs. Webster, Mrs. Allen L. Withers, Mrs. Ernst C. von Ammon, Mrs. George B. Calkins, Mrs. Walter A. Strong, Mrs. Martin Lindsay, Mrs. Edwin P. Price, and Mrs. Frank E. Payne. Mrs. Warren A. Lamson is chairman of the Winnetka board.

The committee members hope that everyone who has fancy dress costumes in attics and packing trunks will get them out and donate them to the shop to be rented, for the settlement needs funds badly this winter. Even if the costumes are in need of repair they will be gratefully received and a member of the committee will call for costumes that are donated to the cause.

There will be about three hundred wives tonight seeking amusement by themselves for their husbands, along with about fifty bachelors, will be enjoying themselves at a reunion of the

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

One efficacious way of fortifying ourselves against housing complications is to install a disappearing, concealed, fold-away, rollaway, or indoor bed. Such a utility is built for entire disappearance from the domestic scene excepting on those occasions when it is called into service. Then it proceeds to prove its usefulness and economy by giving to a room a twenty-four hour service capacity. Camouflaged in many different ways, these beds, veritable space savers that they are, need give no hint of their existence. LOUISE BARGELT.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, and he and his wife, an ill-bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half-Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly seances in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister, Rachel, are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London asking her to search for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The Tilburys are left Caroline's fortune on condition they search for the Holy Grail in the ruin of an ancient abbey on the estate, which Caroline believed to be her father's wish. Natasha is arrested. It is learned that the man she'd been meeting secretly was her wastrel brother, Michael, who is wanted for theft and has fled the country. News is received of his death. Natasha is brought to trial.

INSTALLMENT XLIV.

A DISAPPOINTING WITNESS.

Here the tale concluded and the long cross-examination began. By every device Sir Henry Challenge tried to wear down the girl's resistance and trap her into admitting she had been in Bristol. As time passed it seemed she was being bullied and harried into a condition where she would be forced to contradict herself, but although towards the last she became so dulled that questions had to be reframed in order to reach her intelligence, she stuck immovably to her original statement. Again and again she repeated that she had all along seen the weakness of her position, but had chosen the lesser of two evils, confident that no jury would condemn her for something she had not done.

Once the judge addressed her.

"It is quite understood, then, that you fully grasped the gravity of your offense, that you were setting out deliberately to defeat justice?"

"Legal justice—yes," was the low rejoinder. "I certainly knew I was defying the law, but I considered it a worse wrong to ruin my brother for all time. I would do the same again."

This brought a gasp. There appeared to be a few amongst the audience who inwardly applauded the prisoner's courageous refusal to sacrifice the being nearest her, but others, the great majority, wore a skeptical expression. The story, different from the first she had told, savored too much of cool after thought.

"Legal justice—yes," was the low rejoinder.

The Gisbornes were called and strove hard to throw a favorable light on their friend's conduct, and one after another were subjected to a merciless grilling. Most of the former witnesses were recalled and questioned anew. Out of a mass of small evidence little emerged save the undeniable fact of the prisoner having warm supporters.

Neil's turn came. He made the most of Natasha's refusal to accept his proffered loan and of her efforts to safeguard her aunt's health. His disclosures regarding the alligator bag scored a mild triumph. Yes, he himself had seen what it normally contained—a manuscript in Theodore Bundy's handwriting. The latter was evidently looked on as a valuable treasure, for Miss Bundy kept the bag in question locked, the key on a chain around her neck, and always carried the bag with her wherever she went. It did not at all astonish him to learn of her distress over its disappearance. He himself did not believe she would have shown half so much concern over losing a string of pearls. Lastly he declared that when he had viewed the victim's body the chain was in its usual place, but the key gone.

On these points Mr. Cairnes dwelt heavily. Bag known to contain manuscript but nothing else; key taken from body after death. Did this combination of circumstances agree with the prosecution's theory? Decidedly not. If the bag was stolen by the present accused it must have been broken open and rifled at once or else there would have been no occasion for denunciations and subsequent violence. Yet if this was the case why remove a key from the dead woman's neck? To do so would be not only needless, but a dangerous waste of time. If on the other hand the key was taken by the murderer it must have been because the latter did not yet possess the bag, but hoped to get hold of it later and open it in an unsuspicious manner. Obviously it would be easy enough to slit the leather with a knife or force the lock. If the murderer hesitated to do this he or she must have had some reason.

That meant that the bag at the time of its owner's death was still unlocked, also that it was in some other locality, but not considered irretrievably lost. The prosecution might argue that the victim herself removed the key to place it elsewhere, but if so they would find difficulty in supporting their contention.

A new and interesting matter was now brought forward. Why did the prosecution take it for granted that Miss Bundy reached Bristol by car? The six-thirty Paddington express would have got her there in precisely two hours and twenty-seven minutes. Possibly, for a hidden reason of her own, she did actually travel by this train. The six-thirty is often crowded, so that a passenger arriving by it could easily escape notice at the barriers. At the same time the first class carriages are not always filled. If the deceased had occupied an entire compartment to herself she could have made the journey without being observed by fellow travelers. On March 20 the top half of a first class ticket was handed in at Bristol, and it was a singular fact that the return half, though extensively advertised for, had never come to light. Where, then, was this ticket? Was it not natural to suppose it to have been destroyed with the other contents of the victim's black bag?

Nor was this the only circumstance suggestive of a voluntary journey. While at the Victoria postoffice Miss Bundy tried to get on to a Kensington telephone number, but failed to receive a reply. The number, recorded at the time, was that of Miss Braselton's flat. What if the attempted call was for the purpose of informing her friend's maid that she would not arrive for dinner? True, she could have left a message to this effect when she passed by the building two hours before. If she did not do so it must have been either because in the interval she altered her intention or because she was unwilling to acquaint her niece with that intention. Counsel himself inclined strongly to the latter opinion, which was bolstered up by Miss Bundy's refusal to allow her niece to remain with her. This in itself argued the existence of some secret plan, nor was it straining probabilities to assume that plan to have been responsible for the victim's ultimate fate.

Serge Wassilieff, a handsome, gray haired Russian of fifty, described his encounters with Michael Andreyev and denied knowing anything about the Paris trouble till the newspapers blazoned it to the world. Of Natasha Andreyev he had the highest opinion. He had known her as a child and had occasionally seen her in Paris. He could state positively that she was one in a thousand—high principled, loyal, dependable. For this reason, and also because of his deep attachment to her dead father, he had been only too anxious to help her in any way possible, much regretting his inability to hand her outright the money for the Persian enterprise. He had, however, told her to come to him if she could not otherwise raise the needed funds, but as she was very independent about asking favors he was not surprised at her failure to do so. He did not see her at all from their first discussion of the project till her appearance at his place of business in Great Portland street on March 26. It was then that she told him the difficulty she was in over Michael and begged him to keep the whole thing secret. She did not seem alarmed for her own safety, only terrified lest her brother should be hauled into the inquiry.

Patrick Healy, janitor of Midlothian Mansions, Wimbledon, failed to identify the prisoner as the lady who called to see Mr. Wassilieff on the evening of March 20. He did remember passing a lady on the stairs when he went to mend a fuse wire, but as the lights were out he had no idea what she looked like, nor did he recognize the prisoner's voice.

The saleswoman from Hobson & Weaver's identified the prisoner and gave details of the latter's unhurried selection of a coat. Three waiters and the cloakroom attendant from the Carlton hotel declared they had never seen her before. Mabel Douglas was called, and Neil saw before him the waspish, flaxen haired damsel from the Hammersmith Lyons. She surveyed the accused with antagonistic deliberation and gave a decided negative.

The clerk of the Assizes called Miss Gwendolen Pilcher.

Neil's collar choked him. For the second time the room dissolved in a haze, through which nothing was visible save a pallid, spectacled girl in a brown coat and skirt, who took her place in the box and fidgeted nervously with her rolled up cotton gloves. Timid conscientiousness gazed forth from her near sighted brown eyes. She bit her lip to stay its trembling and in a faint awed whisper repeated the oath.

Counsel—Miss Pilcher, I want you to take a good look at the prisoner and tell us if you served her at dinner at the Corner house on Friday, March 20. Consider every detail of her appearance and try to give us a definite yes or no.

The witness' distress was painful. Her eyes stared at Natasha; she flushed a dingy red, then paled to a sickly blue. A minute, two minutes passed, and still she remained tongue tied. The audience held its breath.

Counsel [encouragingly]—Don't be upset, Miss Pilcher. Take your time . . . Now, do you recall this lady's face?

Gwendolen Pilcher [in an agonized gasp]—No—O, no! O dear, I—I wish I did, but . . .

She gave way utterly and left the box in a flood of tears.

Mickey Mouse Creator Uses Color in Films

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—One of the most interesting features about this film business is the popularity for certain of the animated cartoon heroes. Of course, as any one mentions animateds, everybody thinks of Mickey Mouse, but a visit I recently paid to Mickey Mouse's home grounds, at the studio of his creator, Walt Disney, showed things even more interesting than Mr. Mouse.

The Disney studio is now engaged in putting out animated cartoon subjects in color, being the first to issue such, and several of the most recent reels which Mr. Disney ran off, showed how art and effectiveness can be combined with interest, when the color is good.

Disney uses the color for his "Silly Symphony" series and is coming out with one about Santa Claus for Christmas holidays release which is highly captivating.

Disney thinks his success with color in the animateds probably is the precursor to a successful employment of color for all kinds of action films. To date no feature picture in color has ever been successful, due to the imperfect manner in which the color impressions reached the movie fan's eyes, all blurred, with objects not clearly outlined, and some of the colors too strong while others receded.

Disney says that when he confined his cartoon comedies to black and white [which he will continue to do with the adventures of Mickey Mouse] the cost overaged about $12 a print, but he must now get $36 a print to clear the added expense.

There are fifteen ace artists employed at the Disney studio who, with their assistants and animators make up a male working force exceeding fifty, while another fifty employes are girls, most of whom work as "inkers." About three months is required from the time this plant starts one of its color comedies, to the time when it is turned out of the studio, completed.

In producing them, the studio force of gag men and script writers get together and put down ideas in script form, almost as complete in its detail as the regular working scenarios required for the nine and ten reel action dramas.

The color cartoons are then produced in black and white, and the coloring process goes on from there.

All work on Clara Bow's "Call Her Savage" has been completed at Fox's. Everybody who has seen or worked on any of it thinks Clara's comeback picture will be a big money maker.

Striped Tunic with Plain Skirt Shown in Paris

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—One of the newest French fashions for this winter is the reincarnation of the overskirt, or, as the Greeks had a word for them, tunics. Mainbocher's tunic evening dresses created a sensation with American buyers here this fall. Tunics for this winter may be real or synthetic. They can actually be separate from the skirt, or they can be artfully applied bands attached near the hem, giving a tunic effect. Mainbocher does this with many of his day coats and frocks. Tunics this season may also be any length, but the smartest kind reach the bottom of the hips at least.

Shown in the sketch today is a tunic dress that combines another feature of smart winter fashions—the combination of materials—for it has a monotone woolen skirt and a striped woolen tunic. This tunic, which ends just above the knees, has double, wide stripes in white, forming a chevron pattern. These same stripes start high up on the shoulder and extend around the sleeves, in chevron pattern.

This tunic has a high, round neckline, and ties in the center front with a huge self-material bow. The sleeves are made in one with the bodice, kimono fashion, being wide to the elbow, then narrowing down to the wrist. There is a black patent leather belt at the normal waistline.

The underskirt of this Lyolene frock is in black wool and has box plaits, giving it fullness, in contrast to its tunic.

Shame Is Poor Lever to Use on Bad Habits

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Shame. It's rather an awful word, isn't it? Do you ever use it toward your children?

Do you ever arouse the feeling, in order to correct what you consider a fault or a bad habit? I think it's a grave mistake to do so. Shame, surely if felt by children, is a destructive feeling. I'm not talking about a child's being regretful, or sorry for certain sorts of mistakes he's made. I'm talking about shame. If a child feels ashamed of himself or thinks some one else is ashamed of him, he is on the way to the making of "negative images" of himself.

That is not what we want him to do. We do not want him to picture himself as inferior, or bad, or shameful. That is not good for him.

This is particularly important to keep in mind when a child has developed some of the habits we class as undesirable — among which are both the ones we take rather lightly and the ones we take very seriously. Whatever the means we resort to, the arousing of a sense of shame should never be one of the levers we use to pry these habits loose.

Suppose your little girl's hands are disfigured by bitten nails. Don't use shame as your lever. Use pride, and add encouragement.

In Creaming the Face Don't Forget the Eyes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday we talked of lines around the eyes. There's more to be said about these telltale signs. It's signs how often you see on a comparatively young eyelid a crêpey, flabby toned skin. It's this that makes the eye look old. If you try to cover up the agedy skin with makeup you only exaggerate the age of the eye.

True, as one gets on in life, the eyelid loses that first resiliency of skin, just as the skin on the cheek loses its early smoothness and elasticity. Yet the skin on the rest of the face often is preserved long after the eyelid surface has lost youth's character. The reason is obvious. Women cleanse their faces with cream daily—and not one out of a hundred closes the eyelids and gives the skin thereon a bit of oil preservative. In fact, the whole eye section comes off rather badly in the daily treatment of the face. Isn't it true?

This trick that a number of women have now of glossing the lid over with a bit of oil [or cream] is excellent for eyelid care. Also it gives a fresh look to the eye that is extremely pleasing. I have one friend who mixes a bit of eyepaste with a bit of cold cream and uses this in her eye makeup work. The result is just a shadowy lid, but moist and very attractive. She happens to use a blue eyepaste. Her eyes are blue and that faint shadow of blue on the lid is good.

If the lid is very crinkled better not put on any paste. The same thing happens as when a wrinkled cheek is rouged. The flabbiness is more apparent; lines are more sharply etched. I have a theory based on observation of older woman that they might, with infinite profit to themselves, leave most of the cheek tinting to the young ones; also the eye shadowing. Where there are shadows in the cheeks and lines, and where lids are crêpey the foreign coloring rarely helps.

But there's always corrective work that can be done. Eyelids [and cheeks] can be toned and revitalized with daily treatment—massage, of course, and the use of a good nourishing cream and an astringent. For loosened and baggy skin beneath the eyes, in addition to a good nourishing cream, an astringent becomes imperative.

Mrs. Porter to Give Party for Brides of Sons

Yale alumni at the annual dinner of the Yale Club of Chicago at the Blackstone hotel.

The speaker will be President Angell and since this is the first visit he has made to Chicago in several years the Yale men in this territory are looking forward to hearing his talk with great interest. The invitations, on strawberry pink paper with two screamingly funny illustrations that might have come from the Police Gazette of the gay nineties, announce "the annual business meeting, very short, will be held in the dining room just before the speaking, and after the dinner it is rumored that there will be some added entertainment of an unusually pleasing nature."

Seated at the speaker's table with Dr. Angell will be John R. Winterbotham Jr., president of the Yale Club of Chicago, Frederick L. McNally, chairman of the dinner committee, John V. Farwell, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Edward K. Welles, Stephen Y. Hord, Henry A. Gardner, and A. A. Stagg.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Trumbull have decided to give a tea on Saturday, Dec. 31, at their residence, 390 Linden street, Winnetka, to introduce to society their daughter, Lucy Proctor. Miss Trumbull will arrive at home on Dec. 17 from the Sarah Lawrence college at Bronxville to spend the holidays in Winnetka.

Dinner for Mrs. Ordway.

Mrs. Lester Armour gave a dinner party last Saturday night at her Lake Forest residence for her house guest, Mrs. Lucius Ordway, who arrived on Friday from New York. Mrs. Ordway is going to Mrs. William H. Mitchell's house today and probably will remain there over the coming week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Ordway were popular members of the Lake Forest colony before they moved east several years ago.

Mrs. Philip Maher gave a tea party yesterday afternoon for the twenty-five girls who will sell hot dogs, popcorn, programs, and cigarets at the Eli Bates settlement benefit Saturday night in the 124th Field Artillery armory and at the party Mrs. John L. Senior, whose debutante daughter, Mary, is one of the twenty-five, invited the whole crowd and their escorts to dinner at the Casino before the benefit. Two polo games, military demonstrations, and a dance are on the evening's program of entertainment at the benefit.

Mrs. G. Corson Ellis and Mrs. Everett L. Wyman are to pour at a tea tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at the Lake Forest academy for Prof. Julius Moessel, Bavarian mural artist. The tea will open an exhibition of Prof. Moessel's decorative panels and screens in Reid hall. Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, Mrs. Logan T. McMenemy, Mrs. Van Wagenen Alling, and Headmaster and Mrs. John Wayne Richards will receive.

Reception for Lord Bishop.

Mrs. Robert F. Hall is chairman of a woman's committee in charge of a dinner and reception for the Rt. Rev. Lord William Gascoyne Cecil, bishop of Exeter, and Lady Cecil, to be given at the Hotel Sherman next Monday night at 6 o'clock by the Episcopal bishop of Chicago and the Church club.

While in Chicago the lord bishop and Lady Cecil will be guests of Bishop and Mrs. George Craig Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton are expected to return from a trip abroad about the 12th. They sailed in late August to see their daughter, Miss Suzette Morton, who went to Paris in midsummer for some preliminary study before entering the Sorbonne this fall.

The Mortons went to England with their daughter for the hunting season and then returned to France for a few weeks' stay. Mrs. Morton's mother, Mrs. Heaton Owsley, is in New York City after a sojourn at the Virginia Hot Springs and probably will return to Chicago with her son-in-law and daughter.

Mrs. Winterbotham Buchanan has returned from a summer abroad and an autumn in the White mountains and has an apartment at the Whitehall for the winter. Mrs. Buchanan plans to concentrate on the study of music this year.

Members of the Woman's Athletic club and their guests will have the opportunity of seeing and hearing Dorothy Sands portray "Styles in Acting" this morning at 11 o'clock at the club. In order that Miss Sands may be presented to the club this morning Mrs. Richard F. Peyton has postponed her lecture on bridge.

"The Gospel of Work and the New Era of Leisure" is to be discussed by Dr. Horace J. Bridges this morning at 11 o'clock at the Fortnightly in the second of a course of five lectures.

It will be Austrian day for the Junior Friends of Art this afternoon at their second meeting of the season, to be held at 2:30 o'clock in the mosaic room of the Belden-Stratford hotel. Michael F. Girten, consul for Austria, will talk on "Music, Dramatic and Art Development of Austria."

The Vassar club will give a dinner this evening at Vassar house for Miss Helen Brown, a former Vassar teacher, and for the French consul, René Weiller, and Mrs. Weiller.

Urge Children to Help Their Needy Friends

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

This is an open letter to the boys and girls of Chicago.

In nearly all the preceding stories telling of the Hungry School Children's fund the messages have been written especially for your fathers and mothers. This letter is for you, and we are hoping you will answer it very soon.

Do you remember the last time you were hungry? Perhaps you were playing out in the yard and along about dusk you came into the kitchen and smelled all the good things cooking on the stove and thought you couldn't possibly wait until dinner time.

There are a good many boys and girls in the very schools you go to every day who are that hungry, not just before dinner but all the time. THE TRIBUNE'S Hungry School Children's fund was started so a lot of money could be raised to buy lunches for these children so they wouldn't feel hungry any more.

We believe that many of you boys and girls who have a little money to spend every week would like to treat some of these children to a nice, good meal in the school lunchroom. All you have to do is to save your pennies—say, one every day — and send the money to the Hungry School Children's fund in care of the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

We are not asking you to turn over your whole allowance to the Hungry School Children's fund. But if you plan carefully you will be able to save a few pennies every week. And five pennies, you know, will buy a bowl of soup with meat and vegetables in it, a glass of milk and some fruit or pudding for dessert. We think perhaps you will enjoy treating another unknown girl or boy in your school to a meal like that.

Yesterday's contributions arrived from the following:

$100—The Insurance Company of North America Good Fellows organization.
$25—Mrs. A. W. Peake.
$15—In memory of Winifred Boyd Henriksen.

$2—Olive Shoenberger.
$1—W. B. Hutchison, Anonymous, Mrs. M. Brophy, J. A. N., M. E. V.

Bouillon Cube Friendly Time Saver for Cook

Gives Savory Accent to Many Dishes.

BY MARY MEADE.

Kitchenette wizards with no space for an excess of cookery kettles and no burners to devote to all day stewing of soup bones, are more and more turning to short cuts and quickly prepared foods which need little elbow room and are ready to waltz tableward almost as soon as the inspiration for them has popped into the cook's head.

One of the best actors among these friendly time savers is none other than the self-contained bouillon cube which is nowadays not only starting off the hurry-up meal with a savory cup of steaming broth but is turning up in a score of dishes—sauces, gravies, soups, salads, salad dressing, meat dressing, souffles, spaghetti creations, and an army of other delicacies and giving us a new short cut to a fuller, richer meat flavor.

For instance, how would you like, first of all, to turn out a more delicious tomato bouillon than has yet been your lot—and at the same time save on the food budget? About a cent a glass will be the cost, but the value—ah, that is measured in tickled palates, ecstatic sniffs, and added family cheer! This recipe will make eight cocktail glasses full of savory goodness:

TOMATO COCKTAIL EXTRAORDINARY.

3 bouillon cubes
1 cup boiling water
2 cups cold water
½ cup canned tomato sauce
1 teaspoon peppery sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash white pepper

Dissolve the cubes in the boiling water, then add the rest of the ingredients and chill until very cold. Serve in attractive cocktail glasses or goblets and prepare for a real deluge of compliments.

Or would you inject zest and enthusiasm into your salads? Here's how. Prepare lettuce, vegetables, fish, or what-is-it for salad—right up to the salad dressing stage. Then put all ingredients in the refrigerator to chill while you mix the following dressing: Pour two tablespoons of boiling water over two bouillon cubes. When dissolved add four tablespoons of vinegar, one-half cup salad oil, two-thirds teaspoon onion juice, one teaspoon sugar, and a dash of paprika. Beat or shake until well blended. Then serve over crisp, green foods or combine with chilled salad ingredients.

Any place where snappy, well seasoned meat flavor would add a happy touch, bouillon cubes may be applied. An intriguing canape, for instance, may be evolved by dissolving two bouillon cubes in two tablespoons of boiling water and working into this one-half cup of cream cheese, two tablespoons of minced sweet pickle, a chopped, hard cooked egg, and dashes of salt and paprika. Prepare small, fancy shapes of thin bread, toast on one side, and spread with the canape mixture.

A cube or two of any fine flavored bouillon preparation will also add an interesting touch to the more familiar chili or tomato sauce dressing for shell fish cocktail. Simply dissolve the cubes in a little hot water and add to prepared sauce. A touch of horseradish, lemon juice, and some other peppery sauce will help to bring out the pleasant, meaty flavor.

Halloween Party

Mrs. Kingman Douglass (left), Mrs. Phelps Kelley, and George F. McLaughlin were three of the jolly crowd that assembled at the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest Saturday night to dine and dance for the benefit of Arden Shore. It was a Halloween party with most of the guests in costumes of one sort or another. Mrs. Douglass is chairman of the Lake Forest Arden Shore committee and Mrs. McLaughlin was chairman of the committee in charge of the party.

Smart Gloves Are Smaller This Season

Are Made to Wear with Large Sleeves.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

With tent sized sleeves practically blotting out the very existence of every other portion of the female wardrobe, same sleeve blinded shoppers. The new gloves are blushing unseen by some sleeve blinded shoppers. The gloves are such good looking things that it is a shame that somebody hasn't started bally hoo for them.

But you will find them, when you need them . . . new collections showing what the well gloved woman will wear for daytime, street, tea time and for evening. You are going to see lots of kid gloves, trim, slim affairs with very moderate cuffs that flare, but most discreetly. By the process of deduction, any glove collector will realize that anything you pull over your fingers and tuck around your wrist as contrast for all the balloon sleeves must be small, even infinitesimal, and the new hand covers have shrunk alarmingly but obligingly.

Cuffs are seldom more than two or three inches in width, the flare is easily ammendable to reasonable disappearing acts under coat or dress cuffs. Decorations are simple but striking, especially when a knowing designer splashes some sparkling white contrasts over the dull black cuffs . . . scallops outlined with white, triangular cutouts also edged with white, and simple borders of white are the most popular. Lattice work superimposed on the cuffs and tiny tailored flowers of either white or black are something else to look for.

The dashing deb and sub-deb wears short jaunty gloves with evening ensembles, either of kid or velvet, and if you don't believe that velvet gloves are going places, try to get a couple of pair in a hurry . . . most of the velvet gloves have been sold before the collections were a week old . . . but reorders are arriving daily, so every one should be satisfied.

Shirred velvet gloves are as practical and popular as they are good to look at . . . some of the long elbow length models are so cleverly shirred that they stay in place better than the kid-skin variety . . . short shirred creations are as bewitching as a ruffled romantic frock and are perfect for youthful consumption. Slip-on gloves remain the best companions to every dress or suit or coat in the modern wardrobe. If you have any doubt as to what to wear or what to buy, the answer is slip-ons. You'll find them in soft suedes in black, brown, and street colors in kidskins for your tailored things and sports clothes and for classic evening gowns.

If you are wearing brown gloves this year try some of the huge ballon bracelets of transparent prystal as a good contrast . . . three of these, or if you are a bit uneasy over the noise of three, try two, one on each wrist and watch the envious gleam in any feminine eye. Wear these wide round bracelets over your gloves or coat cuff. The chormium bracelets glitter entrancingly against sooty black and deep brown and dark gray and red costumes.

The gal who insists upon gloves the same texture as her sports clothes will buy a supply of the colored rough textured gloves that look more like tweeds and rough woolens than they do uncut velvet which is the rather misleading, but correct name for them.

These colored gloves come in all the high and bright colors

Practical Slip for Matron Has Adjustable Belt

WOMAN'S SLIP.

It is easy to see that study has been given to the designing of this costume slip for matrons. The wrapped closing is really an asset, as it can be adjusted to suit your figure. A narrow belt, attached to the front edges of the slip, is passed through an opening at the right underarm seam. It ties at the left side.

The pattern, 2990, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35-inch material with 7 yards of binding.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Has Standard of Behavior Been Changed?

Do Boys Prefer Girls Who Drink, Pet?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

What manner of thinking goes on in the mind of an 18 year old like "Brown Eyes?" She's been brought up by a mother who tells her that the girl with the unblemished character is the one men choose for a wife. But mother, the girl thinks, doesn't know some of our young smoking, drinking and petting moderns and how they manage their matrimonial catches.

"I don't think," "Brown Eyes" volunteers, "that what mother says goes as well today as it did years ago. I know nice girls who drink, nice girls who smoke and nice girls who pet. Girls today cannot be disqualified for doing these things, since it is such a common practise among them. And what affects me and why I am writing this letter is that girls brought up as I have been are told frankly that we are 'too good for modern male nature's daily food.'

"I've been told it, not once but a number of times. I have been going with boys since the age of 15. I have kept company with refined, well mannered boys; boys from good families. But always this obstacle arises. After we have gone out a few times, the boy serves notice on me that his sex does not go for the goody-goody girl any more. They enjoy more the company of a girl who drinks, smokes and pets."

It's no consolation on top of this notice, that you are a "swell kid," as "Brown Eyes" hears in these final eulogies. It's no help to know that you're no eyesore either as to physical appearance or dress, that you can dance like a professional, and know how to do a few other things well enough to make you an agreeable companion. That you don't expect an "angel" to fall in love with you. That you're not prudish nor critical of the girls who smoke and drink and pet.

"Brown Eyes'" story is an oft-repeated one here. But what we'd like to get for her and her troubled sisters is an honest-to-goodness answer from boys on the question: "Has the standard of behavior for girls changed? And how much? Come on and tell us, boys!"

NOTRE DAME COACH DEMOTES 3 REGULARS

MOVIES TAKE A TIP ON TRADING FROM BASEBALL

Barter Blondes for Cowboys and Dogs.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The moving picture magnates have borrowed a practice from the baseball magnates and occasional reports from Hollywood indicate that beautiful people of both sexes are being reduced to the same sort of slavery that binds the ball players.

It is known that when a young baseball player signs his first contract, he binds himself for his whole career. He not only sells his services for the term of the original contract, but by the reserve clause he promises to renew the contract at any price that may be offered by any subsequent employer to whom the contract may be assigned until he is all through with baseball.

Speaking of Trades.

Moreover, the employer becomes his owner, with the right to sell or trade him for other ball players or goods. One player was traded for a bird dog a couple of years ago and Uncle Wilbert Robinson, who is fond of bird dogs, was heard to remark that it was time to quit paying fantastic prices for ball players. Another athlete in the low minors was traded for a bag of slightly used baseballs and when his late owner complained that the baseballs were not even fit for sandlot baseball, the new owner said, "Well, what are you kicking about?"

The Hollywood magnates have not gone quite as far as the baseball magnates, but they have developed a trading system whereby a producer who has a blonde ingénue on his pay roll for $200 a week, with no rôle for her to play, may trade her to some other producer for a dramatic cowboy or an educated collie suitable for the leading role in an animal drama. The Hollywood producers do not believe in wasting talent on the bench as the baseball owners do.

Blondes Rate No Preference.

The producers do not always have the proper artistic sympathy, and a beautiful blonde may find herself traded to an unfeeling proprietor who will order her to black up and play Topsy in a superspecial revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." If a lady feels that such a rôle is not suitable and refuses to play it, she is guilty of a breach of contract and her pay stops and, moreover, nobody can hire her until the contract has expired.

By that time she may be an ingenue no longer and, even if she is, she is likely to have been forgotten. There are always plenty of blondes coming along to the movies, and a producer can always reach out into the Brown Derby or some other Hollywood restaurant, which serve as the bullpens for histrionic blondes, and sign up a new find.

True, the conditions of the blondes' slavery might be considerably worse. They could be ordered to wash the dishes in the cafeteria on the lot or sweep out the offices to earn their $200 a week in such times as there is no work for them to do in the artistic side of the profession.

Joe Was Star Bat Boy.

Ball players have been known to perform very humble tasks not listed in the lineup or the official statistics in order to hold their jobs, and Mr. Joe McCarthy, the manager of the Yankees, admits that he once combined the duties of substitute infielder and assistant bat caddy for the Indianapolis club. He was not a very good infielder, but Jimmy Burke, who was his manager then and is his assistant now, gives him a very good reputation as a bat boy.

As a general thing, however, the moving picture magnates are a little more tactful than the baseball proprietors. Theoretically, a beautiful blonde might be required to play Topsy in blackface, but it would not be very likely to happen because, for one reason, Topsy is a rôle that might need a little acting. Actually, the blondes are not asked to step very far out of character, wherein they are much better off than some of the baseball heroes who are shifted from the infield to the outfield and into the box and up behind the bat, according to the exigencies of the business.

The practice of trading employes is confined to the baseball, hockey, and professional football industries, and the movies, but the system may now appeal to employers in other lines while prices of labor are down.

An Idea for Contractors.

It would be just as logical for a paving contractor to sign up a thousand laborers at the current rate of $3 a day for six months of the year [which is the term of the baseball season], with a reserve clause in the articles which would bind the men to work for the same rate of pay or less until the end of their effective days with the pick and shovel. Then, if wages ever should rise to $5 or $6 a day again, the contractor would be in a position to work the men for much less than the market price and if they refused he could enjoin them from working for anybody else.

This may sound imaginative, but it would be only a faithful application of the system of hire which has been in force in the baseball industry for many years. The contractor with 1,000 laborers bound to work for him perpetually for $3 a day might be able to sell them outright for a certain price per head to other contractors later on or trade a certain number of them for a used concrete mixer or a membership in a golf club.

TALKING IT OVER

BY ARCH WARD.

THE heaviest frost of the season fell in Chicago Sunday afternoon. It was particularly damaging at Wrigley field.

That was the place 5,000 turned out to see Benny Friedman and his Brooklyn Dodgers play Joe Lillard and his Chicago Cardinals in a National Professional league game.

BENNY FRIEDMAN.

About 4,800 hurried their Sunday dinners to see Friedman and Lillard. The remaining 200 went to watch the Dodgers play the Cardinals.

The 200 came home satisfied. They had seen the Cardinals whip the Dodgers. The other 4,800 went away soured on the Cardinals, soured on the Dodgers and soured on professional football. Friedman, the man they wanted most to see, was 1,000 miles away from the gridiron.

There seems no justification for Friedman's nonappearance. He was in Chicago Wednesday. A TRIBUNE reporter tried to reach him for an interview and was told to come back at 11:30 a. m. Thursday. When the reporter went to the hotel to keep the appointment he was informed by Mr. Friedman's assistant, a Mr. Champaign, that Mr. Friedman had left for New York but would be back in time for the game Saturday.

All the Chicago newspapers carried stories that Friedman would play Sunday. There was no reason to doubt it. Without any explanation he failed to show up.

Dr. David Jones, president of the Cardinals, has protested Friedman's action to Joe Carr, president of the league. Unless Mr. Carr penalizes Friedman so severely that his offense will not occur again, professional football will have been set back ten years.

Following is a copy of Dr. Jones' letter to Mr. Carr:

"I wish to call your attention to the action of the Brooklyn Dodgers as regards their game with the Chicago Cardinals Sunday. Friedman and team arrived in Chicago Monday the week of the game. I talked with Benny Tuesday. Our publicity man tried to get in touch with Friedman Wednesday evening, but was told that Friedman had gone to New York, but that he would return in time to play Sunday.

"As a result we went ahead with our plans concerning Friedman's appearance. Sunday at 1 p. m. I inquired [was not even notified] and learned that Benny had not returned to the city.

"We are making every effort to play fair with the fans, and we demand that our opponents do likewise. Therefore I request that you take steps to prevent a recurrence of this breach of ethics."

There seems to be something to football psychology after all. Judge Walter P. Steffen, coach at Carnegie Tech, predicted in this column last week that Notre Dame would have a tough time beating Pittsburgh. He said the psychological setup favored the Panthers. Notre Dame had rolled up tremendous scores against weak opponents. The players were reading in some of the papers that they were a cinch for national honors.

You know what happened. Pittsburgh last Saturday was a better football team than Notre Dame.

It is a tribute to the brand of football they play at Notre Dame that it is considered first page news the country over when the team is defeated. How much longer will that condition prevail?

Notre Dame has four major opponents—Southern California, Army, Pittsburgh, and Northwestern. Since Rockne's death the Irish have played five games with these rivals. They have won one, tied one, and lost three.

You hear insinuations that Notre Dame would have lost none of these games had Rockne been on the coaching bench. Maybe not. Rockne had a way of winning when nobody thought he could. Those kind of fellows come along only once in a decade.

You also hear that Notre Dame for the first time within the memory of man looked bad in the closing moments of last Saturday's game. But what about the afternoon Carnegie Tech trampled over Rockne's 1928 team, 27 to 7, at South Bend?

If Notre Dame didn't look bad on that occasion, Kate Smith is a ballet dancer and the depression is only a myth.

BLOCKED KICK NO ACCIDENT IN FOOTBALL

Coaches Drill on It as a Scoring Chance.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The blocked kick, as a scoring play, probably is considered more or less an accident by the general public, when it occurs. But hours are spent by football coaches and players in perfecting kicking formations and in planning how best to block opponents' kicks. The success teams had in blocking kicks last Saturday brings up the subject.

Michigan scored its first and winning touchdown against Princeton by blocking a kick. California [Southern branch] defeated Stanford by blocking two punts. Alabama's only defeat this fall [by Tennessee, 7 to 3] was due to a hurried kick which went out of bounds on Alabama's 11 yard line. And so on.

What Protection Has Kicker?

The common protection offered the kicker is five men in the line, from tackle to tackle, and three backs. The right tackle blocks longer than the left tackle if the kicker is right footed. Two backs line up on the right for the same reason. The ends are sent down field as the ball is snapped to prevent return of the kick. In some few cases the ends may be kept in the line.

The defense against a kick may choose:

1. To concentrate on returning the kick by placing only six men in the scrimmage line and adding to the number of blockers for the receiver. The defensive ends also may drop back to help retard the ends covering the kick.

2. To place seven men, and sometimes eight, in the line and concentrate on blocking the kick.

Watch for Surprise Plays.

The position of the ball and the number of the down determines the latter course. If the kicking team is near its own goal line, regardless of down, this attempt to increase chance of blocking the kick may be taken, but unless it is fourth down a surprise run, or even a pass may cross up the defense. However, regardless of down, if the kicker is standing on or behind his own goal line, the defense will concentrate on blocking the kick. Then the defenders of the kicker may have eight men to block out.

Speed in getting off the kick is all important under this circumstance. The pass from the center must be accurate and swift and the kicker should not take more than two steps before punting. The kicking team also is under mental strain to which it is not subjected when punting near midfield.

Definite plays for blocking kicks are worked out. Linemen will pull their opponents apart for another to hurdle through the opening. Tackles will push blocking backs outward for the end to cut inside into the path of the kicker.

We heard another reason yesterday for Notre Dame's defeat by Pittsburgh. Our informant said that Pitt used a tight seven man line against Notre Dame, each man playing in front of his Notre Dame opponent. While this defense was vulnerable at the ends of the line, Pitt's half backs were stationed wide to cover Notre Dame's lateral passes to the full back, which, so it is said, is Notre Dame's only effective wide play.

This same informant, a coach, also said Army used the same defense to stop Notre Dame in 1931, when the cadets held Notre Dame scoreless.

Friedman Claims Father-in-Law Suffered Stroke

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—The failure of Benny Friedman, star of the Brooklyn Dodgers, to lead his team against the Chicago Cardinals in a professional football game at Chicago yesterday was due solely to the sudden illness of his father-in-law, he told THE TRIBUNE at his home in Brooklyn tonight.

"My father-in-law suffered a paralytic stroke on the eve of the Cardinal game," he said, "and I thought it necessary to be with him. I intend, however, to rejoin the Dodgers for their game here next Sunday."

ONE MORE GAME
FOOT-BALL
SATURDAY, NOV. 19, '92.
CHICAGO UNIVERSITY VS. PURDUE
—A GAME REPLETE WITH BRILLIANT PLAYS.—

This poster advertised the first battle between Coach A. A. Stagg's Chicago football team and Purdue at Lafayette, Ind., on Nov. 19, 1892. The teams play the 38th game of the series on the Midway Saturday.

1892--When Purdue Learned to Fear Stagg and Vice Versa

As Purdue prepares for the 37th renewal of its football series with Amos Alonzo Stagg's Chicago eleven, which this year marks the 40th anniversary of the first meeting between the two teams, it is interesting to turn back the pages of history to that first Purdue-Chicago game, played in Lafayette, Ind., on Nov. 19, 1892, when Stagg was just starting his coaching career.

Even in those days, when Stagg in truth was the Chicago team, the former Yale star who played on the Maroon eleven as well as being the coach had given indication that he would reach the pinnacle of coaching success.

Purdue's First Championship.

In connection with Purdue's homecoming this fall a special celebration was held in commemoration of the 1892 Purdue team which won the Boilermakers' first championship, and the reunion of ten of the living members of that undefeated eleven brought to light a number of souvenirs to delight the football historian.

Among the most interesting reminders of that gridiron era of 40 years ago was the collection of John Thompson, present postmaster at Edinburg, Ind., who was a half back on the eleven, which included a poster displayed in advertising the first meeting of Purdue and Chicago, along with a clipping from a Lafayette morning paper of Nov. 21, 1892, describing the game, which Purdue won, 38 to 0.

Even in that first game, Stagg had obtained place in the hearts of the Purdue fans, which he has retained throughout the series, for after a few "literary" opening paragraphs the story of what happened starts out as follows:

"Yale had a great player once, named Stagg. Recently he came to Chicago university as a physical director, and there he organzed a football eleven of the greenest kind of material.

15 Men Out for Team.

"It is not generally known, but his men never lined up against an opposing eleven until they went into their first regular championship game. There is no second eleven for them to practice against, no enthusiasm at the school they represent, and of the fifteen men who went into the gymnasium with Stagg to take a few lessons in football, thirteen are on the team today.

"So it seems he had only fifteen men to pick a team from. And see what he has done with them: they play a strong game in defense, work like Turks on the aggressive, and are never a moment off guard. Most of them tackle well and several of them are very proficient in line work. Stagg himself plays everywhere; he is almost omnipresent, in every scrimmage, at every tackle and in every push. No matter where a Purdue man ran, Stagg was there when he was downed.

Plays Great Defensive Game.

". . . He [Stagg] says that Purdue plays one of the strongest defensive games he ever saw, and is earnest in his belief that they can hold Cornell closely down and maybe beat her.

". . . For Chicago the best playing was done by Stagg, of course, but clever work was performed by young Chase, Conover, and Smith.

"Jamison [A. P. Jamison, now general manager of the Ruger Baking company, Lafayette, Ind.], prevented Stagg making a touchdown, and thereby saved the Purdue team from that odium. By a desperate rush the Chicago captain bolted through Purdue's line, knocked off the tackles and got the open field. Just as he thought he was safe, little Jamy came at him from heaven knows where and down went Stagg. The day was saved—and the camel's back was dislocated. The game was full of brilliant plays and the 600 shivering spectators proclaimed it the best of the season."

What? A Late Start!

The sporting commentator of that day informs the public that the game was supposed to start at 2:30 o'clock, but didn't get under way until nearly 3 o'clock. The starting lineups are given as follows:

PURDUE.		CHICAGO.
Crowell	L. E.	Chase
Finney	L. T.	Wyant
Fulkerson	L. G.	Knapp
Stevenson	C.	Buhlmeetter

Huddleson	Q. B.	Raycroft

The play by play of the game provides some interesting sidelights on football of that day. Excerpts follow:

N. U. TELEPHONE SYSTEM BRINGS GOPHER PROTEST

McCormick Speaks His Mind; Hanley Calm.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Frank McCormick, University of Minnesota's new athletic director, today said he would file a complaint with Northwestern't athletic department, protesting the Wildcat telephone communication system between the bench and press box which was employed during the Minnesota-Northwestern game last Saturday.

McCormick said every detail of play as the game progressed was telephoned from an assistant coach in the press box to another coach sitting on the bench, giving Gopher weaknesses. McCormick learned of the system in the fourth quarter of the game and ordered the wire disconnected just before the Gophers scored to win, 7 to 0.

Sees Need of Rule.

"Things are going too far when methods of this sort are employed. It is not covered by any rule, but I believe one is needed. I regard the method as unethical and after I complete my investigation to determine by whom the wire was authorized, I will file a protest with Northwestern authorities. Some coach will be sending up a balloon filled with eagle eyed observers before long," McCormick said.

HANLEY UNDISTURBED.

"Why, we've been doing that for years and can see nothing unethical about it," said Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern yesterday when informed that Frank McCormick, Minnesota athletic director, planned to file a complaint because of Northwestern's use of a telephone communication system during games.

"The system was used before my time at Northwestern by Coach Glen Thistlethwaite, and I picked it up. We've used it this year at Michigan, Illinois and Minnesota, and I though every one knew about it. Certainly Fritz Crisler [former Minnesota athletic director] knew about it, and so we didn't have any idea that it was a mystery," Hanley continued.

To Check Own Players.

"The principal value of the telephone between the press box and the dugout is to get a better idea of the physical fitness of our players. We have an assistant coach, usually the freshman coach, sitting in the press box in communication with another assistant on the bench. It is foolish to think for a minute that I would receive suggestions for plays from the assistant stationed in the press box. I map out the plays before game time myself."

COLUMBIA PAPER URGES SALARIES FOR FOOTBALL

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special]—Open remuneration to football players "to an extent commensurate with their services to the university" was urged today by the Columbia Spectator in its leading editorial, which suggested that instead of operating under the present system football be recognized as a "paid advertising medium."

The Spectator, which has conducted a militant campaign against the alleged professionalism of members of the Columbia university football team, asserted that it "strongly objected to the present system."

Sox Take Out $100,000 Insurance on Al Simmons

The White Sox are not worrying about the physical fitness of Al Simmons, the outfielder whom they purchased from the Athletics at the end of the season. They were assured that the hard hitting Milwaukeean is 100 per cent following an examination for a $100,000 insurance policy for which the south side baseball club is beneficiary.

N. U. Freshman Guard Suffers Fractured Leg

Milton Obstfeld, 180 pound guard on the Northwestern freshman team, suffered a fractured right leg in a scrimmage with the varsity eleven yesterday. He was taken to the Evanston hospital and Dr. Marcus Hobart, team physician, set the broken leg.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

DESERVED ACCLAIM.

CAPT. GIL BERRY of Illinois at last is recipient of long deferred, but none the less deserved acclaim. Recognition came because of his stellar part in the Illini defeat of Chicago Saturday, the first Big Ten victory of an Illinois eleven since the opening contest of 1930. Previously, Berry had been one of football's tragedies.

GIL BERRY.

Berry matriculated at Illinois with a brilliant high school record. In his freshman year he was heralded as a possible successor to Red Grange. Any unusual freshman ball carrier at Urbana is a possible successor to Red Grange just as a promising colt on the turf is a possible successor to Man o' War. Illinois had won the conference titles in 1927 and 1928 and was up among the leaders in 1929.

Then followed the two most unfortunate gridiron years in the Zuppke régime. Berry, who was filled with ambition to go places over the chalk lines, had such inadequate support that his efforts usually were nullified by superior lines and secondary defenses. Still he kept on trying.

I saw this young man in the Michigan game last year, which the Wolverines won, 35 to 0. Although nursing a wrenched back, Berry insisted on playing. In fact, it was almost necessary for him to play. He called signals, did the punting, passing, ran with the ball for the few gains made, and made most of the tackles to stop the Michigan backs when the backs were stopped. He was more valuable than if his teammates had been able to send him on scoring exeursions. In 1930 he also was a star of the Wolverine contest.

Came 1932, and we are told there were campus whispers—you know these campus whispers—that perhaps, after all, Berry was not as great as once thought, that his leadership was not inspiring. On Saturday, with the Illini underdogs against an eleven which had beaten Indiana, Capt. Berry gave the answer. The Wake congratulates a great player who has not had much opportunity to show his prowess.

With the coming of the dawn?
Could our hearts grow somewhat lighter
With the newness of it gone?

Could we mend the broken flowers
That we trod beneath us then?
And could all our friendly hours
Come together once again?

Oh, we know how bitter lonely
Are the moments of regret.
And how fortune favors only
The endeavor to forget.

But we hunger for the hidden,
With its old familiar touch,
And we cannot feel forbidden
To remember it so much.

Don Juan de Barcelona.

MOVE HITS CAPT. HOST, LUKATS AND ALEXANDER

Defeat by Pitt Is Given as Cause.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's surprising defeat at the hands of Pittsburgh resulted today in the most drastic shakeup of the season in any major football camp. Three regulars, including Capt. Paul Host, were demoted to the second team by Coach Heartley [Hunk] Anderson.

Host's place at end in the varsity lineup was taken by Hugh Devore. Nick Lukats, left half back, was ousted in favor of Mike Koken, and Ben Alexander was replaced at center by Kitty Gorman.

And that's only the beginning of the changes planned by Anderson because of the 12 to 0 beating his team took Saturday, he intimated in a talk to the regulars in the gymnasium this afternoon.

Will Sift Material.

"We 've got a lot of good material and before the week is over I'm going to find out just who wants to get in there and fight," Anderson said.

The coach said that, before the game, he figured Notre Dame was at least two touchdowns superior to the Panthers.

Some of the Notre Dame followers of the grandstand coach variety were inclined to blame Anderson for the defeat, but others lay it to the early season schedule, which was arranged by the late Knute Rockne.

Played Three Weak Teams.

The first three opponents of the season, Haskell, Drake, and Carnegie Tech were expected by Rockne to prove good trial horses for Notre Dame, but instead all three showed up with weak teams and the Irish scored almost whenever they pleased. The first team played only 45 minutes in the three games.

Coach Anderson had nothing but praise for the Pittsburgh team, but he thinks that the Pittsburgh newspapers also contributed to Notre Dame's defeat.

"Added to the fact that Pitt had a splendid team and that Sebastian made a great run against us to score the first touchdown," Anderson said, "I think that we were beaten by the Pittsburgh papers. Pitt was a good team, but it wasn't as good as we can be if we are in the right frame of mind.

Cites Bear Stories.

"After reading the Pittsburgh papers, our players couldn't make themselves realize that they were about to play one of the hardest games of the year. Pitt didn't seem able to outfit eleven able-bodied men, according to the papers, and we were praised as a wonder team before we had even played a tough game. Then these kids heard that people were giving from 15 to 20 points on us in the betting.

"I don't think they were entirely fooled by these stories any more than I was," Anderson continued, "but it was just impossible for them to go into that game in a vicious, fighting frame of mind. I know they aren't a cocky bunch, but they are just kids and they fell for Pitt's bear stories."

Kansas Papers Barred.

When Notre Dame plays Kansas at Lawrence next Saturday, the players won't be bothered by what they see in the Kansas papers, because they won't see any papers.

The squad will leave here Friday night instead of Thursday in order to do away with an extra day in Kansas City and Lawrence. It will arrive in Kansas City at 8 o'clock the morning of the game and will go to Lawrence at 11, following breakfast and a sight seeing trip.

"No reporters will talk to the players, they won't see any newspaper bear stories, no pictures will be taken, and there will be no backslapping or handshaking," Anderson said.

Students at Pitt Forsake Books to Celebrate Victory

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—University of Pittsburgh students today celebrated the victory of Pitt's football team over Notre Dame Saturday. Classrooms were empty and university authorities were forced to declare a holiday.

Late sleepers were aroused by boy and girl students as the celebrants paraded about the lobby of the Schenley hotel. Other students invaded the nearby campus of Carnegie Tech. Students at Tech, remembering the rout of their own team a week ago by the Irish, gave their callers what might be termed a cool reception.

Pitt enthusiasts found doors locked while Tech students, with buckets of water beside them, looked down silently from upper windows. No deliberate attempt was made to dampen the ardor of Pitt's backers, but the water remained at hand for emergencies.

Celebrants disported themselves downtown throughout the morning. Carpenters put up protecting frames in the lobby of a burlesque theater in preparation for the traditional "gate crashing" ceremony. Snake dances and noise were the order of the day in Pittsburgh as the 12 to 0 victory over Notre Dame was duly recorded.

PIGEON HOLE IS VICTOR AS RACE CURTAIN FALLS

9,000 See Closing Card at Sportsman's Park.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Out in the darkness of Cicero the six months' old Chicago racing season came to a close shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon with 9,000 spectators cheering wildly for the famous old Pigeon Hole.

Just before the curtain rolled down on a notable turf season Pigeon Hole raced from far back in the Au Revoir Handicap, came up in the run down the stretch, and won going away by three lengths.

Outbound, at times ten lengths in front of Pigeon Hole, finished second. Durva was third, but hardly ever a contender.

Weather No Proof of Season.

There was nothing about the conclusion of the racing season in Chicago for the year that would indicate Chicago had been the racing center of America for the last six months.

The weather was dark and dreary and a drizzling rain was falling. Cheap horses were running around the half-mile track which was slow and thoroughly saturated with moisture which had been falling for almost a week.

Yet when Pigeon Hole rolled home the winner of the closing feature everybody cheered, for most of the folks at the track had wagered on him. He was the 1 to 2 favorite and ran like he did back at Arlington Park a few seasons ago when he defeated the champion Sun Beau in a race that was worth $25,000.

The Au Revoir handicap carried the claiming clause and after Pigeon Hole had triumphed so impressively he found a new home. Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago dropped $2,500 into the claiming box and led him away to her stable. He was the property of J. D. Mikel, youthful downstate turfman from Bloomington, until Mrs. Denemark decided she wanted the horse to race in her colors.

Runs It in 1:48.

Pigeon Hole carried only 108 pounds in the dash at a mile and seventy yards, which he ran in 1:48 over a track that was slow and bordering on being heavy. The track record for the route is 1:46. Pigeon Hole turned in a performance that would have been worthy of any stake performer in the country. It might have beaten all of the top liners.

The Au Revoir with old Pigeon Hole staging a spectacular rally which pleased everybody who had wagered on him brought a fine climax to the Chicago season. Pigeon Hole and Infinity were the only favorites to win all afternoon. This made it a genuine getaway day affair.

Chicagoans apparently haven't run out of money. The wagering was as brisk yesterday as it was on the opening day of the season here last spring. The attendance was larger than it was when the season opened under almost perfect weather conditions way back in May.

Daily Double Pays $50.48.

The daily double players, the folks who hooked up the long shot Spot Pot with the favorite Infinity in the third, fared well, for the combination paid $50.84 for a two dollar ticket. Jockey Arcaro's riding made Infinity's victory possible.

In the early stages the fleet Forget Not ran rings around him and led by eight lengths. As they hit the last turn Infinity, once quite a stake horse, found his racing legs again. He drew up on Forget Not a stride at a time and headed him in the final steps to win by inches.

The horses began to scatter soon after the last race was run. Many of them were vanned to nearby farms. Others were on the cars headed for the winter racing centers at New Orleans, Agua Caliente, Cuba, and Florida.

Why Purdue Fears Stagg, Vice Versa

the ball, giving Purdue the east goal. They made five yards on the V and Breneman got another five. Jamison stole the ball from McGillivray. Finney broke through and made a touchdown. Fulkerson kicked goal. Purdue, 6. It took nearly thirty minutes of very hard play to secure the point.

Polk Stops Chicago.

"When Chicago started at center again Polk's fine tackling caused them to lose the ball on four downs. Thompson made a phenomenal fifty yard run for goal, but ran out of bounds. Five yard dashes by Little, Fulkerson, Finney and Thompson soon got Finney over the line for a touchdown, but Fulk missed goal. Purdue, 10.

"Stagg got ten yards on the next start at center by fine work.

"Purdue started the second half with Studebaker in Kintner's place. Jamison got four yards on the V, Fulkerson fifteen yards, Finney, Fulkerson and Little five apiece, and Finney another touchdown, Studebaker kicking goal. Purdue, 16.

"Chicago took the ball to center and tried to bull down the field, but lost the ball on four downs. Muessell crossed the line for a touchdown. Studebaker kicked goal. Purdue, 22.

Here's "Prettiest Play."

"Stagg got five yards on the next spurt. Then came the prettiest play ever seen here. Thompson, guarded by Jamison, started from center, the two little sprinters arm in arm, and, like a couple of deers, in perfect step, they shot around the right end and Thompson laid the ball behind Chicago's goal after a forty yard run. It was a most inspiring play. Studebaker kicked goal. Purdue, 28.

"Chicago started off again with short gains by Allen and Stagg, and the latter punted to Thompson. Finney scored a touchdown and Studebaker kicked goal. Purdue, 34.

"Knapp got five yards on the next rush and Stagg duplicated it. Stagg got eight yards. Thompson lost four on Stagg's fine tackle. Finney made twelve yards, Little, six; Thompson, fifteen, and Fulkerson, ten; Finney got a touchdown, but Studebaker missed goal. Purdue, 38."

N. U. WARMS UP PITCHERS FOR BUCKEYE GAME

Hanley Orders Pass Attack for Saturday.

Forward passes will constitute Northwestern's reception for Ohio State in the homecoming engagement at Dyche stadium Saturday. Coach Dick Hanley said yesterday that Northwestern would adopt the aerial game as its chief offensive weapon against the Buckeyes.

The Wildcats' pass receivers will get the most attention in practice this week, since both Rentner and Olson have demonstrated that they have few equals as far as throwing is concerned. Against Minnesota Rentner tossed two passes into the arms of receivers, but the ball was dropped both times.

Fear Ohio Line.

The fact that Ohio is expected to present just as rugged and sturdy a line as Purdue and Minnesota has done much to influence the Wildcats' strategy in favor of the forward pass. In the last two games Northwestern's running game has been repulsed.

Ohio will probably provide another test of the Wildcats' defense, since both Vuchinich and Wetzel rank among the hardest hitting backs in the conference. In addition to possessing a strong bucking game, Ohio has a set of fine running backs in Cramer, Carroll, and Oliphant.

Sullivan to Start.

The injury to George Potter will necessitate some switching around in Northwestern's back field. Al Kawal will start at quarter back in place of Potter. Jakie Sullivan will probably start at left half with Rentner at right half and Olson at full.

DAY OFF FOR OHIO.

Columbus, O., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Football activity at Ohio State was at a standstill today. Varsity and reserve players were excused from practice. Intensive training for the game with Northwestern Saturday will begin tomorrow.

Ohio State's injuries were not serious in the Wisconsin game, but Cramer, Gallus, and Conrad will be given another day of rest tomorrow, because of leg injuries. Moynahan and Ferrall, unable to play last Saturday, will be ready for the Wildcats.

Freshmen were drilled today in Northwestern plays and will be thrown against the varsity tomorrow in a defensive scrimmage. The Buckeye offense will be given considerable attention this week, for during the entire season, with the exception of the opener against Ohio Wesleyan, the Buckeyes have been able to score only two touchdowns, one against Indiana and one against Wisconsin.

MICHIGAN STARS TO BE O. K.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Ted Petoskey, Michigan full back, is in University hospital today, but he will be back in harness by Saturday when the unbeaten Wolverines meet Indiana at Bloomington, coaches said today. Petoskey is under observation as the result of a twisted neck which he received when flattened under a pileup in the Princeton game, but will be out of the hospital in a day or two. Regeczi, injured in the same way, will be ready to go before the end of the week.

Coach Harry Kipke intimated that he would start both Newman and Everhardus Saturday, keeping Stan Fay on the bench until later in the contest. Fay has recovered from injuries received in the Ohio State game.

Michigan's pass attack clicked once out of nine times Saturday and that time it scored a touchdown. Coaches went about the business of polishing it up this afternoon during a drill which was confined to the fieldhouse because of wet weather.

INDIANA FACES FROSH.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The Indiana football squad went through a defensive dummy scrimmage against a freshman eleven using Michigan plays this afternoon. Deceptive end runs, off-tackle thrusts and passes featured the freshman attack, which Assistant Coaches Paul Harrell and Wally Mark, who scouted the Michigan games, taught the yearlings.

ILLINI BUILD DEFENSE.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The Illinois football players who participated in the Chicago victory today went through a long signal drill for the Wisconsin game Saturday. Second and third teams received a harder assignment, meeting freshmen using Wisconsin plays in actual scrimmage. Defensive formations were stressed, as lack of reserve line strength has been the Illini weakness all year. Bob May and Red Gragg, who shared the right tackle duties against the Maroons, will continue their battle for that position.

Fred Frink, end last year, was in uniform but will probably be unable to play against the Badgers.

WORK AHEAD FOR BADGERS.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Members of the University of Wisconsin football squad which held Ohio State to a tie Saturday were given only signal practice this afternoon. The reserves scrimmaged against the freshmen.

Coach Doc Spears intends to revert to heavy scrimmage for all varsity members tomorrow and will run them up to the peak of condition Thursday in preparation for the homecoming game with Illinois Saturday.

A compilation of the yards gained by Walter [Mickey] McGuire establishes the Hawaiian half back as the Badgers' leading ground gainer. Including his eight attempts to gain through the Ohio State line, McGuire averaged nearly five yards each time he was intrusted with the ball. Prior to the Ohio State game his average was nearly six yards per try.

SCHAMMEL IS SHIFTED.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The Iowa football team today was given new plays for use Saturday against Nebraska, and at the same time Francis [Bud] Schammel, who weighs 220 pounds, was placed at full back, replacing Bernard Page, 158 pounder. The giant tackle was tried as a ball carrier earlier in the season, but Coach Ossie Solem moved him back into the line. It is possible that he may replace Page in the Cornhusker game in an attempt to give more power to the Hawkeye running attack.

KANSAS HOLDS FIRST SCRIMMAGE FOR NOTRE DAME

Lawrence, Kas., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The University of Kansas football squad went through its first scrimmage of the week this afternoon in preparation for the game with Notre Dame in Memorial stadium here Saturday. Elmer Schaake, three year veteran, appears to have clinched the quarter back post.

The Jayhawkers are in good condition, with two exceptions, Ormand Beach, Pawhuska, Okla., star defensive back, and Art Baker, guard. Beach is suffering from a neck injury and Baker from a bruised leg.

Schaake, after playing half back and full back for the last two years and the first four games this season, started at quarter back last Friday night against St. Louis U., won praise for his play at safety, returning punts for a total of over 200 yards and calling signals with good judgment.

The Jayhawkers were sent against Notre Dame plays as outlined by former head coach, H. W. (Bill) Hargiss, now head scout, who scouted the game in Pittsburgh last Saturday.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

BY KENNETH ROUSE.
[As told to Charles Bartlett.]

My greatest football thrill occurred in the Chicago-Purdue game of 1927. I was a senior, playing center, and captain of the Maroons. Purdue had upset Harvard the previous Saturday, 19 to 0, and the Boilermakers were favorites to beat us. There were two touchdowns in the game, both the results of breaks, one by Chicago and one Purdue. But Purdue didn't convert the extra point, while Chicago did. And therein lies the thrill.

On the first play after Chicago had kicked off to Purdue, Pest Welch fumbled, and Harold Priess, an end, recovered for Chicago. We scored a touchdown from about the 20 yard line shortly after.

The game seesawed until the second quarter, when a Chicago punt went about 40 yards straight up in the air. Nearly all the Maroon players had gone down the field to cover the receiver, and when Glen Harmeson caught the ball near the lie of scrimmage he had only the kicker to elude. He ran about 60 yards for Purdue's touchdown.

Bit of Strategy Fools Purdue Guard.

The two teams lined up for the extra point attempt. Bob Wolff, who was playing right guard for us, and I, then and there decided to try a simple strategem which we had been saving for just such a moment. I lined up "on" the Purdue center, but bearing a little to the left. Bob moved a few inches to the right of his normal spot, playing "on" the Purdue left tackle. Both of us made motions indicating our disregard of the Boilermakers' left guard.

When the ball was snapped Wolff reached over and pulled the unsuspecting guard forward, off balance. I stepped forward and right, through the seam, straight into the back field, where Harmeson was attempting the kick. I think no one has ever had more pleasure in having a football kicked into the pit of his stomach than I had at that moment. The kick was blocked, the rest of the game was pretty much of a dog fight, and we won.

KEN ROUSE.

My next greatest thrill came the following week, when we defeated Pennsylvania, 13 to 7. Coach Stagg had sent the Maroons against Penn six times previously, and the best Chicago had been able to accomplish was a 5 to 5 tie in 1899. In 1926 Penn had us completely baffled with their hidden ball tricks, for a score of 27 to 0.

Rouse Gives Stagg Ball.

We rehearsed plenty of strategy against hidden ball deception for the '27 game, but the essence of our defense was to tackle every man in the Penn back field. It worked, and the thrill came after the game, when, as captain, it was my privilege to present the ball to Mr. Stagg in the locker room, the first he had been able to win from Pennsylvania.

Rouse is a graduate student of political science at the University of Chicago and his ambition is to become a police administrator. He also serves as assistant to the dean of students, in which capacity he comes in contact with applicants for admission to the university.

City League Investigates Charge Against Bowen End

Charges that William Velon, an end on the Bowen High school football team, which is a contender for the central section championship of the Chicago Public High School league, is over the league's age limit were being investigated yesterday.

Officials of the league today will send for Velon's birth record at Farmington, Ill., to determine whether he is 19 or 20 years of age. Velon came to Chicago from Farmington in July, 1931. Athletes in the league are not permitted to play after reaching their 20th birthday.

Pat Twomey, Bowen coach and chairman of the football committee, said he has a birth certificate showing that Velon was born in December, 1913. This makes him 19, he pointed out.

Velon matriculated at Bowen in October, 1931. He left shortly afterward but reentered last February. Velon tried for a place on the baseball team last spring and this season turned up for football practice and gained a regular end position.

If Velon is found to be over age, Bowen must forfeit victories over Tilden Tech, Lindblom and Hyde Park and the sectional championship will go to Englewood. Bowen now shares the central section lead with Englewood with three victories and no defeats. They will meet Saturday at Normal park.

One sectional champion already has been determined in the Catholic league, Mount Carmel having won in the south division by defeating St. Rita, 13 to 0. Mount Carmel, winner of the league title last year, scored four straight victories and its goal was not crossed while it piled up 67 points.

The football championship of the Suburban league will be determined when the undefeated Evanston team meets New Trier Nov. 19. Evanston drew a bye in Saturday's schedule, while New Trier will battle Deerfield at Highland Park.

Proviso will meet Atlanta, Ga., Technical High school in an intersectional game at Maywood Saturday. Proviso has won one game and lost two in the Suburban league.

Johnny Ringbauer of St. Rita suffered an ankle injury in the game with Mount Carmel last Sunday. He may not be able to play against Joliet Sunday at St. Rita field.

BELOIT STUDENT FRACTURES BACK LEAPING FENCE

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Tom Green, 17 years old, manager of freshman athletics at Beloit college, is in the municipal hospital in critical condition as a result of a fall which occurred when he and some other youths attempted to go over a barbed wire fence to see the Beloit-Kenosha High school football game Saturday. As he started to leap the fence, Green's toe caught in the wire and he fell to the ground, landing on his head. He suffered a fractured and dislocated vertebra, which resulted in partial paralysis. A Chicago specialist operated on him in an attempt to save his life. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. T. D. Green of Beloit.

Ex-Shamrock Players Seek Detroit Jobs

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Jack Adams, manager of Detroit's newly christened Red Wings, formerly called the Falcons of the National Hockey league, has a host of players this season and still is only faintly optimistic about the team's prospects.

The trouble, Adams says, is that the athletes are all in the doubtful stage—that is, all except a few of last year's regulars and John Ross Roach, newly purchased goalie.

Shamrocks Seek Jobs.

It all came about when the Chicago Shamrocks of the American league disbanded. Most of the Shamrocks came to Detroit and Adams found himself shaking hands with 26 hockey players, all desirous of remaining with a team that carries only about 14 men through the regular season. He even has four goalies.

Detroit lost four good men when Ottawa decided to resume its franchise this year. The four, Hec Kilrea, Danny Cox, Alex Connell, and Alex Smith, were loaned to the Detroit club and returned this year to Ottawa.

Three Forward Lines.

Adams has developed three strong forward lines from his throng of players. On the first line are Ebbie Goodfellow, one of the league's best sharpshooters; Larry Aurie and Herbie Lewis, all regulars last year. Three former Shamrocks, Eddie Wiseman, Jack Riley, and Tony Prelesnick, make up the tentative second line. In the third are Frank Carson and Happy Emms of last year's squad, and Gordon Brydson of the Shamrocks.

The defense probably will include the veteran Reg Noble and Douglas Young of the old Falcons, with Ralph Taylor and Walter Buswell, former Shamrocks, to relieve them.

Roach, purchased a few weeks ago from the New York Rangers, will hold the goalie's job, with Mike Karakas, Shamrock goal minder, in reserve.

Open with Blackhawks.

Most of the remaining players will be delegated to the Detroit Olympics, International league team, for tryouts and possible jobs.

The Red Wings meet the Chicago Blackhawks here in the season opener, Nov. 10.

VANDERBILT HAS CHANCE FOR OWN BRIDGE TROPHY

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—After failing for five consecutive years, Harold S. Vanderbilt may be on the winning Vanderbilt trophy contract bridge team Wednesday night. The cup was donated by Vanderbilt for annual competition among teams of four.

Vanderbilt's teammates are P. Hal Sims, Willard S. Kern, and Wildemar Von Zedtwitz. They will play David Burnstine, Howard Schenken, Richard Frey, and Charles Lochridge, who defeated Ely Culbertson, Oswald Jacoby, Theodore A. Lightner, and Michael Gottlieb in the semi-finals Saturday night. Culbertson lost $1,000 at odds of 2 to 1 on the game.

Medinah A.C. Opens Indoor Golf Season Tomorrow

The indoor golf season will get under way tomorrow night when the Medinah Athletic club holds open house for its members and guests. An eighteen hole blind bogey pitching and putting contest on the indoor course will be held for prizes. Prizes also will be given for the most aces. The course is again under the direction of Burt Keely, but a change will take place at the instruction nets, Jack Johnston, local pro, has been engaged for the coming season.

Gonzales Knocks Out Muscarello in First Round

Don Gonzales, Cleveland lightweight, who won the Golden Gloves featherweight championship from Tony Muscarello in 1931, knocked out Muscarello in the first round of a six round bout at White City last night.

Gonzales and the Chicago southpaw were battling on even terms for two and a half minutes when Don lashed out with a left hook to the body and Tony crumpled to the canvas for the full count. It was Gonzales' seventh victory in eight pro matches.

Johnny Phagan, 1932 International Golden Gloves welterweight champion, was held to a six round draw by Solly Dukelsky in another six round bout. Phagan could not land his hard right accurately until the sixth round.

Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis featherweight, beat Joey Bozak of Blue Island in six rounds. Other results were:

Osk Till and Johnny Long drew [6]; Heine Schmidt beat Howard Meyers [4]; Jack Ripp beat Johnny Matthews [4].

HESS TO MEET ROSS

Goldie Hess, west coast lightweight, last night telegraphed Matchmaker Nate Lewis that he had accepted terms for a 10 round bout on Nov. 11 in the Chicago Stadium with Barney Ross, Chicago's contender for the 135 pound championship.

Lewis plans a supporting card of two ten round bouts, one of which probably will find Frankie Battaglia meeting Young Terry. Battaglia, Canadian middleweight, displayed a knockout punch in his previous matches here.

Dave Shade, veteran middleweight, and Sammy [Kid] Slaughter of Terre Haute, Ind., will meet in the other ten round supporting match. Slaughter won a decision over Shade recently in ten rounds.

Hess fought Jack Kid Berg here a season or so ago and earned a match with Tony Canzoneri for the lightweight championship. They met in New York and Hess lost on points.

One of Goldie's achievements was a one round knockout over Tommy Grogan. He has never been stopped. In his telegram to Lewis, Hess said he would leave the coast in time to report here by the end of the week.

The Illinois athletic commission yesterday reinstated Rudy Dusek and Jim McMillen, heavyweight wrestlers, who were suspended for 90 days and fined $150 each Sept. 9 for violating the rules in a bout at the Coliseum. The reinstatement includes nonpayment of the fines.

Doc Krone, Coliseum promoter, and McMillen appeared before the commission yesterday and apologized for the unsportsmanlike tactics in the McMillen-Dusek exhibition and said that it wouldn't happen again.

Krone said that he had matched Dusek and McMillen to meet in a return bout at the Coliseum Nov. 15.

Charlie White, former lightweight boxer, will lead his hiking club on a three mile walk tonight at 8 o'clock, starting from Randolph street and Michigan avenue.

Young Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., middleweight, signed a five year managerial contract with Eddie Stanton of Chicago yesterday.

Young Perez Stopped in 13th by Jackie Brown

MANCHESTER, Eng., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Jackie Brown, British titleholder, stopped Young Perez of France, recognized in some quarters as world's flyweight king, in the 13th round of a 15 round bout tonight. Perez was so severely battered his seconds tossed in the towel.

BE PATIENT, BIKE FANS—ONLY 36 HOURS TO GO!

Hunk Anderson to Start Race Tomorrow Night.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Six day bike bugs—don't think there aren't a lot of them in these parts—are all a-twitter. Chicago's 28th international race will start at the Stadium tomorrow night at 9 o'clock. The fans this morning have only a little more than 36 hours to wait.

The starting gun will be fired by Coach Hunk Anderson of Notre Dame, according to official announcement made last night. Arrangements were made for Hunk to do his stuff before the late sadness at Pittsburgh and it was expected he would wear a happy smile. Bike folks are not fickle, however, so Hunk is going right on and fire the gun without smiling.

Recall Mayor's Entrance.

A year ago Mayor Cermak fired the opening gun. The mayor was late and the fans thought he was delaying things for a dramatic entrance. When he did arrive at the starting mark his honor launched into a few well chosen words in favor of Chicago's climate. Bike fans, he learned, don't worry much about climate, or even ventilation. So they didn't treat the mayor very nice, making him very angry and completely destroying the jolly camaraderie that is supposed to attend all bike race affairs.

In selecting a starter for the 28th Chicago international race, therefore, the entertainment committee was careful to avoid the speech hazard, especially at this season.

Politicians Are Welcome.

This is not to say, the management emphasizes, that politicians won't be most welcome every night of the race. The riders, especially, like politicians who give cash prizes for special sprints, a declining practice referred to in the profession as "prems."

A candidate who offers a prem will have his name and goal bawled out on the public address system, which would cause all the riders to vote for him if they could vote. Unfortunately most of the riders are foreigners and couldn't even vote even if they could get away from their bikes. But the fans—they'll vote for prem awarders, the riders believe.

As usual, the several secrets and anecdotes of the bike profession currently are being revealed by Harry Mendel of Newark, N. J., who knows more about a bicycle than the men who make them. Mr. Mendel's duties are greatly increased this fall, due to the serious illness of John Chapman, for many years major domo of professional cycling in America.

Mr. Mendel is especially enthusiastic about the addition of a series of sprints at midnight each night. In previous races the sprints have been at 3 in the afternoon, 9 o'clock at night and 2 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Mendel says the fans are going to love the midnight sprints not only for themselves but because sprints at this hour are bound to precipitate a lot of jams. And jams are what have made six day bike races what they are today.

Field Best, Says Mr. Mendel.

Mr. Mendel has slipped us a lot of confidential memoranda which we now will pass on to you in the fear that the revelations therein will be lost if we try to carry them around. Here are some of the Mendel confidences:

"Field looks like the best ever. This, coming from a press agent, sounds like oil, but you or any other bike expert can be the judge of the class of the field. Seven new riders and twenty-three who have competed here before. Practically not an outstanding American or foreign star has been left out of the fold."

Quality puts the wear into Style

What is it that erases worry, yet hasn't a speck of rubber in it?

A Rogers Peet Scotch Mist overcoat.

Nineteen years ago Rogers Peet showed the Scot how his beautiful cheviots could be rainproofed—

—without rubber

—without wax.

Today Scotch Mist is still a leader—(with plenty of imitations).

Indeed this season's sales of Scotch Mist overcoats are already ahead of last year.

Perhaps the new prices —$45 to $65!

$65 now includes our Winter weights with those colorful Tartan backs which last year had to fetch $85.

See the running water test in our windows today.

Our rainproof Scotch Mists are typical of the "greater values" prevailing here in everything men wear.

BANKERS BALK AT NEW YORK'S RELIEF PROJECT

Want More Test of the City's Credit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The bankers on whom New York City depends for its financing today declined to consider the city's needs for relief funds apart from its other financial needs. They turned down the plea of the board of estimate and the various relief organizations to back a comprehensive, long-term relief plan for this winter.

"The bankers do not want to take on a commitment for a definite time without knowing what it would be worth in time," Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City bank, said at a conference of bankers, relief agency representatives, and the board of estimate at city hall.

Argue for Three Hours.

Three hours of public and private consultation produced no change in the bankers' attitude, and this afternoon, in a brief session, the board of estimate appropriated $3,000,000 for unemployment relief and $500,000 for veterans' relief. This will enable the city to carry out the November relief program in full—some $2,000,000 in accruals is already on hand—and the banks will support the November outlay. But beyond Nov. 30 they positively would not commit themselves.

Whether the city can borrow more money at the end of November to continue relief work depends entirely upon the state of the city's credit at that time.

The whole attitude of the bankers is summed up in a fear of what the city's credit may be worth in months hence. From another angle the same feeling was expressed by George V. McLaughlin, head of the Brooklyn Trust company. He told the board of estimate as it sat in special session to work out a relief plan that "If you had adopted the tentative budget suggested by Mr. McKee, the Brooklyn Trust company would have been glad to participate in a relief loan to the full extent of its resources."

Al Smith Makes Plea.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith appeared to add his plea to that of the board of estimate but the bankers were adamant.

The board of estimate at its meeting today passed the $557,141,022.72 budget for 1933, making no changes in it and approving it without discussion. It was referred to the board of aldermen, which can before Nov. 20 reduce, but not increase it. The 1933 budget of $557,141,022 is $74,225,275 less than this year's.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Just a Guess

BACK TO THE FARMS MOVEMENT GROWING, U. S. FIGURES DISCLOSE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Increases during the first three months of 1932, according to the department of agriculture, indicate a total farm population at the end of the year of approximately 32 millions. This figure would be only 77,000 lower than the 1910 rural population year.

During the first three months of this year, the department said, the farm population of the United States increased by 263,000.

"The farm population estimates," said the department, "clearly indicate the effect of the current business depression, yet even during this period many farm people have moved to cities."

It was pointed out, however, that the net farmward movement during the first 90 days of 1932 amounted to 132,000 persons—564,000 having moved to farms from cities, as compared with 432,000 who left farms for cities.

"The net gains in farm population in 1930 and 1931, plus the projected gains this year," the department said, "will more than offset the decrease of approximately a million and a half people in the farm population from the years 1920 to 1930."

MONTANA RANCH OWNER KILLED IN CHICAGO HOTEL

Henry Shoop, 35 year old rancher, who arrived here Sunday from his home at Wibaux, Mont., with a consignment of sixty-eight head of stock for the Union stockyards, was found slain yesterday, presumably by robbers.

A maid, entering Shoop's room in the Stockyard inn, 4178 South Halsted street, found his skull split by an ax, his mouth gagged with a rag soaked in chloroform, and his hands trussed behind his back with torn bedclothes. His baggage had been ransacked, his pockets turned inside out, and the inner soles of his shoes ripped out in search of money.

Hotel employés recalled that Shoop, after registering, went out for a stroll and returned two hours later in company with a strange man between 35 and 40 years old. On this meager description, the police are hunting the man they suspect as the slayer.

C. F. Templeton's Estate Is Valued at Only $2,500

The estate of Clifford F. Templeton, 930 South Linden avenue, Highland Park, amounted only to $2,500, according to information filed in the Probate court in Waukegan yesterday. Mr. Templeton was president of the Templeton Trucking company and the Metropolitan Deliveries, Ltd., of Chicago. He was found dead in the garage at his home several weeks ago. A coroner's jury found that death was accidental.

2 SMALL BOYS ARE KILLED BY MOTOR TRUCKS

Two boys, one 6 years old and the other about 7, were killed by trucks yesterday in Chicago.

James Boyle, 6 years old, 2648 Greenview avenue, was crushed to death beneath a coal truck at North Ashland and Wrightwood avenues as he was returning home from school.

The truck failed to stop when signaled by Gust Beckman, 2740 North Marshfield avenue, who was directing traffic as a school guard. The driver, Vito Petrone, 1317 Clybourn avenue, said he saw the signal but was unable to stop the truck.

The other boy, who had not been identified at a late hour last night, was about 7 years old. He was struck by a truck at 23d street and Prairie avenue, and was taken to the Mercy hospital where he died within a few minutes. The boy wore a black leather coat, dark trousers and black shoes and stockings. The driver was Frank Molin, 2648 Walton street.

These deaths increased the Cook county automobile toll for 1932 to 937.

Fred Sheehan, 28 years old, of Lake Villa, was fatally injured yesterday in an automobile collision at Route 173 and Kenosha road, west of Zion. He died soon afterward. Erwin Lewis, 6603 29th avenue, Kenosha, was the driver of the second car. His father, Lucius Lewis, 60 years old, was seriously injured in the crash.

Frank Clifford, 35 years old, of 1432 Maple avenue, Evanston, a butcher, was killed yesterday in an automobile accident at a railroad crossing at Rock Rapids, Ia. Miss Alpha Peterson, 25 years old, of Trosky, Minn., who was riding with him, was not injured.

His attorney, O. D. Rankin, said Wojciechowski was under civil service regulations and that his dismissal was illegal. John L. MAYOR SEES CITY AND SCHOOL PAY DAY THIS WEEK

Confidence that Chicago banks would buy enough city and board of education tax warrants to give all municipal and school employés a half month's pay before the end of the present week was expressed yesterday by Mayor Cermak. He had just returned to the city hall from a conference with bankers.

At the request of City Controller Szymczak, H. H. Brackett, auditor for the school board, reported that $2,275,000 would be required to meet school pay rolls for the last half of April, the pay period to be met. Checks for this period already are made out and can be distributed as soon as the money is in hand, Secretary Charles E. Gilbert of the school board said.

The city pay roll for half a month is about $1,800,000, which would make a $4,000,000 tax warrant purchase necessary to meet the pay rolls. City employés, paid last week, will get checks for the first half of August if the pay plan goes through.

County employés will be paid today for the first half of June. Payments to 3,500 county employes and to 1,600 mothers who are on the pension roll will aggregate $500,000.

THE TIME TO KILL A COLD
—is in the First Stage, While it is Yet a "Dry" Cold!

Now it is known that a cold ordinarily passes through three stages. The first is the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours. The second is the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days. The third, the Mucous Secretion stage. Treated in the first stage, a cold is far easier to kill. As a matter of fact, when a cold passes into the second and third stages it is apt to become settled in the system and dangerous.

Nip a cold in the bud by taking Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as soon as you feel the first symptoms. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine doesn't merely coddle a cold—it kills it because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels—kills the cold germs, infection and fever in the system—relieves the headache and grippy feeling—tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Effective as it is, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is absolutely safe to take. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after effects. Does not upset the stomach or make the head ring. For years this famous tablet has been the relief of thousands in all cases of colds and grippe. Take no chances with a cold so long as this dependable remedy is available. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any drug store in America. Comes in convenient, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. No reliable dealer will try to sell you a substitute.

GREATER COSTS CUT FARMERS' PAY FOR WHEAT

Rail, Labor Expenses Are Higher.

WHEAT 40C IN ARGENTINA

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 31.—Wheat prices reached the lowest level in seventy years today when they declined an equivalent of 4 cents a bushel from Saturday's figures, closing at 5.70 pesos quintal, equal to 40 cents a bushel. Corn sold off the equivalent of ¾ cents a bushel to 28 cents.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Wheat hit a new low yesterday, with December futures marked at 43¾ cents per bushel, and thereby reopened the argument between statisticians at the Board of Trade.

Some argue that to get comparable prices you must go back to the time of Queen Elizabeth, and others maintain that prices were lower in Chicago in the fifties.

These arithmetical computations, however, are beside the point when it comes to figuring the yield to the farmer. The price at Chicago must include freight and labor. These vary with the distance from the market and both labor and freight are much higher than they have been in the past when wheat was selling at low prices.

Comparison Difficult.

On the basis of wage scales prevailing at present there is practically no comparison between grain prices now and in 1896 or previous lean years.

In 1896 common labor received a dollar a day and skilled labor about two dollars. In 1896 millions of bushels of corn were moved from Illinois farms to Chicago at two cents per bushel by the railroads and at five cents per bushel from Iowa. The rates on corn today are about nine cents from Illinois points and 11 cents from Iowa.

In making comparisons on cash wheat in Chicago it is necessary to go back to 1852-'53 to find prices as low. But the farmer in 1852 was better off, because his shipping and labor costs consumed a much smaller part of the quoted price at the market.

Want Freight Cut.

Railroad officials report much agitation among farmers for lower freight rates, particularly in the corn belt. It was reported in Cincinnati yesterday that railroad executive would meet in November to consider a fifty per cent reduction in export rates on corn.

At Mobridge, South Dakota, the South Dakota Bankers' association passed this resolution:

"Whereas, many elevators in our group are refusing to buy corn today, as it will not pay its freight to the terminals, while others have placed a nominal price of one cent per bushel just to give corn a price:

"And whereas, it now takes one-half the value of a bushel of wheat to move it to market, and the same is true of other grains;

"And whereas, wages now paid railroad men have been reduced only ten per cent;

"Be it resolved, that the United States labor board be requested to consider immediately the matter of the reduction of the wage scale paid railroad men so freight rates can be reduced accordingly."

Rye at New Low.

Wheat was not the only record breaker yesterday. Rye at 27 cents per bushel set a new low in the history of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Even hogs, whose spectacular rise led the upward procession of commodity prices this summer, are back at the low point. Yesterday at the South St. Paul [Minn.] stock yards the top price fell to $2.85 per hundred pounds, a new all time record at that market. Smaller receipts at the Chicago stock yards prevented hog prices here from sagging to new lows since 1900.

Heavy selling broke prices for eggs on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Net losses for the day were from $105 to $135 per car.

Farm Population Gains.

Despite the declining prices for farm products, the steady trek of city dwellers back to the farm continues.

The United States department of agriculture yesterday released the results of a survey in which it is predicted that by the end of December the farm population will be 32 millions, close to the peak of 32,077,000 reported as of January, 1910.

A net increase of 263,000 persons in the farm population is estimated for the first three months of 1932. This gain suggests an increase for the year equal to 1931, when the farm population gained an estimated 656,000 persons.

The net gains in farm population in 1930 and 1931, plus the projected gains this year, will more than offset the decrease of approximately 1,500,000 in the farm population in the decade from 1920 to 1930.

Foreign Raids on U. S. Dollar Are Explained

BY SCRUTATOR.

There is one form of speculation of which Americans never have been guilty. That is bearish speculation in the currencies of other countries or selling foreign exchanges short. That is why many Americans have been a good deal mystified by news concerning "raids" on the American dollar conducted by Europeans and emanating chiefly from France.

Bills of exchange are a commodity in international trade, just as are gold and other commodities. They are designated in the various currencies. Thus, as a commodity, they are subject to speculation for future delivery. A European individual or group may stage a raid on the dollar by offering to deliver dollar bills of exchange at a future date for fewer French francs than it is worth today.

How Speculator Works.

By such offerings the foreign speculator hopes to drive down the price of dollar exchange in terms of French francs, then purchase dollar exchange for still fewer francs and so make a profit. It is the same process that the stock market speculator for the decline uses in selling stocks short and then seeking to cover his commitment at a lower price.

Speculation in foreign currencies is not new to Americans, but it has been confined to bullish gambling, as witness the tremendous buying of the old German marks in this country when Germany was inflating its currency. Generally, however, trading in foreign currencies or bills of exchange is confined to American exporters and importers who have legitimate use for such transactions in order to finance shipments of commodities.

Latest Raid Fails.

The latest attempt of Europeans to raid the exchange value of the American dollar took place this month. It followed the speech of President Hoover in Des Moines setting forth that the United States faced difficulty in remaining on the gold standard at one time last summer. Apparently the European raiders hoped this would cause renewed alarm and so they sold dollar exchange short. But the decline in the dollar was short-lived and the raid proved abortive.

The currency of the United States is more firmly based on the gold standard now than at any time in the last year. Our stock of monetary gold last week totaled 7 billion 257 million dollars, and total money in circulation was 5 billion 584 million dollars. Thus, money in circulation was backed more than 76 per cent by gold.

High in Gold Stock.

The high point in our gold stock was reached on Sept. 16, 1931, when we had 5 billion 15 million dollars. Following England's suspension of the gold standard Europeans began converting their credits in this country into gold and withdrawing it. As a result, our gold stock declined 1 billion 106 million dollars and reached its low point of 3 billion 909 million dollars on June 15 this year. Ability of the United States to meet this great demand for gold, as well as depletion of foreign credits in this country, finally ended the "run on the dollar."

Since June 15 our gold stock has increased 348 million dollars and now is only 758 million dollars below the peak figure. Thus, it has regained about a third of the earlier shrinkage in less than four and a half months. This increase in gold, coupled with a shrinkage of more than 200 million dollars in money in circulation as hoarding declined, operates to place our currency on an even firmer gold basis.

WESTERN ROADS REPORT DECLINE IN CARLOADINGS

First reports indicate that freight car loadings of the western roads for the week of Oct. 29 were lower than in the preceding week. The Santa Fe hauled 28,323 cars, as against 30,593 in the preceding week, or a decrease of 7.4 per cent. As compared with the same week last year the total for the week represented a decline of 13.3 per cent.

The Milwaukee handled 25,203 cars as compared with 26,424 cars in the preceding week, or a drop of 4.6 per cent, while the decrease from the same week a year ago was 14.5 per cent.

Chrysler Co. Has Net Loss of $5,346,146

New York, Oct. 31.—The Chrysler corporation reported today a net loss of $5,346,146 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1932, compared with a net profit of $1,186,052 or 27 cents a share on 9,384,392 shares in the preceding quarter, and a net profit of $1,518,966 or 34 cents a share on 4,414,922 shares in the third quarter of 1931.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, the net loss was $6,226,578, compared with a net profit of $3,771,002 or 85 cents a share on 4,414,922 shares in the corresponding period of last year.

Directors of the corporation declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share payable Dec. 31 to stockholders of record Dec. 1, 1932.

In commenting on the report, Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board declared that substantially all of the decline in the corporation's dollar sales for the nine months occurred in the third quarter. During this period, Mr. Chrysler said, general business activity reached its lowest levels in the last three years; production on current models was curtailed to prepare for new models, and the corporation undertook "a far reaching program of rearranging its production facilities and installing newly developed machinery designed to accomplish economies heretofore unattainable."

Sales during the nine months to dealers totaled 174,530 cars, valued at $110,555,859, against 243,251 cars valued at $162,410,520 in the corresponding period of last year.

GENERAL LEVEL OF FARM PRICES DECLINES AGAIN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The general level of farm prices was reported today by the agriculture department to have dropped three points during the month ended Oct. 15.

From 59 per cent of the pre-war average in mid-September, the index price of 27 agricultural commodities fell to 56 on Oct. 15. A year ago the index stood at 68 per cent of pre-war.

The decline was attributed to reductions in the prices paid farmers for all commodities except wool, eggs and dairy products. Prices of grains, fruits and vegetables were reported as slipping to new low levels for the 22 year period covered by the department's records.

Bakelite Company Rehires 1,100 at Jackson Plant

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The Rehiring of 1,100 men in its Bakelite plant here was announced today by Charles G. Munn, president of the Reynolds Spring company. The action was made necessary, he said, by a 300 per cent increase in the capacity of the plant as the result of added business from a new line of household articles. Twenty-five 300 ton presses have been installed, he said.

General Motors to Act on Dividend Tomorrow

New York, Oct. 31.—Of the several important dividend meetings scheduled for this week, major interest attaches to the session of the General Motors board on Wednesday. Three months ago the company ordered a quarterly payment of 25 cents. There was a heavy shrinkage of earnings in the September quarter.

EASTERN ROADS END MINISTERS' PASSES IN ECONOMY DRIVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—The last class of ordinary citizens—clergymen and members of religious orders—to enjoy special fare privileges on the railroads of the east, fell victim today to the carriers far reaching drive for economy.

Heretofore, along with express and telegraph company employés and pensioners of railroads, clergymen were permitted to travel at reduced rates and in some cases free. There is an elaborate schedule of these privileges on the books of the interstate commerce commission.

Now, however, at least in the east, they must travel like ordinary mortals—only after they pay in full for their railroad ticket.

The presidents of virtually all the eastern roads, as the result of studies made under their direction, have decided that effective Jan. 1, 1933, "it will be the purpose of the carriers to issue free and reduced rate complimentary or exchange transportation only to directors, officers, and employés of railroads who are carried regularly and in good faith on the pay roll of the railroad for the account of which such transportation is requested and who devote substantially all their working time to railroad business."

Under the wording of the announcement it is assumed in railroad circles that the new provisions will apply to pensioners of railroads and their families, many of whom in the past have been entitled to reduced and free travel privileges.

BANK DEPOSITS INCREASE AGAIN; LOANS SHRINK

Bank deposits increased again in the United States last week while loans showed a further shrinkage, according to the weekly report of the federal reserve on member bank position. The changes continue the movement which has been going on for several weeks.

Commercial deposits of member banks in the principal cities expanded $28,000,000 while time deposits increased $33,000,000. Commercial loans declined $21,000,000 to $6,164,000,000 and loans on securities fell $95,000,000.

Investment of the reporting banks climbed $113,000,000. This increase in investment represent for the most part the purchase of United States government securities which amounted to $103,000,000. Current investments in government securities total $5,298,000,000 which is an increase of $1,165,000,000 over this time last year.

Rockefeller Fund Grows Since 1929

New York, Oct. 31.—The annual report of the Rockefeller Foundation, issued today, lists the book value of investments at the end of 1931 at $191,793,207. This compares with $193,075,249 a year earlier, and $176,807,903 at the close of 1929.

The report reveals that the foundation during the year increased its holdings in the 1932 notes of the Middle West Utilities company, which is now in receivership. The investment in the issue was increased from $1,748,000 to $2,132,000. The notes are carried at 100.113 of par at the close of the year, although the notes defaulted on principal and interest since that time.

Buy Short Term Paper.

At the end of 1931 bonds held were carried at a ledger value of $82,541,204, compared with $80,875,587 a year earlier, while stocks were carried at $109,252,002, against $112,199,661, indicating a continued policy of investing new funds in bonds rather than stocks. The detailed list also reveals that most of the money placed in 1931 went into short term bonds and notes, while the stock list shows few changes other than decreases in ledger value per share for certain issues.

Changes shown in the bond investment list include for 1931 increases in holdings of many securities which now have matured.

Rail Issues Added.

The foundation increased its holdings of St. Louis Southwestern railway first consolidated 4s, which matured on June 1, the total of $3,837,000 held being $1,741,000 higher than a year earlier. A refunding plan for these bonds was put through at the last minute with Southern Pacific assistance. In the foundation's accounts these bonds were carried at $3,396 per cent of par. A year earlier they were at 69.477 per cent.

No bonds other than matured issues disappeared from the portfolio between the two years, while there were a few newcomers as well as additions to issues previously held.

Purchase Utility Issues.

Increases included $313,000 American Water Works and Electric twenty year collateral trust 5s of 1934 to a total of $532,000; $408,000 Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s of 1933 to a total of $991,000; $20,000 Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit corporation three-year secured 6½ per cent notes, due August, 1932, to a total of $1,678,000.

The foundation also added $524,000 Chicago, Rosk Island and Pacific first and refunding 4s of 1934, making its total $2,732,000. Another addition was $9,000 Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power company general mortgage 5s of 1934 to a total of $63,000.

OL' MAN STOCK MARKET ROLLS SLOWLY ALONG

Price Levels Barely Change in Day.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—About the most important thing to be said about today's stock market is that it shortened the time between now and election by another day. The speculative community believes that the market may burst out of its rut after Nov. 8, but nobody seems to expect anything more than a perfunctory round of trading between now and then.

Interest today subsided to the point where only 385,060 shares changed hands, making it the dullest five hour session in more than eight years. The next lowest turnover since June 2, 1924, was recorded on June 20 last, when the volume came to only 388,000 shares.

Changes Are Small.

News of a caliber calculated to influence trading was almost completely lacking and price changes were generally of a fractional nature. The predominating tendency was toward easier levels.

Of the different groups, utilities fared about the worst, such favorites as American Water Works, Peoples Gas, Public Service of New Jersey and Standard Gas slipping off from one to nearly two points. American Telephone finished a point lower after slipping still further in the early dealings.

Most of the rails found buyers scarce and eased a bit. Indications that the railroad traffic had passed its seasonal peak is detracting from interest in this group.

Ignore Drop in Wheat.

The fresh decline in wheat, bringing the grain to a new low, had little effect on the farm implement or mail order shares. The two groups seem to be becoming case hardened to the movements of the grain pit.

Preferred stocks which lately have been looked upon as a better barometer of the market's tone than have the common issues were mixed.

Week-end announcement of a disagreement in the management of Paramount brought heavy selling, causing it to drop to a new low. Other motion picture stocks were adversely affected by the development, Loew's declining nearly a point.

Air Reduction lost a point on estimates of reduced earnings and Continental Can went ahead fractionally on estimates that net for the year would come to $2.75 a share for the company's stock.

Trustees Units Named in Bills in Bankruptcy

Trustees System Discount company of Chicago was named in two involuntary petitions in bankruptcy filed in federal court yesterday while the company's parent concern, the Trustees System Service corporation, was cited in another bill. Both concerns were placed in temporary receivership last Friday by Federal Judge Wilkerson.

Still another bankruptcy action was started yesterday against the Industrial Loan and Guaranty corporation.

Said to Be Top Company.

According to the bill this company controls the voting stock of the Trustees System Service corporation which in turn controls 27 subsidiaries operating in the small loan and real estate finance fields in the south, east, and middle west.

The bills were all filed on behalf of creditors or note holders. All of the bills it is alleged that the corporations have committed acts of bankruptcy. It is further contended that Trustees System Service and Trustee System Discount have paid off part of their gold notes thus favoring some creditors. All of the bills allege that the companies are unable to meet their obligations at the present time.

Represents Note Holders.

Attorney David Tone filed bills against Trustees System Service and Trustees Service Discount. He represents three holders of serial gold notes of the companies. His clients are E. W. Caldwell, J. Roy Keister, and Merrill H. Couglas. The second bill against Trustees System Discount was filed on behalf of three creditors, Kurt Goestken, Herman Mueller, and William Schulz.

The action against Industrial Loan and Guaranty company was started on behalf of two creditors, Henry Vespers and William Craig. Vespers listed claims of $2,298 and Craig listed claims of $1,850.

HERTZ DENIES HE WILL LEAVE PARAMOUNT CO.

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—John Hertz, chairman of the finance committee of the Paramount-Publix corporation, denied late today a report that he was leaving that organization.

In a formal statement he said:

"The resignation of Sam Katz as vice president in no way indicates that I am leaving Paramount. I came into the company to do what I could to improve its position for the benefit of all those interested in its success.

"I believe we are making progress in this effort and I intend to stay and see the job through."

The fact that Mr. Katz and Mr. Hertz had been friends and associates in Chicago as well as here was indicated at the Paramount offices as responsible for the rumor that Mr. Hertz was resigning.

HEALTH FORCES 'HOUSE OF MAGIC' HEAD TO RETIRE

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The General Electric company announced today that Dr. Willis Rodney Whitney, organizer and for 32 years director of the General Electric research laboratory, popularly termed the "house of magic," is retiring because of poor health.

Dr. William David Coolidge, senior associate director of the laboratory, has been named by Gerard Swope, president of the company, to succeed Dr. Whitney.

Dr. Whitney continues as vice president in charge of research. Under his direction the laboratory, first housed in an old barn where Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, the late "electrical wizard," was working, grew to have a staff of 30 persons.

MIDDLE WEST IS SUED AGAIN IN BANKRUPTCY

Utility Receivers to Oppose Action.

A petition asking that the Middle West Utilities company be adjudged bankrupt was filed before Federal Judge George A. Carpenter yesterday by Attorney William W. Wilson, counsel for Mrs. Juno Mooney, a widow owning two $1,000 Middle West gold notes. Judge Carpenter referred the petition to his colleague, Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley, before whom all suits involving the collapse of the Insull utilities system have been filed.

JUDGE GEORGE A. CARPENTER. [Moffett Photo.]

Attorney Wilson's petition states that a thorough scrutiny of the affairs of the Middle West company under the bankruptcy act might yield substantial returns to the general creditors, as opposed to certain institutions which he designates as special creditors.

Names Officials for Quiz.

The petition asks that certain individuals be subpoenaed for examination before a bankruptcy referee, naming Abner J. Stilwel, vice president of the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Edward E. Brown, vice president of the First National bank; Thurlow C. Essington, attorney for the Lincoln Printing company, Insull subsidiary, on whose petition Middle West was originally placed in receivership; Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch, Middle West receivers, and Attorney W. L. Latimer, who consented to receivership as counsel for Middle West.

The firm of Burry, Johnstone, Peters & Dixon, counsel for Receivers Hurley and McCulloch, are expected to oppose the petition, maintaining there is a chance for reorganization of Middle West without bankruptcy. Another bankruptcy petition, filed against Middle West on April 16, the day following appointment of the receivers, has been continued from month to month by stipulation between the interested parties and Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson, who brought the petition as counsel for the petitioning creditors of Middle West.

Sanction New Delay.

Attorney Jackbson indicated last night that his clients would not oppose a continuance on the petition until Nov. 30, on which date the current stipulation expires. The purpose of the stipulation, Mr. Jacobson said, was to enable the receivers to make appraisals and inspect the Middle West properties to determine whether the company is solvent.

Judge Lindley is expected to return here from Danville today to resume bankruptcy hearings on Insull Utility Investments, Inc., one of two Insull investment trusts. Attorney Jacobson, who is counsel for the petitioning creditors of this company also, said he would continue his examination of the officers of five Chicago banks which banks are alleged to have accepted collateral for loans of $26,000,000 to the investment trust in violation of the rights of investors.

New York, Oct. 31.—The stifling effect of election uncertainty spread from stocks to the bond market today and prices eased slightly on an extremely small trading volume. Even the sensitive speculative railroad issues found a dearth of buyers and made little or no headway. There were long periods of dullness during which scarcely anything was sold.

Leading rail bonds declined moderately. B. & O. 4½s, due 1933, which gained more than 7 points last week, slumped a point or more. Nickle Plate 6s dropped more than 3 points, reflecting discouragement over the prospect of averting receivership by the deposit of sufficient bonds under the refunding plan.

Other Rail Losses.

Other losses in rail bonds included such issues as Alleghany corporation 5s, Atchison General 4s, Rock Island convertible 4½s, Erie Refunding and Improvement 5s, Illinois Central collateral 4s, Soo Line consolidated 4s, New York Central refunding 5s, Southern Railway general 5s, and others.

Treasury bonds hovered around their previous closing prices. The prospect of a financing operation for New York resulted in a slight improvement in the city's outstanding bonds. The bankers, in their letter to the controller, explaining on what terms they would make advances to the city, went out of their way to explain some of the strong points in New York's financial structure.

Sell Down, Buy Up.

One striking example of how today's quiet market reflected the small trading position of the moment was seen in the decline in German General Electric 6½s in the early trading on the sale of five bonds, while the 6s of the same company were advancing on the execution of buying orders for a like number of bonds. Foreign issues generally were irregular. Argentines were firmer. German 5½s and 7s were quiet and a shade lower. With few exceptions, price changes were fractional. Canadians did nothing to reflect the internal offering today of $60,000,000 bonds.

Aggressive demand was lacking even for prime corporation bonds, which were fractionally lower in the majority of issues. Losses occurred both in the utility and rail list.

Hudson Motor Car.

Please send me a financial report on Hudson Motor Car company.—Mrs. H. V.

Hudson Motor Car company manufactures Hudson and Essex automobiles.

Operations have been adversely affected by contraction in demand for automobiles. Net loss for the first half of 1932 was $3,132,000, against net incomes of $527,000, or 33 cents per share, for the corresponding 1931 period.

In 1931 the company shipped 58,516 cars. Sales totaled $38,236,000. In 1930 the company sold approximately 114,000 cars for $78,095,000 and in 1929, 300,783 cars for $201,018,000 [the record year]. Sales for 1928 were $182,767,000.

Net loss in 1931 was $1,991,000 After dividends of $1,597,000, reserves for decline in foreign subsidiaries, $2,000,000; special tools, $2,000,000; reserve for contingencies, $500,000; special advertising, $1,400,000, and rearrangement of plant equipment, $633,000, surplus declined about $10,000,000 to $20,146,000.

Net income in 1930 was $325,000, or 20 cents per share. This was before deductions from surplus of $2,266,000 for new models and $6,518,000 dividends. Net income in 1929 was $11,595,000, or $7.26 per share, against net of $13,457,000 for 1928.

Operating losses, payments of dividends in excess of earnings and special expenditures have cut into working capital. On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $14,749,000 and current liabilities were $3,590,000. Cash assets alone were about $8,900,000. Working capital was $11,159,000, against $19,832,000 the year before and $26,203,000 on Dec. 31, 1929.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 1,596,660 shares of no par common stock. Nothing has been paid on the stock since Jan. 2, 1932.

The management has been connected with the company since formation more than twenty years ago. Plants are modern. Operating expenses have been reduced to an extent whereby the company can make a profit producing half the number of cars that was formerly necessary. Working capital, although reduced, is still substantial. The company has a large dealer organization.

The stock is a speculation.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 7,000; hogs, 21,000; sheep, 10,000.

Cattle came under pressure again yesterday and dipped sharply to the lowest level for Monday since last June. A few scattered lots of top grades maintained an almost steady basis for a short time at the opening, but the rank and file toppled, going down 25@50c in disorder during the afternoon. A fair sized carry over was left, some attached bids indicating more than 50c decline on in-between classes of steers.

Top weight beef steers topped the market at $9.10, against $9.65 last Monday. The unusually large number of good quality half fat cattle coming on the market when corn is selling at such low prices in the country, is the subject of much comment in the trade lately. Bulk of the long fed steers sold at $7.00 and above, while most of the short feds brought $6.50 and under. Poorest grades of beef steers sold down to $4.00, with grassy cattle lacking "kill" ranging down to $3.00. Butcher stock declined 25@50c. Calves declined 25@50c, but poor quality accounted for some of the loss. Stockers and feeders were firm.

Hog Mart Perks Up.

The hog market perked up a little yesterday and managed to stave off the new set of lows that buyers had anticipated for this week. Strength developed toward mid-session and most classes were tilted upward when the session ended. The bulk of sales were slightly above the average market of Saturday and a shade under last Friday, with mevenness ranging from steady to 10c higher compared with the week-end session and steady to 10c lower compared with last Friday. Numerous sales of 150@270 lb averages reached $3.40, the top, which compared with $3.35 Saturday, the new fall low point, and with $3.40 last Friday.

The general average recovered 5c, moving to $3.25, but this price was 5c under last Friday. Receipts, at 28,000, were short of expectations and unusually light for Monday, comparing with 55,939 a year ago and with 44,251 two years ago. Despite the narrow outside demand and indifferent attitude of many of the smaller houses, the clearance was the best for Monday since the middle of June. Only 3,000 pen holders remained at the close, the high point of the day.

Top Lambs, $5.65.

Sellers had the edge in the lamb market yesterday and kept quotations fully steady to strong in face of increased numbers. Receipts were larger, but a bigger share of the run was in feeder flesh. Offerings of slaughter lambs were comparatively short. Packing houses took most of the good native lambs at $5.00@5.25, paying up to $5.50 for a few hand picked selections while city butchers took out a few lots up to $5.65, a shade over last week's closing quotations.

The larger share of feeding lambs was well taken care of. Country buyers bought aggressively from the start at fully steady prices, getting the bulk of good feeders at $4.50@4.75. Best black face stock was quoted around $5.00. Old ewes sold steady at $2.00. Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 7,000 cattle, 21,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, against 6,509 cattle, 21,472 hogs, and 12,614 sheep the previous Tuesday and 7,817 cattle, 28,102 hogs, and 23,259 sheep a year ago.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Coffee was steady today, although trading was quiet and restricted somewhat by the uncertainty over the outcome of the sale of farm board coffee tomorrow. Trade houses were credited with supplying contracts, while other trade interests and locals bought. No. 7 contracts opened unchanged and closed unchanged to 3 higher. Sales nil. Santos opened 2 to 3 lower and closed 4 to 5 higher. Sales, 2,000 bags. Closing quotations: Santos—December, 9.28c; March, 8.72c; May, 8.46c; July, 8.33c; September, 8.23c.

Spot coffee dull; Rio 7s, 8c; Santos 4s, 11c. Cost and freight offers included Santos bourbon 3s and 5s at 10.00c to 10.25c.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Cotton goods opened quietly today in finished and unfinished lines. Silk merchants are holding back spring lines until after election. Burlaps are quiet although firmer with steadier exchange. Filling in orders for overcoatings and coatings were more general. More active business in rayon yarns is forecast by the readiness to take future business.

LIVERPOOL COTTON.

WHEAT FUTURES RALLY AFTER DIP TO ALL-TIME LOW

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices dropped another fraction of a cent into a new low record ground since the trading in futures started in Chicago Monday, December futures dropping to a low of 43½c.

Scattered commission house and stop orders selling found the wheat market poorly supported early and prices dropped around 1c from Saturday's finish. As the December neared the 43c level there was short covering and also buying on resting orders. Later further short covering disclosed a lack of pressure. A rally to a fraction above the previous close followed, with the finish ⅞@⅞c lower. December was 44@44¼c; May, 49⅜@49½c, and July, 50½c at the last.

Winnipeg at New Low.

Winnipeg broke sharply early to a new all time record low for the Canadian market, December dropping 1⅞c to 44¾c, but likewise rallied and closed unchanged to ½c higher, with December at 46½c in Canadian funds. Liverpool was ⅞@1c lower, with December at 51¾c, or 7⅝c over Chicago at the time, about the widest premium of the season. Export sales of 800,000 bu Manitobas were claimed during the day, but the day's business was regarded as having been over 1,000,000 bu by some observers.

Corn showed rather stubborn resistance to selling pressure and failed to get as low as last week. Local professionals were on the buying side. Closing trades were ¼@⅝c per bu higher, with December, 24½@24⅝c; May, 29⅝c, and July, 31¼c at the last. Exports bids were out of line.

Corn Offerings Light.

Country offerings of corn to arrive were relatively light, with 108,000 bu booked to arrive. An increase of 538,000 bu in the visible supply made the total 26,733,000 bu, the largest on record for this season, with the exception of 1896, while last year's total was 7,217,000 bu.

The movement of oats in the west has steadily decreased and is now on a trickle. Only one car of cash oats was received at Chicago, and while records were not available old timers expressed the belief that the day's arrivals had established a new record. There may have been days when abnormal weather or traffic conditions may have resulted in no grain being received but no one could recall such an instance. Futures were dull and closed unchanged to ⅛c higher, with December at 15⅛c, and May at 17⅞c.

Rye was ¼@½c lower, with spreading operations a factor. December finished at 27½c, and May at 31¼c. The nearby future sold down to 27c early, a new all time record low.

COUNTRY CLUB TO PAY INTEREST ON BONDS TODAY

Interest falling due today on the first mortgage bond issue of the Medinah Country club, will be paid at the Chicago Title and Trust company, officials of the club stated yesterday.

The officials also announced that for the first ten months of the club's fiscal year, which ends Nov. 30, 1932, operations resulted in a loss of approximately $6,500. This is considered by the officials entirely satisfactory as the club operates as a nonprofit institution and budgets on a basis of close balance between income and expense.

The balance sheet of Sept. 30, 1932, shows current assets of $82,852 against current liabilities of $63,814. The club has no bank loans or debt other than current payable aside from its funded obligations, which total $280,550, against total assets of $2,063,279.
